MUSSOLINI ASKS U. S. TO CANCEL ALL WAR DEBTS

500,000 Hail Duce's Plea at Turin.

TURIN, Italy, Oct. 23.—(AP)—Premier Benito Mussolini appealed to the United States to cancel or reduce the European war debts in an open air address today, carried by loudspeakers to about a half million Italians jammed in three public squares of Turin.

BENITO MUSSOLINI.

He declared Germany's armament parity demand was "fully justified," and deplored what he termed the ineffectiveness of the league of nations, but said Italy would remain a member. He also argued against the dole and money inflation.

Without mentioning France by name he made what was interpreted by the crowd as a challenge to that nation—whose frontier is only 40 miles west of here—in his statement that "Turin has never been afraid of war."

Duce Closely Guarded.

Elaborate precautions were taken for protection of the premier in his first visit in nine years to this industrial center, long the hotbed of anti-Fascism. He made a promise to Turin citizens that "hereafter contacts between us will be close and frequent."

The premier appealed to United States in the matter of what he described as "the ship of debts," and said, "I hope the people of the great starred state will not repel this vessel which carries a cargo of hope and anxiety of so many people."

Shouts of "no" came from the crowd.

"Would that your 'no' could be heard on the other side of the ocean and touch the heart of that great people," Mussolini added.

Coatless and Bareheaded.

Referring to his speech last year in Naples, he said: "I spoke then of the traffic bookkeeping of the war and in two articles in Popolo d'Italia, which are not forgotten, affirmed that it was time to pass the sponge over this bookkeeping."

Wearing the black shirt of Fascism and coatless and bareheaded, the duce appeared on a balcony above the great Castello square, promptly at 10 a. m. This and two other large squares of about equal area were jammed. On either side of him were Cesare Maria de Vecchi, ambassador to the Vatican, and Gen. Pietro Gazzera, minister of war.

It took five minutes to quiet the crowd and he spoke for about 25 minutes. Pietro Colonetti, an aged functionary, was stricken with apoplexy while listening to the speech and died. Several women fainted.

Bands Lead Parade.

Scores of bands led the disciplined crowd in a march through the streets and to its places in the squares. Troops three rows deep lined each side of the avenue as Mussolini arrived at the station from Rome. He stood in an open car, dressed in a corporal of militia's uniform, and saluted spectators on the line of parade.

His speech was part of a celebration of the tenth anniversary of the Fascist régime, and he announced as the motto for the next decade: "Advance, work, and, if and when necessary, fight."

The son of a blacksmith himself, he spoke directly to the workers, thousands of them unemployed, as he pledged better cooperation between classes. He said he knew the physical pain of families in want "because I have endured it."

Recognizes German Demand.

"Germany's demand for juridical parity of armaments is fully justified," he said. "It must be recognized, and the sooner the better. But at the same time Germany must not ask rearmament in any way as long as the disarmament conference endures."

"Once the conference fails," he added, "Germany cannot remain in the league of nations."

He envisaged a four power conference with Great Britain, France, Germany, and Italy—as recently proposed by the British government—as a possible solution to European troubles.

"But we want no hegemony in Europe," he added, without mentioning any specific country as threatening

PLANNING THE FUTURE

MYSTERY BLAST WRECKS $10,000 STICKNEY HOME

A vacant seven room bungalow at 3941 South Oak Park avenue, Stickney, was almost wrecked by a terrific explosion early this morning. The blast caved in the roof and the west wall. Damage was estimated at $10,000.

Remnants of a five gallon can which were found indicated that gunpowder had caused the explosion. The powder evidently had been set off in the basement of the home. Shortly before the explosion a light was noticed in the basement, and a few minutes later an automobile which had been parked in front was driven away.

Chief Charles Novotny of the Stickney police force said that the bungalow was vacated only last Wednesday by Joseph Treska and his family, consisting of his wife and two sons. Treska built the place four years ago. He is a bricklayer. He told friends last week that he was moving to Chicago, Chief Novotny said. The chief announced he would question Treska.

BOY, 6, AND PONY COME 210 MILES; MISS ROOSEVELT

Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 23.—(AP)—Winfred (Toby) Cook's pony got flat tires or fallen arches or something and Toby was too late to greet Gov. Roosevelt today, but the 6 year old Tift county boy hopes to be rewarded for his 210 mile ride by shaking hands with the Democratic nominee tomorrow.

Toby and Bill—that's the pony—limped into Atlanta with a police escort and everything at 4 p. m. today, but Gov. Roosevelt had arrived in the morning and left for Warm Springs.

"Billy's feet got sore and we could not come any faster," Toby said in explaining the delay. Toby and Billy covered the 210 miles in 61 hours with 8 hours' sleep.

19 DROWNED AS BUS PLUNGES INTO RIVER

Natchez, Miss., Oct. 23.—(AP)—Joseph Bowman, 27, of Moselle, Miss., and eighteen Negroes of Waterproof, La., drowned here tonight when a school bus driven by Alma Ellzey, white, of Waterproof, crashed through the guard gates of the dock of the Royal Route company and went into the Mississippi river.

Ellzey, Duke Cooley, 13, of Waterproof, and a Negro girl were the only passengers rescued from the bus. The others were trapped in the submerged machine.

The bus had been chartered by its passengers to take them from Waterproof to a Negro Baptist convention at Meadville, Miss., and was on its return trip when the tragedy occurred.

Bishop Breaks Into Church to Admit Negroes

New York, Oct. 23.—[Special.]—Defying a threat of arrest for "trespassing," Bishop William T. Manning forced his way through the padlocked, iron grilled gate of All Souls Protestant Episcopal church today and delivered a sermon to a predominatingly Negro congregation upholding the rector's stand in their behalf.

WM. T. MANNING.

The bishop denounced as "illegal and indefensible" the action of a group of vestrymen in closing the church against the rector's orders and declared that he fully upheld the rector in opening the church to Negro parishioners. The Rev. Rollin Dodd, rector of the church, helped Bishop Manning break through the gate and assisted the bishop during the somewhat unusual service which followed.

No Disorder in Crowd.

There was no disorder, but a crowd of 250 parishioners, most of them Negroes, were outside the church when the bishop arrived and watched intently the procedure of opening the church. A dozen policemen, who had been summoned to preserve order, had nothing to do but help the ushers lead the congregation into the church, which was half filled with scaffolding and boards, in connection with the repairs which are being made.

The bishop's visitation had been announced several days before, and the dissenting members of the vestry had predicted that he would meet with resistance.

Bishop Manning arrived at the church at 10:20 a. m. dressed in his episcopal vestments, with a blue cape thrown over his shoulders. He was met at the door by Mr. Dodd and after a brief conference the two made their way through the rectory to find a way into the church.

Break Through Doors.

A Negro locksmith was eventually summoned, and he removed a pane of glass from a door in the back of the church, enabling the rector to gain access to the church proper. The wooden front door was opened without difficulty, and the locksmith was directed to open the locked iron gate which served as a barrier across the church steps.

An improvised pulpit was set up in the center aisle of the church. The bishop then inspected the scaffolding and, finding it safe, invited the congregation inside.

In his sermon the bishop referred to the situation in the church as "an unusual one, on account of which I am here today as your bishop to make an official visitation to the parish."

"I am here not to assert my rights as bishop, but to uphold and to give my full support to your rector in his right and Christian purpose to make this church a center of spiritual ministration to all the people of this neighborhood who wish to attend its services without distinction of race or color," he said.

Assails Opposition.

"Those members of the vestry who oppose the rector have, I am sorry to say, taken action which is quite unwarranted and indefensible. They have proceeded to obstruct the work of the rector.

"They have demanded his resignation, to which of course he pays no attention, and, without making any provision for religious services, have summarily closed the church for repairs, apparently for the purpose of preventing the rector from continuing his policy of admitting colored people to the services. That action is not only uncanonical and illegal, it is contrary to the central principle of our religion."

None of the dissenters attended the service, so far as could be learned.

HOOVER PLANS CHICAGO SPEECH FOR NEXT WEEK

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 23.—[Special.]—A campaign address at Chicago was entered in President Hoover's speaking schedule today as the Republican candidate returned to Washington from his Detroit appearance last night.

If the plan is carried through, as now seems likely, President Hoover will go to Chicago about Nov. 2 or 3 following his address announced for Monday night, Oct. 31, at New York's Madison Square Garden.

Returning to Washington with the President were Henry Ford and Senator Otis F. Glenn, Illinois Republican. It was in answer to their insistent representation that Mr. Hoover took the proposal of a Chicago speech under serious consideration.

Glenn and Ford Confer.

Senator Glenn and Mr. Ford conferred at length last night and this morning, then carried their agreed opinion to the President. They argued the desirability of making a personal appearance in Chicago. Mr. Ford declared that Chicago was the capital of midwestern agriculture, industry, and rail and water transportation and that to avoid speaking there would be a grave mistake.

Hitherto the President has declined to listen to such arguments, for he has feared the political consequences of being forced to show himself on the same platform with Len Small and Chicago's former Republican mayor.

Plan Way Out of Difficulty.

But campaign advisers believe this difficulty can be met by gathering at the meeting a group of notables large enough and prominent enough to smother any undesirables who will have to be permitted to show themselves for politics' sake. Mr. Ford promised the President that he would be one to come to Chicago and take part in the cloaking act.

Whether or not the projected Chicago trip goes through as tentatively scheduled will depend in large part on the events of the coming week. It had been planned that Mr. Hoover should leave Washington next Thursday for a speech at Indianapolis the following night. But this plan appeared to be on the way to cancellation because the President's desire to have the coming week free for the preparation of his New York address.

Discussion of a trip to the coast, to conclude at Palo Alto on election day, was revived by the talk of a Chicago speech. From Chicago, it was thought, President Hoover might go to Denver, to speak there about Nov. 4, then on to a California speech and to his home in time to vote.

Guests in Private Car.

On the return to the capital Senator Glenn and his daughter, Miss Mary Elizabeth Glenn, breakfasted with the President and Mrs. Hoover in their private car.

The Illinois senator told the President of a rising Hoover tide in Illinois that he declared would put the state over the line and into the Republican column.

In conversation later Senator Glenn ascribed what he said was a constantly growing Hoover sentiment to the effect of the President's three midwestern speeches at Des Moines, Cleveland, and last night at Detroit, to improved business conditions, and to the failure of the voters to find any inspiration in Gov. Roosevelt's campaign.

Injured by His Supporters.

Senator Glenn declared also that the appearance in the Roosevelt camp of so many political radicals was having its effect.

That thought was with the President, too, as he considered the hostile reception given him by the street crowds at Detroit last night. It was such a display of ill feeling as has not been shown any President within the memory of persons who have been associated with various Presidents for the last generation.

The President, however, was described as having been satisfied that the demonstration had taken place. He believes, it was reported, that the "boos" of communists like those in the workers' ex-service men's group, which showed the most active ill will, will prove to be a political asset.

Evanston Girl Rider Killed by Saddle Horse

Riding with Sister.

She had been riding with her sister, Mrs. Hortense Murray, 2730 Deer Park drive, S. E., Highland Park, wife of Dr. William A. Murray, dental surgeon. At the end of their ride they approached the saddle club and paused for a moment at Harms road, waiting for a break in automobile traffic so that they might cross the highway.

Miss Page-Wood's horse, Gay Boy, a gift from her father, was restive. He was standing on a culvert, and in prancing about lost his footing and plunged over on his back in the ditch beside the road. The girl was pinned beneath him.

Rush to Girl's Aid.

A number of friends, including Attorney Georga Crossland, 2428 Grant street, Evanston, and Dr. Francis P. Horan, 1023 Sheridan road, Evanston, who were standing on the grounds of the club, witnessed the accident and ran to the girl's aid. They carried her into the gatekeeper's lodge near the club entrance.

Madolene was still conscious and evidently believed that she was not seriously injured, for she urged Attorney Crossland not to tell her father.

"Hell be furious and might forbid me to ride again," she said. "Please don't tell him."

The doctor gave her first aid and started trying to take her to a hospital when she became unconscious and died.

Mother Is Notified.

Madolene's mother, Mrs. Mildred Page-Wood, was a passenger on the Twentieth Century on her way to New York when the accident occurred. She was notified of her daughter's death and wired that she would start at once for Chicago. She is expected to arrive this morning.

Besides her parents and her sister, the dead girl is survived by two brothers, Gerald, 17 years old, who is a senior at Evanston High school, and Stanley, 13 years old.

Miss Page-Wood suffered serious injuries three years ago when she was thrown by a horse near Glenview. At that time she sustained a brain concussion. She was an enthusiastic rider, as are her mother and several other members of the family.

Another Rider Hurt.

Mrs. Kimball Salisbury, 1415 Astor street, was shaken up yesterday when she fell from her horse while riding with other members of the Milburn Hunt club, west of Waukegan. Approaching a jump, Mrs. Kimball's horse stumbled, throwing her over his head. It was reported she was not injured seriously.

10,000 SEE 'FISH LUNG' INVENTOR 'LIVE' IN WATER

MADRID, Spain, Oct. 23.—(AP)—A crowd of more than 10,000 persons, including government authorities, saw Adrian Alvarez, inventor of the "fish lung," submerge himself for half an hour in a park pond today in his conelike tank.

The former railroad mechanic, whose invention is supposed to extract oxygen from water by a process similar to that of fish gills, returned to the surface earlier than was expected. He said a loose nut had caused a leakage.

While submerged he sent radio messages to President Alcala Zamora and other officials in the name of "those lost in submarine disasters."

CAROL'S EX-WIFE RETURNS HOME IN A ROYAL CAR

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Oct. 23.—Princess Helen arrived here tonight to be with her son, Prince Michael, on his eleventh birthday next Wednesday. She came from the frontier in the royal private car which King Carol, her former husband, had ordered for her. It was attached to the Simplon express.

607 NOMINEES IN CAMPAIGN VOICE THEIR ATTITUDE

Illinois Assembly Is for Repeal.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 23.—[Special.]—Replies from 607 candidates indicate that the congress to be elected on Nov. 8 will be wet, eleven to one, according to the latest report published today on the questionnaire sent out by the Women's Organization for Prohibition Reform.

Forty-five states were represented in the replies received. Of the 607 candidates for the senate and house 553 classified themselves as wet and only 54 as dry. Of the wets, 474 declared they stand for outright repeal and 79 for repeal and resubmission with qualifications.

Democratic candidates, the report showed, are still leading Republicans 2 to 1 for straight repeal. The poll to date covers more than half the congressional candidates. It is to be continued up to election day.

Question Submitted.

The question presented to the candidates by the organization was as follows:

"If elected, will you support a resolution for the straight repeal of the 18th amendment and the restoration to each state of its power to regulate the manufacture, sale, and transportation of intoxicating beverages within its own limits? Such resolution to be submitted to conventions in the several states for ratification or rejection."

The replies so far received are classified as follows:

Democrats	322	23	2
*Repub.-Dem.	7		2
Minor parties	10	1	3

Foresees Wet Congress.

In commenting on the results of the poll, Mrs. William B. Mason, chairman of the organization's legislative department, declared:

"The arrival of a militant wet group in the new congress after March 4 is definitely forecast. Wets have real cause to be jubilant. These latest returns of the congressional poll spell defeat for the drys, and a new deal for prohibition reform advocates is on the horizon.

"Of the many profoundly significant interpretations to be gained from this poll, I think it is particularly interesting that 322 Democrats are standing on their national plank, while 135 Republicans, avowed repealists, have parted company with the Republican restrictive plank."

SEE WET LEGISLATURE

The Illinois division of the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform yesterday made public the result of its poll of nominees of both parties for the state legislature.

The report showed the 22 districts in the metropolitan area—19 lying within Cook county and three in adjoining territory—will send an overwhelmingly wet delegation to the 58th general assembly when it convenes next January.

Few Known to Be Drys.

Only five of these districts elect state senators this year and not more than two will send drys to the upper chamber. There are 72 candidates for the house, and 62 of them either recorded themselves as wet in the organization's poll or are known to be wets, and only six are known to be drys, the remaining four being new candidates who did not respond to the poll and whose position, therefore, is not known.

The women's organization, whose recommendations are indorsed by the Association Against the Eighteenth Amendment, included in its report a vigorous plea for the support of those candidates who will vote to end the evils of prohibition.

Go Beyond State Repeal.

In the questionnaire to the candidates the organization went even further than state repeal. It submitted two questions reading as follows:

"If elected, will you work and vote for the repeal of the state search and seizure Act?

"If congress should enact legislation to be submitted to the several states providing ways by which the people may express themselves on the issue of prohibition, and you are elected, will you work and vote for a prompt presentation of this matter to the people of Illinois?"

In commenting on the five races for the state senate, the organization directed their fire at two dry Republican candidates—Senator James J. Barbour, 6th, and Arnold P. Benson, 14th, a Batavia editor.

"Both Mr. Barbour and Mr. Benson have dry records and we urge their defeat," read the report.

Tuite and Paddock Wet.

Two of the other four Republicans—Francis M. Tuite, 2d, and Senator Ray Paddock, 8th, answered "Yes" to both questions. The fifth Republican, John F. Kurzawski, 4th, is a new candidate and did not reply to the questionnaire but is considered a wet.

All five of the Democratic nominees answered "Yes" to both questions. They are Senator Joseph Mendel, 2d; Senator Frank McDermott, 4th; Walter A. Goranson, 8th; Leo Dailey, 8th, and James Harrison Scott, 14th.

Two women now in the legislature lead the list of known drys who are candidates for the house. They are Miss Josephine Perry, 5th, and Mrs. Anna Wilmarth Ickes, 7th. Both are sure of election, as in each district there are only three nominees. Miss Perry did not reply to the questionnaire. Mrs. Ickes replied, "No."

Mrs. O'Neill in Race.

A third woman who formerly served in the house and again is a candidate, Mrs. Lottie Holman O'Neill, 41st, is also counted as a dry, because she voted that way during previous terms. She has opposition, as there are four candidates in her district, the other three being wet.

Only one male member from Chicago told the women, "No." He was Representative David I. Swanson, 11th. There are four candidates in his district and he is the only dry. Another Chicagoan, Representative William G. Thon, 23d, told the women's organization he stood with Hoover on the prohibition question, but he voted dry last year on the state repealer. He has three wet opponents. Representative John M. Peffers, 14th, did not reply to the questionnaire, but he has a dry record. He is certain of reelection, because there are only three nominated in his district.

Eight Drys All Republicans.

All eight of the known drys—two for the senate and six for the house are Republicans.

TWO WOMEN LEAP AS TRAIN HITS CAR.

Lydick, Ind., Oct. 23.—[Special.]—Mrs. Mary Stroup of Lydick and Miss Gizella Kliva of South Bend had a narrow escape today when a train struck a light sedan in which they had been riding. The two women leaped out of the car, which had stalled on the crossing, just before the train demolished it.

JERSEY SLATED AS DOUBTFUL IN BALLOT BATTLE

Boss Hague Laboring for Gov. Roosevelt.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

Newark, N. J., Oct. 23.—Gov. Roosevelt may not carry New Jersey on Nov. 8, but it will not be for want of Mayor Frank Hague of Jersey City, Democratic boss of the state, eating those unpropitious words he uttered at the Chicago convention of their party. The fact is that Mr. Hague has made an uncommonly hearty meal of them.

It will be recalled that Mr. Hague going into action as the manager of Al Smith's candidacy for the nomination at Chicago issued a manifesto declaring that Gov. Roosevelt, if nominated, would not carry a single eastern state in the election. He elaborated upon this theme to the length of several mimeographed pages from which the reader gathered that in the opinion of the New Jersey boss the party would commit suicide if it were to name the New York governor for its candidate.

Finds He's Mistaken.

Notwithstanding this impressive warning from an expert in these matters the party nominated Gov. Roosevelt and Mr. Hague retired to his ballwick to think it over. Fanned by the ocean breezes of his native shore, Mr. Hague rapidly cooled off. Then he perceived that he had been mistaken in his Chicago pronouncement. Gov. Roosevelt, he now perceived, instead of not carrying a single eastern state was going to carry every eastern state.

And he was man enough to confess his error. He confessed it openly, unreservedly, elaborately and as frequently as the populace could be assembled to listen to him. Mr. Hague explained that his dire prophesying at Chicago was uttered in the heat of political strife and, for the benefit of such as are ignorant of the ways of politicians, he revealed that he had merely been up to one of the tricks of the trade. He had known all along that Roosevelt would be an unbeatable candidate east, west, north, and south, and all he meant to do, if possible, was to scare the convention into choosing his equally invincible friend, Al.

Swings Into Action.

While Al was still thinking it over and as yet showing no signs of thawing, Boss Hague swung into action for Roosevelt. He organized the meeting at Seagirt, where the New York governor launched his campaign. Mr. Smith wouldn't come, but Mr. Hague was there, his florid countenance beaming blessings on the 150,000 faithful who had come forth at his bidding to demonstrate that the boss was 100 per cent for the candidate. The affair is remembered not for the enthusiasm for Roosevelt, of which there was little, but for the exhibition of Hague's perfect control of his machine.

Mr. Hague having confessed his error, Democratic National Chairman Jim Farley fraternized with the New Jersey boss and publicly announced that he knew all along Hague was merely playing politics at Chicago. He said Gov. Roosevelt also knew that Hague had been speaking politically, not personally, and that everything was oke.

Restored to His Job.

Mr. Farley chose conveniently to forget that this charitable view had not prevailed immediately following the convention when for his sins Mr. Hague was deposed from the vice chairmanship of the national committee. Only recently has Mr. Hague in view of his impressive demonstrations of loyalty been forgiven and restored to the vice chairmanship.

Boss Hague, whose conservatism is well established, has taken upon himself the special mission of establishing the conservatism of Roosevelt. He goes about the state making speeches in which he tells his auditors that if they think the New York governor is a radical they have got him all wrong. True enough, he admits, all the wild eyed radicals in both old parties are lined up with Roosevelt and Roosevelt is doing a lot of fraternizing with Norris, the La Follettes, Frazier, Nye, Dill, Huey Long, and other sons of the wild jackass, but according to Hague this doesn't mean anything serious. Hague says he is sure Roosevelt won't listen to any of them when he gets into the White House.

From some Democratic sources one still hears suspicions that Hague is giving only lip service to Roosevelt and will not bust any galluses in the effort to carry New Jersey for the Democratic candidate. On the other hand it is pointed out that for reasons of his personal and political aggrandizement Hague has every reason to spare no effort to put Roosevelt over by the biggest vote possible. Hague now controls the state executive and if he can capture the senate, which confirms the appointment of judges and county prosecutors, he will have control of every branch of the state government. The larger the vote Roosevelt polls, the more Democratic state senators will be elected. If Hoover carries New Jersey he will pull through a lot of Republican candidates for the state senate who otherwise would be defeated.

Before 1896 New Jersey generally went Democratic in presidential elections, but Bryanism scared it into the Republican fold, where it has been ever since except in 1913, the year of the big Republican split. Not even its own citizen in the White House, Woodrow Wilson, could make it Democratic in 1916. In other than presidential election years it still goes Democratic frequently, electing Democratic United States senators, governors, and other state officers. There would appear to be upwards of 250,000 voters who do not vote except in presidential elections. The normal Republican plurality for President approximates 300,000.

Straws Give Hoover Edge.

Most of the straw votes being conducted give Mr. Hoover the edge in this contest. If he does carry the state it will be by a small fraction of the normal Republican margin. I find, however, that many of the most responsible Republican leaders feel that a Hoover victory in the state is far from assured. They regard New Jersey as decidedly doubtful today. That was the reason they sent Senator Hamilton Kean personally to the White House to tell the President it is imperative he make an appearance and at least a brief talk in New Jersey, which he has agreed to do on his way to New York on Oct. 30.

What has particularly aroused the anxiety of the Republican managers is the Republican disaffection disclosed in their checkups of the 20 Republican out of New Jersey's 21 counties. It is the same story here as elsewhere: The army of the unemployed in the industrial counties of Essex, Passaic, Middlesex, and Bergen, which are Republican, and Hudson, which is Democratic, and the growers of potatoes, garden truck and other farm products at profitless prices in Republican rural Jersey are turning from the party in power as the supposed author of their ills. It is apparent that Republican pluralities will be greatly reduced, possibly so much so that the vote of Hague's Democratic Hudson county will swing the state to Roosevelt.

NOTES OF THE CAMPAIGN

Reduction of oppressive taxes on real estate was pledged yesterday by Judge Henry Horner in accepting support of the Real Estate Independent Horner for Governor committee. The committee, of which Graham Aldis is chairman and Henry George Slavik secretary, is composed of 115 real estate men of Chicago and its suburbs, a large majority of them Republicans. Among the members are James G. Barsalouz, Perkins B. Bass, Ayres Boal, Eugene A. Bournique, Frederick M. Bowes, Henry T. Carr, Callistus S. Ennis, and Hugh McLennan.

James Marshall, son of Louis Marshall, a New York Jewish leader, will speak for Hoover in the grand ballroom of the Palmer house tomorrow evening.

John E. Northup, Republican nominee for attorney general, is to speak at Danville on Wednesday.

A Greek division of the Democratic headquarters at the Hotel Sherman has been established with Dr. Nicholas Saiopoulos as chairman, Paul Kare and Louis Collins as vice chairmen, and A. A. Pantelis as secretary. Miss Ann Chibucos is executive secretary.

Supporters of John T. Dempsey, Republican nominee for Appellate court clerk, say that he is the youngest candidate on either ticket. He is 31 years old.

Contributions to promote the reelection of President Hoover are more numerous but individually smaller than they were four years ago, Mrs. Walter Wolf, chairman of the women's section of the Illinois finance committee of the Republican party announced yesterday. Gifts of $5 to $50 keep arriving in a steady stream, she said. One woman appeared at Palmer house headquarters with a paper bag filled with $25 in silver coins, collected from her friends. "I feel that spreading the responsibility for the financial success of this campaign is much better than depending on a few donors," Mrs. Wolf commented.

Mrs. James Morrisson, formerly of Chicago, now of Groton, Conn., is one of the most active Republican women in the campaign. A founder of the National League of Women Voters, a pioneer suffragist and widely known for her oratorical ability, Mrs. Morrisson is filling a busy schedule of speaking engagements in Indiana, Wisconsin, Illinois, and Michigan. She will be heard on Wednesday in Monroe, Mich.

Members of the newly formed Winnetka Republican Woman's club have arranged a massmeeting of women to be held tonight in the theater of Skokie school. Henry J. Allen, former governor of Kansas, will speak.

Miss Katherine Jewell Everts, a friend of Mrs. Hoover and a lecturer on drama and the arts, will speak for Hoover and Curtis on Wednesday afternoon at a meeting of the Smith College club in Winnetka.

GOV. ROOSEVELT HAS DAY OFF AT WARM SPRINGS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Warm Springs, Ga., Oct. 23.—[Special.]—Down this way, Franklin D. Roosevelt is greatest of the great.

Coming "home to Georgia," as he put it himself, the Democratic presidential nominee was given acclaim which couldn't have been more enthusiastic if he had already won his high office. For that matter, many times he was greeted as "the President."

Sentimental scenes played on the emotions of those who came to the beautiful Warm Springs retreat with Gov. Roosevelt as they watched him in the center of a half circle of crippled patients of the sanitarium which the governor founded several years ago for the treatment of convalescents from infantile paralysis.

Greeted By Patients.

As they sang a special ditty of greeting to this man who himself, in this very place, overcame in major part his own crippled condition, and rose to take such leadership in the nation, tears were seen in the eyes of many spectators.

But if there was sentiment or sadness, it didn't seem to exist among the patients themselves. Despite their braces, their wheel chairs, and helpless members, they all smiled as happily as though they had no affliction at all.

And Gov. Roosevelt, whose visit to Warm Springs in the middle of his campaigning was for the purpose of attending a meeting of the board of trustees of the Warm Springs foundation, plainly showed his joyful emotion.

Reception at Atlanta.

At the city square the governor was presented to an assembled crowd by Gov. Richard B. Russell, who spoke of Mr. Roosevelt as "the greatest living American" who will soon become "the greatest President the country ever had." Southern hospitality is spread on lavishly.

Then over a highway which the citizens of Georgia have rededicated the "Franklin D. Roosevelt highway," the governor and his party rode swiftly to Warm Springs, 74 miles from Atlanta.

Mr. Roosevelt was asked today concerning reports that Alfred E. Smith might become a "minister without portfolio" if Mr. Roosevelt is elected. He laughed and said "it is too early to even think of that."

Tomorrow he will be the central figure in a series of events, a parade, various hijinx, and finally a big mass-meeting tomorrow night, at which the governor will give his message, addressed to the American south.

MRS. F. D. ROOSEVELT FLIES TO NEW YORK FROM GEORGIA CITY

New York, Oct. 23.—(AP)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, wife of the Democratic presidential nominee, returned to New York tonight after an airplane flight from Atlanta, Ga.

Stops were made on the way up at Greenville, Spartansburg, and Charlotte, N. C.; Greensboro, N. C.; Richmond, Washington, and Philadelphia.

Among those who greeted her at Newark were Commissioner Charles P. Gillen, City Clerk Peter J. O'Toole, Assemblyman William N. Curry, and George V. McDonough, candidate for sheriff.

THOS. O. WALLACE REPORTS ON EIGHT YEARS IN OFFICE

Thomas O. Wallace, candidate for reelection as clerk of the Circuit court, made public statistics yesterday showing that while the business in his office has more than tripled in the eight years he has held office, his pay rolls have been reduced 12.4 per cent in the same period.

Mr. Wallace's figures are for 1923, the last full year in which his predecessor, August W. Miller, held office, and for 1931. In 1923, he states, the office of the clerk performed 104,5[illegible] units of work, consisting of the receiving of suits, the entering of judgments, the preparation of pages of transcript, etc. In 1931 the office performed 342,398 units of work, according to this same method of measuring its activities.

In spite of the 228 per cent increase in activities, pay rolls declined from $153,032 in 1923 to $123,978. At the same time receipts of the office from fees were vastly increased. In 1923, Clerk Miller turned over to the county $32,332 over the expense of operating his office. In 1931 Clerk Wallace showed an excess of $303,632 of fees over expenditures.

Stench Bomb Is Dropped on Uptown Theater Floor

A stench bomb was dropped on the floor of the auditorium of the Uptown theater, 4814 Broadway, last night. Only a slight disturbance was caused, W. B. Holden, manager, said, and most of those who left their seats returned shortly afterward. The ventilating system was speeded up and the odor was quickly dissipated.

AL SMITH TO SPEAK TONIGHT IN NEWARK FOR GOV. ROOSEVELT

New York, Oct. 23.—[Special.]—Alfred E. Smith will make his first campaign speech tomorrow night in which national issues will be his principal theme, when he speaks at the armory in Newark.

In his speech at Tammany Hall recently he devoted little time to national issues, he said, because he intended to speak over a nation-wide network in Newark. His speech there tomorrow, his advisers said, will be almost completely on that topic, but further than that they would not say what specific issues the party nominee in 1928 would discuss.

Democratic leaders have counted on the influence of Mr. Smith to swing the New England states and New Jersey into line after a lagging of Roosevelt sentiment in those areas.

COLONEL FOUND SLAIN; WOUNDED WIFE BESIDE HIM

Seattle, Wash., Oct. 23.—(AP)—A woman who identified herself as the wife of Col. William M. Inglis, 58, world war veteran prominent in Republican state politics, declared today he had shot her and then killed himself in his apartment last night because he was "dissatisfied" with life.

The woman, known as Miss Mary C. Nash, a government employé, was at a hospital in a critical condition with two bullet wounds. The body of Inglis was found sprawled across a bed with a bullet wound in the head.

Says Wedding Was Secret.

She said she and Inglis had been married recently in Portland, but had kept their wedding secret because she was employed by Inglis in the United States veterans' bureau.

Telling of the tragedy, she said Col. Inglis Saturday morning had declared he was "dissatisfied with life," and remarked to her:

"I can't go on this way."

Col. Inglis had been drinking heavily several days, she said, and last night, without warning, he fired twice at her and she sank to the floor. Then, she said, he turned the weapon on himself and fired, falling lifeless on the bed.

Coroner Withholds Opinion.

Coroner's deputies said Inglis had been killed by a bullet which entered his head behind the right ear. Deputy Coroner Carl Keyes declined to render an opinion until further study of the case.

Aside from the bullet wound, police said, the body bore bloody finger marks on the throat and was marked by flesh bruises.

Inglis and the woman had been living together at the apartment the last three years as man and wife, J. A. Mikel, the apartment manager, told authorities.

SEVEN AURORANS, 90 OR OVER, WILL VOTE FOR HOOVER

Seven Aurora residents whose average age is 92½ years and whose combined ages total 648 years, pledged their votes yesterday to President Hoover in the November election. All are dyed in the wool Republicans, and several of them voted for Lincoln.

I. S. Dunning, 93 years old, Aurora's oldest resident, has voted for every Republican presidential candidate since Fremont lost to Buchanan in 1856. Bert Wilder, 97 years old, also voted for Fremont. Preston McDole, 93 years old, whose father, Rodney McDole worked with Lincoln as a surveyor at Salem in 1835, has voted the Republican ticket for the last 70 years with the exception of 1928.

The other old time Republicans who intend to vote for Hoover are Henry R. Tanner, J. M. Kennedy, Dan A. Wedge, and Gerry Walker. Each is 90 years old. Tanner, Kennedy and Wedge voted for Lincoln in 1864. Walker cast his first vote for Grant in 1868.

ROBBERS RAID THREE OUTLYING MOVIE THEATERS

Bandits held up three movie houses in the outlying districts last night, getting total loot of $220.

Three men menaced Miss Dorothy Romaine, 21 years old, 3433 West 12th place, cashier of the Hamlin theater at 3326 Madison street, and robbed her of $50. She tried to save most of the money by handing over only $10, but at the gunmen's insistence she surrendered the rest.

Shortly afterward two robbers held up Miss Ruth Medwedon, 22 years old, cashier of the Lindy theater at 1710 Madison street, and got $25. About the same time another pair of gunmen threatened Gust Economy, owner of the Grand theater, 1825 South Crawford avenue, and forced him to give up $145.

PLEA FOR BONUS RAISES ISSUE OF CASUALTY TOTAL

Washington, D. C., Oct. 23.—[Special.]—With the payment of the bonus one of the major campaign issues, the question is being raised as to how many of the veterans now demanding their bonus money actually suffered from a casualty received in action during the war. An accompanying table records the casualties by divisions.

According to the records of the war department the total casualties of the A. E. F. amounted to 244,086 out of some four million men in the army. Of these, 37,541 were killed in action, 12,934 died of wounds, and 193,611 were wounded.

Approximately 125,000 Die.

The total number of lives lost in the army and navy from battle casualties, disease, and accident was approximately 125,000 out of a total of some 4,800,000 men under arms.

Battle casualties in the A. E. F. were concentrated in a limited number of divisions. Official records credit 29 divisions in all with having served at the front. Three of these are listed as having served in quiet sectors, leaving 26 which saw active combat. Units of 5 other divisions and numerous nondivisional units also got into battle.

Second Division Hard Hit.

In total casualities the 2d division, counting marine corps personnel, with 23,094, suffered the largest number. Next came the 1st division with 22,320 casualties, and then, in the order named, the 3d, 42d, 28th, 26th, 4th, and 77th, all of which suffered casualties of more than 10,000.

Bragite, a New Mineral, Discovered by Using X-Ray

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Oct. 23.—The first new mineral to be discovered by X-ray methods of investigation has been identified at the Natural History museum here among a series of minute crystals from the Transvaal. Its principal constituents are platinum and palladium. It has been named Bragite in honor of Sir William Bragg, president of the Royal institution, whose researches on the structure of crystals won him the Nobal prize.

The union government and the German government agreed to apply the amendments tomorrow. This application will be provisional pending ratification.

3 NAVY OFFICERS PICKED UP FROM CRIPPLED BOAT

ANTWERP, Belgium, Oct. 23.—(AP)—After being tossed helplessly for two and a half days in a small sailing boat during a storm on the North sea, three British naval officers finally were rescued by the steamer Romanby which brought theme here today. The trio, Lieuts Colin McMullen, C. E. Kays, and G. F. Blaxland, left Havre, France, Wednesday in the Little Owl, accompanied by a yacht, the Wallop.

A violent storm separated the boats, the Wallop being rescued while the Little Owl lost its masts and sails, as well as the officers' instruments, in the tempest. The sturdy shell, however, rode out the gale.

On Saturday the sea was comparatively calm and the three men sighted the Romanby bound for Antwerp. They fired the last cartridges in a weapon, but it failed to attract the attention of the big ship. In despair and almost exhausted, the three began shouting in unison and the cries were heard. The Romanby was carrying grain to Antwerp from the Black sea.

FARM VOTE POLL BY FARM PAPER GOES 'ROOSEVELT'

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 23.—[Special.]—Basing its conclusion on a straw vote, the Farm Journal declared today that "the farm vote that went to elect President Hoover in 1928 has actually swung to the Democratic party, except in a limited territory in the northeastern states."

The Farm Journal explained that the vote was taken among farmers only, principally by a personal canvass. The total poll so far is Roosevelt, 25,103; Hoover, 13,744.

HOOVER VICTORY WILL AID TRADE, SAYS SARGENT

Rail President Stresses Danger of a Change.

F. W. SARGENT.

In a statement issued through the Republican national committee headquarters yesterday Fred W. Sargent, president of the Chicago and North Western railroad, urged the reelection of President Hoover because, he said, tax relief is "more probable" through him than through any other candidate.

"Personally, I fell that we are on the uptrend," the statement read, "that the worst of the depression is over, that the constructive policies now inaugurated will gradually but surely show results with each passing month.

"The important thing now is to hold fast to the constructive gains thus far made. I would fear that any change that might create a sense of uncertainty in the minds of business generally as to national policies would tend to slow up recovery, no matter how sound that proposed change might be.

State of Unrest.

"In other words, the great danger now is to create a state of unrest and uncertainty in the public mind as to what is next. If this comes about business will again slow up and mark time for at least another year, until new policies are established and business generally can know upon what it may depend.

"As chairman of the citizens' committee seeking to restore sound business methods in the Chicago and Cook county governments, no one can realize more thoroughly than I do the vital necessity of reorganizing our governmental methods and machinery and reducing taxes to a point more in keeping with the conditions we now face.

"We all believe, of course, in a strong federal government and that an economy program which would cripple its essential functions would be shortsighted. No sane man objects to a fair amount of taxation, but when the tax burden of our various governments—local, state, and national—reaches the point where taxes take one-quarter of the national income, then tax relief becomes the most important subject confronting us.

Lower Cost of Government.

"It is idle to think about lowering taxes without first lowering the cost of government. The single factor of greatest importance in the present political campaign is the question of lowering our governmental expenses and thereby easing the tax burden, and the question of paramount interest is: 'Who can lower operating costs and give us tax relief the quickest.'

"When business has to cut expenses the task is done from the inside by one who knows exactly what functions can be consolidated or dispensed with. Exactly the same thing is true in government. Tax relief is more probable through Mr. Hoover than through any other candidate.

"The time has come to drop politics in favor of economics. Mr. Hoover has a successful business career supplemented by twelve years in Washington, years during which he has made an intensive study of the problems of government. No living man knows so well as he does how the costs of government can be reduced. He has a definite plan for the elimination of unnecessary functions and the consolidation of work which will produce better results at less cost.

Risk of Making a Change.

"We can't afford to take the risk of making a change. The man who knows more than any one else about his tasks should be kept on the job. And we also should elect representatives and senators who will work with him and give him the necessary support to carry out his ideas.

"It is just good common sense to go ahead on the same track now that a clear right of way has been obtained and the business train is picking up speed.

"The Democratic candidate offers another track which he claims is better than our own. We have no proof of that fact. We cannot determine its truth without slowing down to switch over to his right of way. This is no time for slowing down."

The Palmer house headquarters also issued a summary of some of the messages it received commending President Hoover's speech at Detroit Saturday night. They included praise from Thomas E. Wilson, A. W. Shaw, Senator Simeon D. Fess and Miss Harriet Vittum.

"I was impressed," said Miss Vittum, "by his evident sincerity of purpose and the simplicity of his statement of problems, a statement made in such a way that everybody understood what he was talking about. Like his two recent speeches, his speech last night tended to strengthen the faith I have in the man."

Members of the Marine post of the American Legion, led by E. P. Dowling, commander, called yesterday at the home of Assistant State's Attorney C. Wayland Brooks, Republican nominee for state treasurer, and assured him of the support of the post. Mr. Brooks was three times commander of the post.

EX-GOV. DUNNE SHOWS WASTE IN SMALL'S REGIME

Compares Records; Asks Votes for Judge Horner.

E. F. DUNNE.

Former Gov. Edward F. Dunne in a statement issued yesterday compared the records of Probate Judge Henry F. Horner, Democratic nominee for governor, and Len Small, Republican nominee.

Mr. Dunne said he was prompted to appeal to the voters of Illinois because of the crisis that he said now confronts the state as the result of high taxes and intolerable prohibition legislation. The major issue in his opinion is contained in the figures showing that under Len Small as governor the costs of government were nearly four and one-half times the costs during the Dunne administration—1913-'17.

Debts and Taxes Mount.

"From Jan. 10, 1921, to Jan. 14, 1929, Len Small occupied the governor's chair," said the former governor, who also served as mayor of Chicago from 1905 to 1907 and who previously had been a circuit judge. "According to the 1931-'32 Illinois Blue Book, printed by authority of the state of Illinois, the receipts of the state treasury for the last four years of Gov. Small's administration were $356,738,650 and the disbursements, $348,502,396.

"By way of comparison the same records show that during the four fiscal years of my administration as governor the receipts were $97,948,186, while the disbursements were only 277,397,203, or twenty million dollars less than the receipts. When I left the governor's chair the population was 6,193,626. When Small retired the population was 7,396,000, a 20 per cent increase, compared to the tremendous increase in taxes and expenditures.

State Now Owes 217 Millions.

"And that is not the entire story. When I was governor the state of Illinois had not a dollar outstanding in interest bearing bonds or other promises to pay. Today the state owes in bonds and notes the enormous sum of $217,663,000, a great part of it authorized under Gov. Small's administrations, upon which the taxpayers are paying interest at the rate of 4 per cent, at least."

The good roads policy was begun under him and not Small, ex-Gov. Dunne asserted. He then discussed Small's record on prohibition, telling how a more stringent search and seizure act was passed in the first year of Small's term as governor.

"For nearly thirty years I have known the Democratic candidate for governor, Judge Henry Horner," Mr. Dunne continued. "He is a native son of Illinois, as was his father. He has had an irreproachable private life and proven public record of integrity and capacity.

"In particular, Judge Horner is known for his tender solicitude for the welfare of minors, orphans and wards of the court. Concerning the millions of dollars of legacies and trust funds, the disbursement of which was supervised by Henry Horner as judge of the Probate court, I have never heard one word of just complaint."

Other Democratic candidates also received commendations in statements issued yesterday at Democratic headquarters. Intensive organization work in behalf of the national, state, county and municipal court candidates is to start today at the call of Chairman P. A. Nash of the Democratic county central committee.

Precinct captains of wards 1 to 25 are to meet at 4 this afternoon in the Sherman hotel.

Independent organizations are giving much help, he said. An indorsement of Judge Horner was issued yesterday by the Union Labor club of Illinois, through Martin P. Durkin, vice president of the Chicago Building Trades council. This indorsement of Horner branded Small as "unfair to labor."

Organization of the "Nonpartisan Lawyers' Committee for Judge Otto Kerner for Attorney General," also was announced. Many prominent Republicans are on its roster.

Congressman William H. Dieterich, Democratic nominee for United States senator, spoke yesterday before the German-Austrian and German-Hungarian societies on prohibition repeal and economy in government.

RAIN DRENCHED HUNGER ARMY NEARING LONDON

Oxford Students Billet Lancashire Group.

LONDON, Oct. 23.—(AP)—Whipped by boisterous gales and drenched by incessant rain, hundreds of hunger marchers trudged along the roads of England today on the way to London.

Fifty sympathetic Oxford undergraduates tried to make the week-end comfortable for 230 of the marchers from Lancashire, who arrived Saturday night. They were given billets and a dozen doctors treated them for wounds suffered when they clashed Friday with the authorities at Stratford-on-Avon.

Today was the first day of rest these men had enjoyed since leaving Lancashire nineteen days ago. Members of the University Labor club and undergraduates not connected with any political organization worked in field kitchens all day long while the marchers overhauled their kits before blazing fires.

Oxford Jobless Join March.

Reinforced by a group of Oxford unemployed, the Lancashire contingent will start tomorrow for High Wycombe.

Thirty-eight women marchers, who had expected this evening to reach Leighton Buzzard from Wolverton, were stormbound at Bletchley. Only two of this group reached their objective. The others, after plodding several hours through torrential rain, halted at Bletchley and were given refuge in the workhouse. They will push on to Luton tomorrow.

Another contingent arrived tonight at Braintree, Essex, after a march from Colchester. The Braintree Labor club distributed dry clothes among them and the local coöperative society provided food and some cash. Twenty Braintree men will join the parade in the morning and when this group reaches London Thursday it is expected to number 300.

The Unitarian church at Chatham tonight looked like a wartime barracks. About 150 marchers from Dover and Canterbury and other parts of Kent were housed there.

The vestry was used as a quartermaster's store for issuing clothing. The marchers slept on the church floor under blankets furnished by residents of the city.

A column from Yorkshire, numbering 150, bivouacked at Bedford after nine hours of trudging through the downpour They were singing cheerily when they arrived.

Attract Crowds

One of the exhibits which drew particular attention was a collection of orchids. Brisk, sunny autumn weather lured many visitors to all the parks of the city, attendants reported.

CURTIS IN CITY, SAYS G. O. P. WILL SWEEP COUNTRY

Vice President Charles Curtis was in Chicago yesterday in a pause during his western speaking tour. He was greeted by his son, Attorney Harry K. Curtis of Chicago. After a conference with Republican campaign leaders in the Palmer house, he left for Michigan where he will make three speeches.

"I am confident we will sweep the country," Vice President Curtis said. "During my tour I have spoken to large enthusiastic audiences. I am pleased at the way I have been received. The crowds have been much larger than in 1928."

The Vice President will speak today at Flint, Mich. Tomorrow he will speak at Lansing and Kalamazoo. In Ohio, he will speak at Lima Wednesday; Mount Vernon Thursday, Canton Friday and Ashtabula Saturday.

SONSTEBY ASKS VOTES FOR COURT ACT AMENDMENT

Says Change Would Save $100,000 Yearly.

Chief Justice John J. Sonsteby of the Municipal court yesterday issued an explanation of the proposed amendments to the Municipal court act which are to be submitted to the voters at the Nov. 8 election upon a small ballot. The chief justice urged that the amendments be approved.

JUDGE SONSTEBY.

"The adoption of the amendments will decrease by over $100,000 a year the cost to the taxpayers of Chicago of operating the Municipal courts," Judge Sonsteby declared. "Because the proposition is on a separate ballot and needs the affirmative vote of a majority of the votes cast on the question, it is important that the voters realize the solid worth of the amendments."

New Rules to Save Labor.

Among the amendments is one making more clear the power of the Municipal court judges to adopt rules of practice. "If the amendment is approved," Judge Sonsteby said, "a complete code of new rules will be adopted. These rules, he said, will facilitate the transaction of court business and cut down much unnecessary labor and expense."

Another amendment provides that the fees of jurors serving in the Municipal court shall be paid out of the county treasury instead of the city treasury.

"The taxpayers of Chicago have been unjustly subjected to a greater burden of expense in the operation of the Municipal court than should have been imposed upon them," said the chief justice.

"But for the creation of the Municipal court, nine-tenths of the work it now performs would have been imposed upon the Circuit, Criminal and Superior courts, thus necessitating a large additional expense to be paid out of the county treasury."

New Fee System Needed.

Another important amendment, the chief justice said, would authorize the city council, by a two-thirds vote, upon the recommendation of two-thirds of the Municipal court judges, to make changes in filing costs and other similar matters.

Another amendment provides that no Municipal court judge shall, during his term of office, either directly or indirectly, engage in the practice of law or act as a member of any political party committee concerned with the nomination of candidates for any public office.

"Other amendments are designed to change provisions of the act which have been criticized as unconstitutional," Judge Sonsteby declared. "There are no provisions in the amendments which will in any manner increase the compensation of any of the judges or other officers of the court, or in any way add to the expense of its operation."

ROME, Oct. 23.—(AP)—Winemakers of 26 nations met today to begin a week's international congress which they hope will revive their business. The Italian minister of agriculture, Baron Acerbo, presided.

The United States was in the thoughts of many delegates. One of the subjects for discussion was "A project for dividing consumers' markets by reciprocal agreements among producing countries and for conquering new markets where wine has been hitherto unknown or obtainable with difficulty."

An "exaltation" of wine will be held Tuesday night at the Augusteo, once a Roman theater, with recitals and declamations in honor of the grape. This is the first international winemakers' congress held since the Barcelona meeting in 1929.

TWO CHICAGOANS RUN FOR CLERK OF SUPREME COURT

Both Nominees Veteran Office Holders.

The candidates presented by the two major parties for clerk of the Illinois Supreme court are veterans in public office. Charles M. Vail, the Republican incumbent, is a candidate for reelection, and Adam F. Bloch, chosen by the Democrats, has for several years been chief clerk in the office of the Cook county recorder of deeds, Clayton F. Smith.

Mr. Bloch is a native Chicagoan, having been born here in 1884. He received his education in the public schools and college, graduating with the bachelor of art degree, after which he did graduate work in literature, science and education. He lives at 3445 Luella avenue with his wife and two children. In business he is connected with the Polonia Publishing company.

Mr. Vail is a veteran in politics. He has served in the job for which he is a candidate for reelection since 1914, or for three terms.

Mr. Vail was born on a farm near Fairbury, Ill. During his long political career he has been a member of the managing committee of the Republican committee in Cook county several times as well as of the Republican state central committee. In 1904 he was elected clerk of the Superior court of Cook county. He has been a delegate to Republican national conventions. He lives at 6400 Normal boulevard.

IRISH BOYCOTT OF BRITISH GOODS SPREADS TO ALE

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

DUBLIN, Oct. 23. — Organized boycotts of certain British products are the latest developments in the Anglo-Irish economic war. During the next fortnight British beer and candy will be singled out for attack.

"No British ales—no British sweets or chocolates," reads an advertisement plastered on Dublin billboards today. "No British goods of any sort. Shoulder to shoulder for a nation-wide boycott of British goods. Fling back the challenge of the robber empire."

A campaign is being organized by the "Boycott the British League," which canvasses Dublin stores and in some cases is alleged to have threatened shopkeepers with intimidation if they sell British products.

FUN AND MUSIC ARRANGED FOR COOKERY SCHOOL

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

The second annual CHICAGO TRIBUNE School of Cookery will open at 1 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in the Trianon ballroom, 6201 Cottage Grove avenue.

The first week's sessions for south side residents will be held on four consecutive days, beginning tomorrow, and will be followed by a similar school beginning Nov. 1, in Guyon's Paradise ballroom on the west side. The third school, for the north side, will open Nov. 8, in the Aragon ballroom.

Along with Mrs. Ida M. Chitwood, nationally recognized home economist and food authority, and mary Meade, TRIBUNE cooking editor, who will reveal the secrets of Irish stew and corn muffins, there will be a brilliant troupe of song and dance artists and stage celebrities to season the recipes with music and jests. Working on the theory that food and entertainment go hand in hand, Phil Maxwell, master of ceremonies, has scheduled a program of music and fun that insures the cooking school rolling off with pep and dash from the first curtain to the last.

De Wolfe Hopper to Be There.

DeWolf Hopper, 70 year old veteran of the stage, will be there tomorrow afternoon. He's refused to do "Casey at the Bat," but to judge by the requests already pouring in for the old old favorite, he may have to reconsider. And if Mr. Hopper does, it may be Bob Elson will introduce him with a few comments on the Mudville "nine." For Mr. Elson, famous sports announcer from W-G-N, who recently added several feathers to his cap with his broadcasts of the world series, has promised to be on hand.

Mrs. Hopper, or Lillian Glaser as she is perhaps better known, who is playing now with Mr. Hopper in "The Mikado" at the Chicago Woman's club theater, will be another celebrity at the Trianon tomorrow afternoon. On Thursday one of the big attractions will be Tom Powers and Laura Straub, stars of "Another Language" now playing at the Harris theater.

Then there's Donald Meek, who takes the part of Vice President Alexander Throttlebottom in the current hit "Of Thee I Sing" at the Grand Opera house. He's promised to be at the cooking school Friday afternoon.

Wendell Hall, the "Red Headed Music Maker," heads the list of vocal artists who will appear. Thousands still clamor for this pioneer radio artist's interpretation of "It Ain't Gonna Rain No Mo'." At present Mr. Hall is presenting five programs of old and new songs every week over station W-I-B-O.

Cooking School Sweethearts.

On the song bill tomorrow afternoon are Henry Phillips and Ruth Streeter the cooking school sweethearts, and Kathryn Witwer, lyric soprano. It was during the intermissions of the cooking school last year that the romance budded that made Miss Streeter Mrs. Henry Phillips. Sophie Paske, acclaimed the "best woman singer in Chicagoland" at the 1931 Chicagoland Music Festival, and Anita Hall, soprano artist, will sing Wednesday afternoon.

Along with Miss Annette Thorn, Music Festival winner, Eleanor Sue Wimp, mezzo soprano, will appear on the program Thursday. Mark Fisher singer and director of the Edgewater Beach hotel orchestra also will be on hand Friday afternoon. Olive O'Neil, soprano, will appear with Mr. Fisher. Another artist on Friday's program will be Agatha Lewis, judged the best soprano in Chicago at the first music festival in 1930. Miss Lewis has appeared on several occasions with the Chicago Symphony orchestra.

From the ranks of radio the south side cooking school will also draw Happy Hank Harrington, beloved for his poems and homely bits of philosophy. Happy Hank's programs are heard at 11 every morning over THE TRIBUNE station W-G-N.

Studios Supply Dancers.

The dance novelties on each day's program will be furnished by the pupils of such well known schools as the Ethel and Gertrude Morgan, Schultz, and Murray Browne dance studios. On the final day of the south side school the Cecil Barnett dancers from the Chicago Musical college will present several numbers.

With all the artists scheduled to appear the 5,000 and more housewives who will trip into the Trianon four afternoons this week will also have a part in the programs. They will have a chance to sing some of the old time favorites.

For leaders of the community singing Mr. Maxwell has obtained four recognized directors: Frank Bennett, who as leader of the Allerton Glee club took honors at the Chicagoland Music Festival; Carl Craven, noted vocal teacher and singer; Edward Clissold, who incidenetally is the editor of a bakers' journal, and Noble Cain, choral conductor of the music festival and director of the Chicago a Cappella choir. The accompanists will be Cathryn Bennett, Bobby Bloom, and Philip Warner.

WILL SING AT COOKING SCHOOL

Miss Annette Thorn, who was chosen "the best woman singer" on the south side in the Chicagoland Music Festival contest, will also sing at the cooking school in the Trianon.

Olive O'Neil, soprano soloist with Mark Fisher's orchestra, who will sing Friday afternoon at the Chicago Tribune School of Cookery at the Trianon.

BOGAN TO CALL SCHOOL HEADS IN BOMB QUIZ

Will Seek Information on Other Threats.

Superintendent of Schools William J. Bogan, convinced that the bombing of his home Saturday morning was the work of racketeers seeking to drive school-operated cafeterias out of business, announced last night that principals of all Chicago schools would be called to his office this morning and asked how many of them have received threats of a similar nature.

At least two principals are known to have received such threats. One of them, John W. Bell, principal of Amundsen Junior High school, received a telephone call 10 minutes after a small bomb was exploded outside the Bogan home at 741 Gordon terrace. He was warned to "lay off the cafeterias."

Report New Threat.

Another threat was reported by James T. Gaffney, principal of Roosevelt High school. He informed Capt. Dennis Malloy of the Town Hall police, that he had received a threatening letter, which he believes came from the owner of some neighborhood sweet shop or lunchroom, who objected to the competition of the school cafeteria. A police guard was placed at his home at 4422 Malden avenue, as well as at the Bogan and Bell homes.

"I believe that the bomb was motivated by those opposed to school lunch rooms," said Supt. Bogan. "The first warning was enough to convince me.

"If any doubt remained, it was removed when Mr. Bell received the telephone call 10 minutes after the bomb went off, telling him, 'We just got your friend, Bogan. You'd better lay off the cafeterias or we'll get you.'"

The "first warning" to which Mr. Bogan referred was a threatening note, tied to a piece of concrete and thrown on his front porch two weeks ago.

Penny Lunchrooms New.

"The cafeterias have been connected with high schools for thirty years," Supt. Bogan continued. "About six years ago under Supt. William McAndrew the junior high schools were organized and cafeterias were installed in them. The penny lunch in the elementary schools is of comparatively recent origin.

"When I was principal at Lane High school some years ago we could accommodate only one-third of the pupils at the lunchroom. The places that took care of the balance needed constant supervision. Drinking, dice shooting and other evils made it necessary for me to stage occasional raids with police squads on the places frequented by the students.

"When the junior high schools were organized more care was necessary in looking after these sixth and seventh grade pupils because of their immaturity. We adopted the rule of refusing them permission to leave the grounds for lunch without written permission from parents. The school restaurants were and are of great help in keeping the students out of bad places.

Schools There First.

"Most of the restaurants near these high schools were established long after the high schools were built. The owners knew at the time of the school cafeteria and could not have expected school patrons. Some might have been induced to buy these places under false pretenses and in the belief they would feed the pupils.

"I expect to confer today with the assistant superintendents and principals. I didn't plan a meetin , but will probably talk to them singly because some might make statements to me they wouldn't care to make in a meeting. Perhaps in this way we can discover instigators of the threats."

Supt. Bogan and Assistant State's Attorney Thomas Johnson Jr. said they do not believe the Associated Retailers of Chicago was responsible as an organization for the campaign against the school lunchrooms, although individual members might have undertaken to terrorize and intimidate school officials. Assistant State's Attorney Harry S. Ditchburne and Prosecutor Johnson questioned Martin J. Wolf, president of the association, which has about 150 members, and H. E. Kallis, former secretary. No suspicion attached to these men, they said.

The dead are William A. Dallmyer of Jefferson City, Mo., sophomore at Princeton university; William V. Miller of Bayside, Long Island, a former Brown university student, and Julia Waters of Great Neck, Long Island.

FIND 3 SLAIN IN CHARRED RUINS OF FARM HOUSE

Bloomfield, Ky., Oct. 23.—(AP)—Three persons, an aged couple and an unidentified white man, were found shot to death early today in the charred ruins of a farm house on the Lawrenceburg pike eight miles from here. Authorities expressed belief, pending a further incestigation, that robbery was the cause of the shootings.

The bodies of Mr. and Mrs. Bud Ingram, each about 70 years old, and the unidentified man were found by neighbors attracted to the home by a fire. The bodies of Ingram and his wife, known as recluses and said to have recently drawn $8,000 from a bank, were side by side in one room apparently the bedroom. Beside them was a pistol from which one shot had been fired.

In another room, in front of an open door leading into the bedroom was the body of the other man. A pistol also was found beside him and authorities said two shots had been fired from it. All three of the victims had been shot in the head.

OPERA STAR SUES DAUGHTER FOR USING HER NAME

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

STUTTGART, Germany, Oct. 23.—Because she felt that her professional name was being degraded, Ida Russka, the prima donna, has brought suit seeking an injunction to prevent her cabaret singing daughter from using the name of "Russka."

The daughter in her answer alleges that until she was 17 years old she was not certain what her family name really was. Her first name, she said, was Mady. The mother maintains her daughter's rightful name is "Mueller."

Further, the daughter maintains that her mother, after having failed to provide the training which would have made her capable of worthy artistic efforts, now wishes to deprive her of the advantage of a distinctive and well known name.

SWANSON TO ASK INDICTMENTS IN NEW BANK CASES

Finishes Inquiry Into 3 Outlying Institutions.

State's Attorney Swanson yesterday announced that his special banking staff in charge of Prosecutor Henry Ayers is ready to renew the campaign against bankers whose alleged acts brought about the closing of many institutions within the last two years. Further indictments, the prosecutor said, will be sought before the grand jury within a few days.

"We have just about completed our investigations of three large outlying banks which failed," said Mr. Swanson. "We should get ready for grand jury presentation of that evidence within a short time.

"I cannot divulge our evidence at this time, but when we get into certain matters before the grand jury some interesting and sensational facts should be developed if our information is correct."

Bain Case Up Today.

The prosecutor said he is ready to bring the Bains to trial again and will insist that there be no further delay when the case is called before Chief Justice John Prystalski of the Criminal court. John Bain, the head of the chain of twelve defunct banks, was convicted in a trial without a jury in Judge John M. O'Connor's court, some months ago. However, Prosecutor Swanson said he was not satisfied with the outcome of that case because Bain's sons and son-in-law, co-defendants, escaped with fines. Bain is under a 1 to 5 year sentence for conspiracy.

It was reported in the Criminal court that Bain will come into court today and ask for the services of Public Defender Benjamin Bachrach, pleading that he is penniless and unable to hire private counsel. This would necessitate a continuance if the request is made and granted in order to permit the public defender to familiarize himself with the case.

Judge Prystalski has expressed himself in the past as being opposed to the use of the public defender by persons charged with crime, who are able to furnish bail. Bain is at liberty on bond while his other conviction is being appealed.

Staff Ready for Trial.

"We are ready for trial in all the pending bank cases," said Prosecutor Swanson. "I have instructed my assistants to insist on the trial of cases which were delayed over the vacation months."

The prosecutor at the same time issued a statement outlining what his office has accomplished in the way of prosecutions and recovery of money for depositors since Jan. 1, 1929, a period during which 160 banks closed in Chicago and Cook county. His statement pointed out that more than $3,000,000 has been collected for depositors through the extra legal department set up in his office.

"The state's attorney's office has to date examined 73 institutions and work in examining the books and records in the remaining closed banks is progressing as rapidly as time and the available bank staff of the state's attorney's office will permit," said the statement.

Convictions, he said, have already been obtained against officials in the Citizens State bank of Melrose Park, the Roosevelt-Bankers State bank, Peoples State bank of Maywood, Exchange State bank, Laramie State bank, Peoples and Merchants State bank of Park Ridge, Bain banks, Stockmen's Trust and Savings bank and the Tarnow Building and Loan.

Two officials of the Millard State bank are now on trial before Judge Philip L. Sullivan. This trial will be resumed today.

KILLS FATHER, MOTHER, TWO SISTERS AND SELF

Colorado Springs, Colo., Oct. 23.—(AP)—Theodore Gilberg, 25 years old, a shoe repairman, in what authorities termed a sudden fit of insanity, shot and killed his father, mother, and two sisters and then committed suicide at his home here today.

The youth killed his father, Frank Gilberg, 65 years old, and his two sisters, Mrs. Eaada Stauffer, 30 years old, and Bertha Gilberg, 13 years old, with a rifle as they slept, the latter two dying instantly and the father two hours later.

Gilberg shot his mother as she was preparing breakfast, the bullet going through her head. He then took his money and insurance papers to a next door neighbor and told them he was going away, but returned home and killed himself.

Police said the youth had been goaded into desperation by his ill and partly mentally unbalanced father.

INSULL WANDERS AMONG RUINS OF ANCIENT CORINTH

Returns to Athens Tired and Hungry.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Copyright: 1932: By The Chicago Tribune.]

ATHENS, Greece, Oct. 23.—Samuel Insull went on an archeological excursion today, the third Sunday he has whiled away here in the city of Pericles. The fallen utilities emperor bumped over the rough ground from Athens to see Corinth, ancient commercial city on the isthmus, which did a flourishing business 3,000 years ago. This fact, not the ruins, seemed to interest Insull the most.

Corinth was destroyed by an earthquake four years ago and today it looks like a mining camp in the Rockies. Insull inquired about the reconstruction of the new city and then visited the old city of Corinth, located on a hill farther inland and overlooking the magnificent Gulf of Corinth.

Bible Chapter Is Read.

Here he walked through the fallen columns of pagan temples and mouldering stones while one of his guests read a chapter from St. Paul's epistle to the Corinthians from a newly purchased Bible.

In old Corinth Insull found a museum erected by a Chicagoan. In this museum are placed discoveries of the American School of Classical Studies which directed the work of excavation. Insull said he was greatly impressed.

The 73 year old fugitive, who is under indictment in Chicago for larceny and embezzlement, appeared exhausted when he returned to the Greek capital late this evening, complaining because he could not get any dinner until 8:30 o'clock.

Two detectives accompanied Insull on the excursion.

Report U. S. Acts on Visa.

ISTANBUL, Turkey, Oct. 23.—(AP)—The American embassy has asked the Turkish government to refuse a visa for Samuel Insull, utilities magnate wanted in Chicago on embezzlement charges, it was unofficially learned today.

Falls While Trying to Land Fish and Is Drowned

GREEK LEAGUE HOLDS RALLY FOR SWANSON

State's Attorney Swanson was the principal guest at a banquet rally held last night by the Greek-American Republican League of Illinois, where he discussed his efforts for the extradition and prosecution of Samuel and Martin Insull. With its membership of 1,000 the league went on record for the reelection of Mr. Swanson.

"Reports coming to us from Greece are that Samuel Insull is considerably worried and no longer believes his efforts to escape extradition will avail," Prosecutor Swanson told his audience.

"While I have no personal feeling against Insull, I feel that I must do my duty as prosecuting officer of this county. I feel that the nation needs a practical demonstration of the fact that there are no financial dictators beyond the reach of the law honestly administered."

Assistant State's Attorneys John Hampton and John O'Hora worked all day yesterday putting the finishing touches on three sets of depositions which will be sworn to before Chief Justice John Prystalski of the Criminal court today in the legal fight to extradite Samuel Insull from Greece. The prosecutors said they would take the documents to Springfield tomorrow for approval by Gov. Emmerson, and then to Washington. They hope to get a presidential warrant for Insull's return before the end of the week.

'Sunday Fishing Boat' Has Accident; Four Injured

New York, Oct. 23.—(Special.)—Four men were burned today when the engine of a converted submarine chaser—now a utilitarian fishing boat—blew up in Long Island sound. There were 50 passengers aboard at the time. These became a little excited, but there was no panic and none of them were hurt. They were, however, taken off their own boat to another. The converted chaser each Sunday goes out with fishing parties from Glasson Point.

Natives Absorb Culture of Holland.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BATAVIA, Java, Sept. 6.—[By Mail.]—Java, with its forty million population in an area about the size of New York state, looks from the air as though some kindly giant had reached down from the skies and arranged a doll's house or a model village for the children of this tropical world to play in. All the little tile roofed houses are just the same, set in little groves of toy trees, and all the little villages are neat and orderly.

It is a land of 2,000 villages and a million gardens, where every square inch is in use. Abroad it is regarded as a land of economic slavery and starvation wages. They get more sugar here out of an acre than in any other field under the sun, and so they are a menace to the Philippines, to Hawaii and to Cuba. And how Australia scorns their basic wage of 14 cents a day. The white sugar growers of Queensland simply could not live under such conditions.

A Problem of Relativity.

It is a problem of relativity. On close inspection these Javanese look as healthy and contented as the Australians or the Filipinos who do the same sort of work. The women are plump cheeked and graceful. With what grace they move across the meadow in the early morning, carrying pitchers to the nearest stream or well, just as the women in the Bible pictures. Their feet have never known the prison of shoes. They wear a single piece cotton garment and bathe in public with the utmost modesty. Usually they have a nearly naked child swung across their hips in a sarong.

These people are up before the dawn. They are mostly individual farmers, not slaves herded to work. They look over their own rice patch. Their irrigation works, leading water along steep hillsides into terraced gardens, are marvels of skill and planning. Their work animal and family friend is the water buffalo.

Carry Own Produce to Market.

Out of the gardens come not only their own living but produce for the cities. While the earth is still cool to their feet they are on their way to market, carrying burdens swung over their shoulders balanced on long supple poles. And such burdens! The city man nourished on roast beef, white bread and butter, things these people never see, would faint under such a cross. These lean, lithe bodies, corded with muscles, yet well nourished, naked to the waist, go on mile after mile. Even the children carry head burdens. And all on five cents worth of fish and rice cake a day as a minimum. A little tobacco, perhaps, but no alcohol.

On this base the Dutch have reared a very comfortable civilization for themselves. They have been here 300 years and the old conqueror and taxation without representation idea has been abandoned long ago. The Volksraad, or legislative council, has now as many natives on it as Dutch. Recently they voted down the government's budget, necessitating an amended one. They are carrying on public health work, extending education as fast as revenues allow, encouraging regular farming, bringing up a class of mechanics, artisans and public servants. There are 2,000 public libraries.

Dutch Do It Differently.

Some day, perhaps, the Dutch will not be needed here, but the race that will take their place will be a brown Dutch race. This touches a profound distinction between the Dutch methods of colonization and the American and British.

Where the English planter in the Malaya country, planning to make his fortune and go home to marry, may take a native woman into his house a companion, leaving her with what seems to her a fortune and without loss of social prestige, but always leaving her behind some day, the Dutchman marries the woman and settles down to spend his life here and make things very comfortable for everybody.

He is a practical fellow and he shows the people how to do things in a better way, not as a lordly gesture, but as one who has a vital, life long issue at stake. He builds for permanancy, and the greatest permanancy is the brown child with the square jaw and the broad brow of the European, the smart looking Eurasian one sees everywhere in Java.

No Color Line.

The problem of the color line has never arisen here. It is the white, however, that will be washed out in time unless there are frequent new importations. The long, possessive, managerial nose of the northern European may be seen against the skin of fashionable sun tan shade and the brown eyes that are still gentle and trusting.

They come quickly into the western mode, the girls scorning the old fashioned knot for their long black hair, wearing a Dutch wave, and silk dresses and stockings instead of the gay cotton sarong. The boys put on white cotton suits, sport ties and felt hats.

It is the beginning of the same transformation that is taking place in the Philippines, but only a beginning. The Dutch are not forcing the flowering. They do not insist on education, a change in religion, or learning the Dutch language, although they care far more than the British in Malaya or Borneo seem to care about these things.

Homeland Ties Strong.

This tropical empire of theirs is not a thing to be ruthless and greedy about, nor one to be given up lightly. The ties are strong with the homeland, woven with strands of finance and trade. Big, luxurious Dutch liners weave a network among the islands, with the central spider back in Rotterdam. They sail in comfort, drinking appreciatively of strong home made gin, or Java beer, eating enormous meals, talking and laughing a lot, looking as fat and jovial as a Santa Claus.

And always there are the humble Javanese, coolies to wait on them, crouching in the halls of hotels and ships, padding about in bare feet with "chit" book in hand, ready to bring drinks, make beds, wait on table take care of children. A government clerk may have a half dozen servants at the price of one at home.

Canal Is Harnessed.

The canal is neatly harnessed in concrete, with stone steps leading at intervals to the water. Here at cool of day the Javanese women bring their family wash and the children, and make a great plunging and soaping and clothes beating around the foot of the steps. How one can get clean in dirty water is a problem that does not trouble them.

There are long trains of electric cars leading from the port to the city six miles away. This is not the jungle, but Oakland, or Jersey City. Taxicabs driven by young pirates in the velvet skull cap of the Mohammedan faith. Hotels of luxury, the cool, hard luxury of the tropics.

These are all on the cottage type, built around courts and compounds of deep shade, where bird song composes the orchestra, where spotted deer graze behind big paddocks. Three room suites, an outside sitting room, a bed room with deep high screened bed, and tiled bathroom. In the hallway outside a smiling Javanese room boy, barefooted and turbaned, crouches or sleeps, waiting for orders which he probably will not understand.

What a Breakfast!

Breakfast with seven kinds of meats and sausages, served cold with bread and butter, jam and coffee. This is Java and the coffee served here is a thick brown syrup mixed with hot milk.

Luncheon may consist of the favorite "rice table," which takes sixteen waiters bringing thirty-two kinds of vegetables, meat, fish and sauces. This is supposed to be washed down with beer.

Then a nap, for the day has become breathless and sticky. No one walks in the sun in the middle of the day. Even the natives curl up by the roadside or in the shade of buildings and sleep. The harder the bed the better.

It is not until 4 o'clock that the world begins to stir again. It is like a second dawn, with sleepy bird talk and little wandering fresh winds. The paper boy saunters along his route. He wears a skirtlike garment and velvet cap. The shop doors are unlocked and business begins again. The bells on the pony carts come to life. The deep dream that lies over the land is shaken off.

American Movies Present.

The evening work begins, to be followed by music and late dinner, more music, perhaps dancing. America is here with her film land unrealities, her crooners, educating this brown world, this exile world, just as it is bringing highly colored cheap romance into the slums of London, or Canton.

This Javanese world is no lotus eater's paradise, no south sea idyll. It is a smoothly working European civilization upon a tropical background. It is directed energy based upon an enormous necessity. That necessity is to live. The Dutch are showing them how to live better all the time.

These 40 million in Australia would make a different story there. The standard of "white Australia" stands in no immediate danger, however, from this population pressure, for there are plenty of outer islands in the Dutch group that are in need of colonization. The government has already sent out 20,000, but that is a drop in the ocean.

300,000 Workers Returned.

In the meantime, due to the shrinkage of the rubber trade, the closing down of 133 plantations, more than 300,000 contract Javanese have been brought home because there was no work in Sumatra for them. They have been reabsorbed without trouble. Where there is no poverty like things cannot get much worse, only better. The kindly giant takes care that there are no wars, no pestilence, no floods or droughts. The earth yields to labor, gives enough to her intimate sons and daughters, who stir with her stirring, laugh and drooze with her moods.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAMBURG, Germany, Oct. 23.—"The radio and tone film are annihilating all German dialects. We herewith demand that the low German dialect of Hamburg be taught in the public schools of this city." This resolution was circulated recently among teachers of the various public schools of Germany's second largest city, Hamburg, with the request that those who agreed with the sentiments expressed sign it. Of 2,230 teachers, more than 2,000 signed the paper.

GRAIN SHIP SINKS; HUDSON BAY PORT HAS A SETBACK

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

OTTAWA, Ont., Oct. 23.—When a grain laden vessel smacked its nose against an iceberg in Hudson straits and went to the bottom recently, America's most northerly seaport, Port Churchill on Hudson bay, received a black eye.

Canada had gambled to the extent of $54,000,000 on the navigability of her subarctic water route, and the dominion government had just succeeded in convincing the shipping insurance underwriters that no special dangers attached to the Hudson bay water route and that they could cut insurance rates materially.

The whole Hudson bay railway venture, together with its costly terminal and port facilities, is generally regarded by politically versed Canadians as a white elephant born of political exigencies.

Both Parties Responsible.

The Canadian middle west had wanted a Hudson bay railway and port for decades and a few years ago when the political balance as between Liberals and Conservatives was finely proportioned both parties vied with each other in their support of the demand. Thirty or forty political constituencies west of the head of the lakes would throw their support to the party most strongly advocating construction of the railway.

Present day responsibility rests evenly upon both Canadian political parties, for both, alternately in power, pushed the project to completion. There was a $6,000,000 blunder connected with the earlier selection of Port Nelson as the railway terminus. Charles Dunning, as minister of railways in the old Mackenzie King government, found that the peculiar nature of the sub-soil at this point precluded successful dredging. So with $6,000,000 already spent trying to develop Port Nelson, this site was abandoned for Churchill.

Has Fair First Year.

Government statistics for the present grain shipping season show that the new port of Churchill has been active to the extent of 1,387,713 bushels of grain shipped out. This looks fairly impressive for its first year of operation alongside of Montreal's 16,814,072 and Vancouver's 4,710,266 bushels. But it does not constitute a fair commercial comparison, for the government in its efforts to establish Churchill, has been carrying the grain free of elevator and other usually incidental costs at the new port.

About six European freighters, each taking away about 250,000 bushels, have called at Churchill this year and taken out grain cargoes.

QUIZ GEM THIEF AS LINDBERGH KIDNAP SUSPECT

New York, Oct. 23.—[Special.]—Despite an alibi provided by Otto Reuter, his elderly farm companion, Dapper Arthur Barry, master jewel thief, tonight at Newark police headquarters began the ordeal of a scheduled six day grilling on the Lindbergh baby kidnaping.

After the college bred international crook had voluntarily revealed more than police had hoped for concerning his famous jewel robberies, Acting Deputy Chief of Police John Heller led him into a discussion of woodworking. The detective swung the conversation to the subject of ladders and their construction.

A ladder played an important part in the abduction of Charles Augustus Lindbergh Jr., and Barry knows about ladders through his second story work on millionaire's homes. Heller was merely paving the way for Barry's forthcoming inquisition at the hands of state, county and federal officers, it was admitted at Newark headquarters.

Before the shrewdest jewel thief of his day is cleared of the stigma of baby killer, he will be confronted by every individual who figured in the crime or its attempted solution, authorities said.

Barry, who shot his way out of Auburn prison during the riot there in July, 1929, was captured last night on a farm near Newton, N. J.

YEAR OLD BABY SCALDED, DIES.

Mrs. Hannah Zelowski, 39 years old, 1734 Wabansia avenue, was wounded in the right foot last night in a mysterious shooting as she alighted from the automobile of Frank Papish in front of the Papish Candy store at 1460 Walton street. She was taken to Dr. M. S. Corbett's Emergency hospital at 1330 Lake street by Mrs. Marie Polowski, daughter of Papish.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Oct. 23.—The population of Berlin has decreased by 50,000 in the last year, according to an official report. Germany's capital city now totals 4,250,000. The decrease is attributed to a lowered birth rate, an increased death rate, and a larger exodus of former residents.

URGES MEDICAL ADVERTISING TO EDUCATE PUBLIC

Health Teaching Needed, Says Dr. M. M. Davis.

A recommendation that the medical profession use modern methods of publicity to educate the public on health matters is made by Dr. Michael M. Davis, medical director of the Julius Rosenwald fund, in a report which was issued by the fund yesterday on advertising by various medical groups.

Dr. Davis draws a sharp distinction between modern medical advertising and quack advertising, holding that the former is for public health betterment and the latter purely for financial gain. He declares that existing differences between the organized medical profession and publishers over medical advertising are due to lack of understanding of each other's standards.

Health Education Important.

"The education of the public in health matters and the extension of services which are essential to prevent or control diseases dangerous to the public health have become highly important," says Dr. Davis. "Policies and principles should be developed which will facilitate the use of modern methods of publicity for these purposes while also protecting professional standards.

"It is essential to draw the distinction between advertising for public health and advertising conducted with the aim of financial profit. Medical organizations whose codes of ethics now recognize public health advertising in principle should develop more specific policies appropriate to this field and discriminate these from the policies applicable to individual physicians and to advertising for commercial purposes.

Urges Better Understanding.

"The organized medical profession on the one side, and editors, publishers and advertising agencies on the other, do not appear to have come into sufficient touch with one another to recognize each other's standards and attitudes. The publishing group seems to have regarded the medical code as unduly emphasizing the individual point of view and as having failed to take the public into consideration.

"The medical profession, as a body, has not been informed about the modern development of advertising, or as to the standards set by the best advertising media. Closer interrelation and mutual understanding between the two groups would be of mutual advantage."

The report, in which Dr. Davis' statements are contained, was prepared by Miss Mary Ross of New York.

REDS FIGHT NAZI "VOTE INVASION" IN BERLIN; 3 HURT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Oct. 23.—Shots rang again in Koeslinestrasse, in the heart of Berlin's communist district, today as police escorted 100 National Socialists who were distributing election handbills through the streets. The National Socialists were closely followed by a police riot car. Suddenly stones and bricks rained from windows of many buildings. Three Nazis were injured. Police ordered the windows closed, then fired a volley to restore order. Later they arrested three communists.

WOMAN DIES OF SLEEP POTION.

Miss Regina McCauley died yesterday at the Woodlawn hospital a few hours after she had been found unconscious in her room at 6527 Dorchester avenue. Police said they believed she had accidentally taken an overdose of a sleeping potion.

EXPLAINS RELIEF BONDS WILL HALT TAX INCREASES

Fred W. Sargent, president of the Chicago and North Western railroad and chairman of the Cook county emergency relief bond issue committee, yesterday issued a warning that most of the tax reductions now being obtained through efforts of business and civic organizations in the city and state will be offset by an added tax if the $20,000,000 state relief bond issue does not pass Nov. 8.

"Three points must be made clear," he said. "1. This is unlike any bond issue ever before submitted. It's adoption will not increase any tax, but will prevent an additional tax on all real and personal property, which otherwise must be collected in 1933 to repay state relief funds already borrowed and spent. The bonds themselves will be financed by withholding from the counties which have used state relief funds a part of their share of present gas tax revenues.

"2. The bond issue will appear upon a separate small ballot, entitled 'Emergency Relief Ballot.'

"3. Failure to vote on the question will actually be voting against the bond issue, which must be approved by a majority of those voting.

BOY DIES UNDER GRAVEL.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Oct. 23.—[Special.]—Charles Atchison, 13, was killed when buried under four feet of gravel in a landslide in a pit a few rods from University hospital this afternoon. Ralph Chubb, 8, who was playing with him, rushed to the hospital and got help, and the boy was placed in a respirator but after three hours failed to regain consciousness.

SUSPECT IN TWO MURDERS SEIZED IN LANSING, MICH.

Glen Hutchinson, 22 years old, sought since last January for two murders here, was arrested in Lansing, Mich., yesterday, according to word received at the detective bureau last night. Steps will be taken today to extradite him. When seized the prisoner gave his name as George Donnelly.

Hutchinson is wanted for the slayings of Charles Pagel, 30 years old, and Charles Tyrrell, 45 years old. Pagel was beaten to death with a hammer in his room in the Aplin hotel, 27 East Harrison, on Jan. 9. Tyrrell was killed in the same way in his room at 617 North Dearborn street four days later.

In February, 1931, police arrested Hutchinson for the killing of Samuel Stephenson, 23 years old, who was robbed and beaten to death in an alley just south of the loop. He was tried for the slaying and acquitted. Pictures taken of him as a result of that arrest led to his identification in the Pagel murder.

REPAIR SERVICE OWNER QUIZZED ON FIRE IN PLANT

Leonard Lyons, 7209 Maryland avenue, head of the Superior Hosiery Repair Service, Inc., 1029 South Wabash avenue, was questioned last night by firemen regarding a fire earlier in the evening in his place of business. According to Fire Chief John Beckman of the 25th battalion, gasoline had been sprayed on the premises and four empty gasoline cans were found there. Lyons denied any knowledge of the gasoline. He is to be questioned today by Fire Attorney Thomas Sheehan. The damage amounted to $1,000, according to Chief Beckman.

DAY'S GIFTS FOR HUNGRY PUPILS DROP TO $89.45

3 Small Children Send In 100 Pennies.

Three small children in Riverside started saving their pennies some time ago for the Hungry School Children's fund. Saturday they had a dollar's worth of pennies so they sent them to THE TRIBUNE and asked that the money be used to give another child in one of the Chicago public schools a nice hot lunch during the next four weeks. The children were Grace, Judith, and John Allan Nanninga of 350 Robinson court.

Although the contributions took a sudden decline Saturday, totaling only $89.45, the smallest daily amount since the fund was started this fall, there was encouragement in the large number of donors. Twenty-five persons contributed, indicating that the public generally has the interest of the needy children in the public schools at heart.

"Enclosed find check for $5," wrote Anna S. Mathews. "I'd like to agree to send this amount every month, or even oftener, but our own pay days are so uncertain that one cannot promise definitely."

An anonymous contributor of $2 hoped that "these children can be kept in food throughout the winter."

$4.00—Mrs. G. E. Raymond.

$2.00—Lithe H. Allen, One who wishes to contribute this mite, Olive O. Oberndorf for some colored children, Mrs. H. B. Vested, Frank McWhenney, Robert Brodsky.

WRITES HOUSE KEPT U. S. FROM WAR ON BRITAIN

New York, Oct. 23.—[Special.]—The United States would have gone to war against Great Britain in 1917 except for the influence upon Woodrow Wilson of Col. Edward M. House, according to George Sylvester Viereck, whose book, "The Strangest Friendship in History, Woodrow Wilson and Col. House," is to be published tomorrow by Liveright.

"If it had not been for House," Mr. Viereck writes, "Wilson, like Madison, would have drifted reluctantly into war with Great Britain. With the duumvir [House] beside him, the President drifted, against his will, but less reluctantly, into war with the kaiser."

"Wilson's reelection, in November, 1916, aggravated the tension between England and the United States," he writes of the threatened war. "Capt. Guy Grant reports to House that feeling in Great Britain against America is 'growing apace.' 'It has seized the working people and it has reached the trenches. Every shell that goes over and does not explode is called a "Wilson."'"

Col. House refused tonight to comment on Viereck's statements, declaring them to be an "expression of Mr. Viereck's own opinion."

Mexico Reports Finding Evidence Against Bishop

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 23.—(AP)—A dispatch from Guadalajara said that last night police searched the office of the archbishop and subsequently reported they had discovered subversive propaganda. No arrests were made.

SEIZE AN ESCAPED CONVICT IN AUTO WITHOUT LICENSE

John Reed, alias Du Pont, 21 years old, who escaped last July from the Louisiana state prison at Baton Rouge, where he was serving terms for larceny and robbery totaling 39 years, was arrested yesterday.

Policemen Edward Hoffman and William Nelson of the Shakespeare avenue station halted the automobile in which Reed and two companions were riding at Diversey and Western avenues because the car bore no license plates. The companions, James Aletta, 19 years old, of 940 Sedwick street, and Miss Stella Stone, 18 years old, who says she lives at 4130½ Sheridan road, were also seized. Search of their car by Capt. Peter Tomchek revealed a loaded shotgun.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

GOV. ROOSEVELT AND THE UNWARY INVESTOR.

Gov. Roosevelt's St. Louis speech was directed to investors. He said the federal government should prevent the flotation of unsound foreign bonds. He implied, rather than said, that the government in future should try to guard the unwary against losing their money in unsound ventures, whether foreign or domestic.

The Republicans have an effective reply to this and it is astonishing that more has not been made of it. The market for virtually all of the securities about which Mr. Roosevelt is talking is in New York. The regulation of the sale of securities has long been recognized as a function of the state governments. The abuses about which he speaks took place during his administration at Albany, but so far as the general public has been informed Gov. Roosevelt made no effort to stem the tide of unsound flotations through state regulation of the New York Stock exchange and the other securities markets.

Under the circumstances, Gov. Roosevelt's opponents have the right to ask whether his responsibility for the losses suffered by the unwary is not as great as that of any member of the Republican administration.

CAB FARES.

Aldermen and the public vehicle license commission are reported in agreement to allow the Public Taxi Service company, a small concern operating eleven cabs, to cruise the streets but without privileges at the public cab stands. The concern will try the experiment of lower rates. There has been a feeling that the Chicago cab service might be allowed considerable freedom from rate fixing on a showing of good intent and good service. Such monopoly privileges as are given the licensed cabs are modified. There are buses, street cars, and even boats. Emergency may compel a person to take a taxicab but in the ordinary course of transportation the cabs are operating against much cheaper transportation which will serve. If the cabs get business they must make their service attractive and if they do not do it they will not make profits.

In these days of government interference with every profit seeking enterprise, mostly to the general confusion and injury, something can be said for the theory which permits natural business rules of cause and effect to govern. The cab companies will not make money by overcharging. They will cruise with empty cabs. Less expensive transportation will get the customers.

The license system, however, has been discriminating and monopolistic. It exaggerates the idea that new licenses should not be granted because the street traffic is congested and there is a sufficiency of public vehicles. A small company sees an opportunity for lower rates. There is no reason why its license should be limited and stand privileges stricken out. The larger companies have one rating in a theory of competition. They will get another if they seek exclusive rights.

MOTOR TRUCKS ON FREIGHT CARS.

The Chicago and Alton railroad has made arrangements with a trucking company operating between Chicago and St. Louis to move loaded trucks on flat cars between Chicago and East St. Louis. The motor company drives the trucks on the cars and off. It takes care of the pickup and delivery of the goods while the railroad handles the long road haul.

This may not be the final adjustment of the competing interests of the railroads and the trucking companies, but it is, at least, an indication of how the railroads may yet be revived. It is scarcely possible to exaggerate the difficulties under which even the best planned and most efficiently managed railroads are operating today. Government loans may prove temporarily helpful, but all that can be accomplished in this way is to postpone the day of reckoning. Increases in rates have been carried to the point where they will no longer yield increases in revenues. Every rate increase serves to destroy some business and to drive other business to competing services.

The only hope lies in giving railroad managers a freer hand to solve their own problem. They must be released from the strangle hold of regulation. The railroads should be encouraged to make such arrangements as the Alton has made with its trucking competitor. The ratemaking power should be restored in large measure to the railroad traffic departments. Much greater freedom should be permitted to railroad managers in abandoning unprofitable lines. There are few sections of the country now which are not served by good motor roads, and that fact should be taken into account. When a railroad wishes to abandon a branch line nowadays the presumption should be that the communities served by the branch no longer require railroad service.

FRENCH DEBTS AND FRENCH GOLD.

The French finance minister makes it known that debt payment is not being considered in the present budget allotments, which means, according to interpretation in Paris, that anything later given the government for transfer to Washington on account must be allowed by a special credit granted by the chamber of deputies. The French government is trying to scale down a deficit, which is nothing unusual in government procedure these days—although a success at it would be anywhere conspicuous—and the debts are not considered.

France may be having budget troubles, but it has no exchange problem. It has gold. The transfer of the comparatively small amount, $49,000,000 in principal and interest next year, is quite within the national means. A stubborn attitude on the debt is not a plea of inability to procure the medium of a settlement. It is rather a stand for repudiation. The question is not financial but political. Repudiation has certain consequences which America can afford to allow its debtors to consider for the while. Some of them are on the debtor's side of the fence in the creditor's state of mind.

IT'S ALWAYS FAIR WEATHER.

Lewis H. Pounds, the Republican setup for Tammany to push over in the city election, joined Surrogate John P. O'Brien, the Democratic nominee, and Royal S. Copeland, United States senator [Dem.], in a public meeting—a preelection love feast and ratification of anticipated results.

Says Mr. Pounds: "Mr. O'Brien is a wonderful man. I don't know of any one I would more enjoy being on a platform with."

Says Mr. O'Brien: "Mr. Pounds is a man of honor and a sportsman to the core. It would be beautiful if in all political activities the leaders of men would rise above the level of political life and be sportsmen and gentlemen."

Says Senator Copeland: "I thought for a minute I had been struck by an automobile and had gone to heaven."

It isn't just an automobile. It's a truck headed for the city treasury.

It isn't Senator Copeland who is going to be hit. It's a weak minded composite known as the New York public.

THE CREDITOR IN HARD TIMES.

These are days when the creditor seems to be wholly lacking in moral grace. For some uses the dollar he gave the debtor comes back to him, if he gets it at all, worth more than it was worth when he and his debtor transacted business. It can be noted that if this were the other way about there would be difficulty in making a moral cause of it. If the creditor lost money because of price trends in the period of the loan the chances are his complaint, if he made one, would be thought amusing.

Is the creditor worth a moral thought in a democracy? Is he as an institution worth preserving in a land which in principle at least adheres to the doctrine of private property and the right of contract, or is he merely something to survive fair weather and be tossed overboard in a storm? Much contemporary political thought apparently inclines toward the preservation of the debtor and the sacrifice of the creditor. The borrower shall rewrite the terms of his bond, the renter shall enjoy the hospitality of the landlord, the taxpayer shall forgive his own indebtedness and the government shall welsh on its promises to pay. That's a debtor civilization, but it will have to work out new rules for its survival.

There was a great scandal when Alexander Hamilton had his way in insisting that the new United States government should recognize the face value of its obligations in whatever hands held and pay them, but within thirty years a country which theretofore had been paying off at one dollar in the hundred had a surplus with which it foolishly made gifts to the states. Incidentally, Hamilton's payments included the foreign loans, taken out mostly in supplies in the countries advancing the money, with accrued interest to date.

HEELTAP REVELATIONS.

[New Orleans Times-Picayune.]

Dr. Johannes Gruss of Friedrichshafen, Germany, has recently performed a marvel of chemical analysis. By testing the heeltaps remaining through long centuries in drinking horns, disinterred from eight feet down in a North German peat bog, the scientist has responded to the oft-put question as to the materials used by the prehistoric Teutons in the manufacture of their beverages.

The drinking horns are those cut from the heads of the long since extinct European bison. For unnumbered centuries these household utensils lay buried in the swamp, and it required real imagination and hopefulness to expect to find still present in the cavity of such horns the heeltaps or dregs of the drink from the last drinkers who made use of the natural goblets. Of these Dr. Gruss suspected the presence, and with infinite care was able to scrape from the cracks and from beneath the scales of the horn the dried remains of the beverages that had been left after the wassail bouts of the blond beermakers of the north.

Three heeltaps, soaked in water, when subjected to analysis told their ancient story. Two horns were discovered and by the merest chance one was found to have been used for beer, the other for mead, so that the materials used for each of the famous beverages have now been definitely determined.

For beer the starch and proteins were found to have come from emmer, a hardy cereal grain that still is cultivated extensively in Russia and to some extent in Germany. It is said that it had long been suspected that primitive German beer used this material instead of the barley and rice of modern brewing, but this was only surmise until Dr. Gruss' analysis. It was known that this same emmer was used in ancient Egypt and Mesopotamia for the manufacture of a winelike beer of great popularity in those regions.

Mead, as was proved by its ancient name, "hydromel," or liquid honey, was known to be a honey product, but the Gruss analysis not only proved this beyond a doubt but it was shown even to the kind of flowers from which the honey bees sucked the sweet and, by a lucky chance, even to the particular variety of bee that made the honey. This was accomplished by the discovery in the heeltaps of the extreme end of a desiccated bee's tongue. And even the origin of the yeast could be determined by the presence in quantity, in the horn scrapings, of the wild yeast from certain flowers. Indeed, there seems to be no limit to science's powers of minute research.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

WE HAVE HEARD many complaints from gentlemen accustomed to singing in their bath that the radio speeches of Mr. Hoover on Saturday night interfere with their keeping the tune. Mr. Hoover had better switch to some other night in the week or he may lose a lot of votes.

COLD BLOODED SCIENTISTS used to insist that wars were necessary to hold the population of the earth within reasonable bounds. Wars are horrible, cruel things, but, glancing at the automobile casualties, it will be seen that wars are no longer needed to prevent too great an increase in population.

THE DOCTOR'S BUGGY.

Abandoned at the edge of a cornfield
The Doctor's buggy stands beneath tall trees.
The bluebells climb about the rotting wheels,
The battered lining flutters in the breeze.
The tattered cloth is sagging from the hood,
And yet, but a few narrow years ago,
This hull brought challenge to disease and death.
The children thought above it flew the stork,
Abandoned to the lash of wind and rain,
Among the tall green weeds the buggy rests.
The morning-glories bloom about its spokes,

ROSA ZAGNONI MARINONI.

IN BEHALF of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Words we rise to protest against the brutal treatment now shown in the headlines against one of the oldest and best mannered words in the English language, "ASSAILS." It is in the caption over the speech of every candidate and every campaign orator. Instead of "ASSAILS" let us have the party orators "SPEAK UNKINDLY OF," "EXPRESS GREAT DISPLEASURE," or "CALL OPPOSITION CLAIMS MERE BOLONY." Anything to save poor old "ASSAILS." Poor, little, innocent word, it's being kicked all to pieces.

WHILE, WITH OTHER LOYAL CHICAGOANS, we look forward with breathless interest and fondest expectations to the opening of our great Pageant of Progress on the lake front next year, we must admit there is just a trace of apprehension in our dreams. We would love to see all the modernistic buildings and the lavish display of other countries, but must we listen to Greeter Gaw's quartet sing "Greetings, Chicago Welcomes Thee"? It seems more than we can bear.

—:—

THESE SAD THOUGHTS arise as we read of the arrest of Greeter Gaw's tenor for wife abandonment. He may have to drop out of the quartet, but what of that? The world is full of tenors and Greeter Gaw can easily get another one. Tenors are often reckless young devils; they don't care what they do, even to singing "Greetings, Chicago Welcomes Thee." But a way out of the calamity is suggested in the plight of the former tenor. Why not have the next one arrested for murder? Of course, the charge would be unfounded and the prisoner would be free in time, but it would put him out of the quartet and a new tenor would have to be engaged. Then we'd have him arrested for grand larceny or treason or something. And so on and so on. There is hope.

RANK? OH, VERY!

Sir: You may high hat an Oklahoma colonel because Kentucky is an older state than Oklahoma, but when Colonel Gene Tunney comes to Chicago to speak at the big Democratic rally and happens to pass you in the Boul Mich I rather guess you will click your heels together and come to attention and salute rapidly with both hands. I don't know the exact date of Colonel Tunney's commission, but it was several years ago, and, consequently, in the language of the regular army, that takes such things mighty seriously, Colonel Tunney ranks you to hellengone. Rein back to your troop!

MISS FYRE.

Dear Miss Fyre: While we admire Major Tunney very much, we must call your attention to the fact that he is Major Tunney. As a common citizen we would gladly hold Major Tunney's hat and overcoat while he was speaking and get him a taxi when he had finished. However, this is a question of rank. We are a colonel, and a colonel is two ranks above a major and consequently we shall expect from Major Tunney the salutes in such cases made and provided when a major meets a ranking officer. And, besides, Connecticut is a very much smaller state than Kentucky. And it hasn't got any bluegrass. As you were! Fall out!

EVERY MAN AT SOME TIME.

Where is the solace that should now be mine
For having played the wiser, saner part?
For having followed, line for sapient line,
The counsel of the mind and not the heart?

My gain at length is this and this alone—
That I have learned the mind may be a cool
Deceiving sage who cheats us of our own,

ADELAIDE LOVE.

THE CAMPAIGN is getting into the last few weeks and, while about every subject has been reviewed, we have as yet heard no convincing answer to the question which has so long perplexed one and all, "Which came first, the hen or the egg?" However, there is yet time.

—:—

WE HAVE DECIDED to get rid of hitch-hikers this winter by putting a sign up on the windshield, "This Car Not Heated." Then they'll stop wriggling their thumbs at us. They're mighty fussy, those hitch-hikers, about their creature comforts.

LIME AND SPASMODIC DISORDERS.

RECENTLY published study of the cause of convulsions in children throws some sidelights on certain somewhat related disordered states. One of these is spasmophilia. This study indicates that spasmophilia is unimportant in babies less than one month of age, but that it is of more consequence in the later months of the first year of life. It reaches its maximum importance in the second half of the first year of life and continues at a high level until toward the third birthday, after which it continues for a year or so, but rather rapidly drops off, to disappear as a cause of convulsions by 10 years of age.

It would be interesting to see a similar study of the age distribution of spasmodic croup, a spasmophilic disorder which frightens parents unduly but does not endanger life. If any one has studied the prevalence of croup by ages I have not seen the report of it. The age distribution of the acuter symptoms of rickets also related to spasmophilia has also been written about.

Spasmophilia is an on-edgeness, a lack of nerve and muscle equilibrium which is not called a disease, but goes by such designations as spasmophilic diathesis or spasmophilic constitution.

The fault lies in lack of calcium or a loss of lime balance. Going further back, this diathesis is supposed to result from a deficiency of vitamin D and of exposure to sunlight.

The remedies used for it are exposure to sunlight, light and therapy, and the use of vitamin D preparations and preparations of calcium and perhaps parathyroid. This study indicates that babies are born with ample vitamin D and lime salts. In many of them these principles begin to run low after one month of age. The ages of greatest need of vitamin D and sunlight are ages 6 months to three years. Between ages 3 and 10 years the child is liable to get nearly enough light, lime, and vitamin D from its food and its play in the sunlight. A small proportion run below a safe level.

Another observation relates to the ages in which infections with such alarming symptoms as convulsions are liable to occur. Not many babies under one month of age are prone to this kind of infection. However, after passing one month and until three years is reached, the danger of violent onset of infection is great. From 3 to 10 years of age infections are dangerous. The reference is principally to measles, whooping cough, diphtheria, scarlet fever, infantile paralysis, and sleeping sickness.

After 10 years of age a very considerable proportion of the children have built up immunity enough to prevent them from catching diseases or else they are resistant enough not to develop convulsions during the attacks.

The diarrheas are not of particular importance in babies under one month. Nearly all babies of that age are living on mother's milk. This disorder reaches its maximum as a cause of convulsions in the later five months of the first year of life. After a baby passes six months of age diarrhea is not so important as it is in the earlier months of life. Children more than three years of age are very prone to diarrheas resulting from eating foods that are too rough for them or improper for other reasons, but the running of the bowels and the loss of appetite generally remove the cause in a day or less. Convulsions from eating indigestible foods practically never occur in children under three. Attacks of diarrhea which result are generally self-limited.

WISDOM TEETH.

Mrs. E. K. writes: 1. I am 32 years old and haven't any wisdom teeth as yet. For about a year or more now I have had an aching sensation in my left jaw bone. Would this mean any indication of wisdom teeth?

2. I ate a mole on my cheek. There is no redness. Could this cause the aching? It is only at times, sometimes at intervals of months.

REPLY.

1. It might. But there is small chance that you will ever cut those teeth.
2. No. How about pyorrhea? What is the condition of your gums?

LET IT ALONE.

J. K. A. writes: Will you write something about a bone cyst? If X-ray reveals what a dentist calls bone cyst on the front of the lower jaw, though it is not visible otherwise and is not painful, would an operation be advisable in the case of a 72 year old?

REPLY:

A good deal has been written about bone cysts since the taking of X-ray pictures has become customary. Some of the so-called cysts are genuine cysts. Some are areas of rarefaction and not true cysts. We do not know much about the cause of either. Probably you had better let your cyst abide in peace as you borrow some more years.

ADMINISTRATOR'S FEES.

Chicago, Oct. 16.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. What fees are generally allowed an administrator and lawyer to settle an estate of between $50,000 and $75,000? 2. Are the lawyer and administrator supposed to collect interest and principal of the mortgages, some of them past due? They seem to think they can let them go until next spring when the estate is settled. 3. Could they be held responsible for not attempting to make collections? L. N.

1. The statute authorizes not over 6 per cent of the personal property. Four per cent might be said to be a fair average.
2. Yes, except as some of them may, of course, be uncollectible.
3. They could be held for the consequences of failure to exercise reasonable diligence.

INHERITANCE.

Chicago, Oct. 16.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—My father died fourteen years ago, leaving a home in Tennessee not quite paid for. I finished paying for it in my father's name. I have paid the taxes in his name until this year, when same were paid in my name. My mother is dead. My sister has the deeds. 1. Have my sister and brother any claim to the home? 2. If my sister won't give me the deeds how can I sell the home if I want to? 3. On the deeds is a statement that read: "From heir to heir." Does that mean anything now that my father died before he finished paying for the home? L. D. B.

1. The interest which your father owned at the time of his death would have descended to his heirs. Presumably you are entitled to credit for your subsequent payments.
2. Employ an attorney.
3. This wording is unusual. Hence we would not undertake to construe it without having before us the context in which it appears.

TO BE PROSECUTED.

Chicago, Oct. 16.—[Friend of the People.]—The dilapidated building next door to my home has been abandoned by the owner. Nearly every glass in the windows is broken, and the place can be entered at will. Fires have been started and there is danger of something serious happening. Can't the owner be compelled to raze the building and keep the yard in a respectable condition? J. T.

We have had this building under observation for some time. As the owner has failed to comply with our order to make safe or wreck building, the matter has been placed in the law department for prosecution.

JOHN E. ERICSSON,
Deputy, Department of Buildings.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

OCTOBER 24, 1916.

CHICAGO.—Hugo J. Warner, an official of the Lord & Thomas Advertising company, and three companions—one man and two women—went to death with tragic swiftness last night when an automobile bearing a party of six shot through the open, unguarded draw of the 12th street bridge to the river. Two women members of the party escaped—one through the heroism of a doomed man toiling to thrust her free of the entangling car in the waters. Whether it was Mr. Warner or Sylvin Kusel, a University of Chicago student, who tore Mrs. Warner's clothing free of the levers in the front seat and pushed her into the open water, may never be known. The other two who were killed were Miss Lillian Klausner, 4458 Prairie avenue, a social worker in the Maxwell settlement and at Hull house, and Miss Jennie Klausner, 5433 Greenwood avenue, cousin of Lillian Klausner. The bodies of Warner and Kusel are believed to be in the motor car at the bottom of the river.

CHICAGO.—Chief of Police Charles C. Healey was indicted by the October grand jury on charges of malfeasance and conspiracy. Indictments were returned at the same time against William Luthardt, secretary to the chief, and Charles T. Essig, secretary of the Sportsmen's Club of America, on charges of conspiracy. Healey's bonds were fixed at $20,000 and those of Luthardt and Essig at $10,000 each.

BERLIN.—Constanza, Rumania's greatest seaport, has fallen before Field Marshal von Mackensen's armies, it was officially announced. Capture of the city is the greatest single achievement for the central powers since Rumania entered the war eight weeks ago. The victory is hailed by German military men as of more importance than all the gains made by the allies since the Somme offensive began. Official dispatches from the German and Bulgarian war offices indicate that the Russo-Rumanians have suffered a disastrous rout. Smashing northward along the Black sea coast, Von Mackensen's army occupied first the Rumanian port of Tuzla and then swept onward through strongly fortified Rumanian lines of defense, marching twelve miles to Constanza in a little more than two days. The rapidity of the Teutonic advance is accepted as an indication that the Russians and Rumanians became demoralized and made an extremely disordered retreat.

LONDON.—More than a thousand yards of German trenches in the region of Gueudecourt and Lesboeufs were taken by the British in fighting north of the Somme river in France, according to the official report.

PARIS.—French troops in the Somme region have fought their way forward in the neighborhood of Sailly-Saillisel, the war office announced.

LONDON.—One British and twelve neutral vessels have been sunk since the last report was given out, Lloyds announced today.

FROM ALEXANDER LEGGE.

Chicago, Oct. 21.—The letter published on the editorial page of today's CHICAGO TRIBUNE from a contributor signing himself Charles Tyler is untrue and unjustifiable and is calculated to injure the business of the International Harvester company.

There is no truth whatever in Mr. Tyler's statement that we called a meeting of Harvester employés in the Moline-Davenport sector and informed them that if the Democratic nominee were elected we planned to close down our factory there (the Farmall tractor plant at Rock Island) for two years and that if the election went the other way we would proceed with a program of expansion. In fact, there has been no meeting of our employés there for a long time.

This denial applies equally to all other Harvester plants as well as the factory at Rock Island. Our company has never sought by any such means to influence the political beliefs or the votes of its employés.

The Harvester company's plans and programs depend on economic conditions, not on political conditions. We have firm faith in the future of American agriculture. We confidently believe and expect that prices for farm commodities will soon improve and will enable us to go ahead actively with the manufacture and distribution of cost reducing machines necessary to profitable farm operation.

ALEXANDER LEGGE,
President, International Harvester Co.

ALL SIDES PRESENTED.

Chicago, Oct. 20.—In the good old times of long ago a presidential campaign meant we would have to buy the newspapers of all the political parties to know what the political news really was. This amounted to a nuisance, to say nothing of the expense. Happily you have done away with all that. I know now that at the breakfast table I will find that my favorite TRIBUNE will give me all the news of all the parties and of the important candidates as well. This is smart business. How grateful we of Chicagoland should be for such excellent service. As a chronic newspaper reader I am constrained to say you lead them all.

J. C. S.

MR. FORD'S MOUTHFUL.

Chicago, Oct. 19.—Henry Ford is the only Republican speaker I have heard over the air with whom I can agree. When he said "Mr. Hoover's every act has been in the interest of unemployment" he said a much larger mouthful than he probably intended. J. A. G.

RADIO PROGRAMS.

Chicago, Oct. 21.—THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE is to be congratulated for its greatly enhanced listings of radio programs. We now have no need of supplementing with another paper just for the radio programs.

DR. WILFRED J. DE COOK.

A GHOST STORY.

Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 17.—About two months ago there appeared in your columns an article on government interference in business purported to be written by me. On Oct. 15 I noted the same phenomenon, only this time the article had to do with tax reform.

As a native Chicagoan I am quite well acquainted with most of the members of the Rosenblum clan, and to the best of my knowledge no one other than myself bears my given name. I assume, therefore, that one of my friends is airing his or her views over my signature.

Outside of a somewhat faulty diction and the fact that my ghost writer's views are slightly moronic I really have no serious objection to his or her antics. I should, however, like to make a suggestion—namely: that as long as this particular person seems to be imbued with a passion to write articles using my name, why not submit them to some publication that pays for accepted material? I would be satisfied with a small fee, say 5 per cent, for the use of my name.

If X will communicate with me I will be glad to discuss terms. For an extra 5 per cent of the proceeds I might even agree to edit the articles before they are submitted. MILTON M. ROSENBLUM.

EFFECT OF A SPEECH.

Evanston, Ill., Oct. 18.—The debate broadcast last evening from the Thorne memorial of Northwestern university we enjoyed very much. Though I am by tradition a Republican, I must say that Gov. Allen convinced me to vote for Roosevelt by his very last incisive remark, stating that banks of Gov. Roosevelt's own state were aided by the R. F. C. Apparently Gov. Allen and the party think the R. F. C. should come to the aid of only Republicans: witness the giving of millions to our genial Gen. Dawes' bank while institutions with national charters had to close.

WHO MAINTAINS THE SCHOOLS?

Chicago, Oct. 15.—A member of the board of education is reported to have said last week that "Chicago school teachers should remember that the schools are maintained for the children."

In the vernacular of the street, What does he mean maintained? Who is maintaining the schools? Not the board of education, not the city administration—certainly not the tax strikers.

In fact, with the salaries of teachers and other employés of the public school system in arrears as far back as April 15, with three months' salary of 1931 paid in paper which is negotiable only at a discount of more than 20 per cent, it must be conceded that the schools are for the present being maintained by the teachers, who are living on borrowed money while they labor and wait.

OUR SECRET AMBITION

Mother Is Gaining After Suicide Attempt.

Mattoon, Ill., Oct. 23.—(AP)—Mrs. Inez S. Carrell of Chicago, self-admitted slayer of her three children, today lay slowly recovering, against her will, from the narcotic poison she took in an effort to accompany her children in death.

No formal charge of murder has been placed against Mrs. Carrell, said Deputy Sheriff Roy Clark, but she is under arrest in the Methodist Memorial hospital and is closely guarded to balk further suicide attempt.

Since telling her story when she regained consciousness last night, 24 hours after drowning her children in a hotel bath tub here, Mrs. Carrell has refused to talk, even to the various relatives who have hurried to her aid. She has also refused all food or other attention.

Sisters Come to Aid.

Meanwhile Mrs. Carrell's sisters, Mrs. Carnie Davis and Miss Berna Steed of 8506 Manistee avenue, Chicago, and her mother-in-law, Mrs. Nora Carrell of Charleston, Ill., had arranged to bury the children Tuesday beside the body of their father, Elwood A. Carrell, who died five years ago.

The family's tragic story was revealed last night, when hotel employés, wondering why the family had not appeared all day, broke into their room and found the children dead and the mother unconscious. Mrs. Carrell later said she had given the children—Mary Ellen, 5; Robert, 7, and June, 10—a drug in some candy and then, when it proved insufficient, had drowned them one by one. Then she took the poison herself.

Story of Misfortune.

Behind her action, her relatives said today, was a story of financial reverses and poor health, which led to fears that she and her children might be destitute or become a charge on her kin. Her husband, a graduate from Eastern Illinois State Teachers' college, Charleston, left her $3,500 insurance, which she invested. She went to live with her mother, Mrs. F. E. Steed of 6052 Stony Island avenue, Chicago.

All went well until the value of her reserve fund was wiped out. She lost her position as a secretary with R. E. Wiley & Co., Chicago investment house, and was stricken with a nervous breakdown.

STONE & CO. TRIAL REOPENS IN U. S. COURTTOMORROW

Trial of Henry F. Norcott and eight of his associates in the defunct H. O. Stone & Co., on charges of using the mails in a scheme to defraud, will be resumed in federal court tomorrow. The trial had been scheduled for resumption today, but Judge Charles E. Woodward granted the extension to permit Joseph B. Fleming, a defense attorney, to attend the funeral of his son, Joseph Jr.

Seize Drug Store Bandit After a Two Mile Chase

A young bandit was captured by police early today twenty minutes after he and a companion had held up the Stineway drug store at 1168 North Clark street. The capture came after a two mile chase, during which the police fired on the car in which the bandits rode. The fleeing machine finally crashed into the curbing at West Erie and Orleans streets and was wrecked. One of the bandits escaped on foot. The other, who was seized, said he was Anthony Lettiere, 22 years old, 8027 South Green street. He refused to name his companion, but police were searching for Roy Comerford, 8139 South Halsted street, whose automobile Lettiere was using. Their loot was $150.

GERMANS AGAIN PERMIT USE OF ROD IN SCHOOLS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAMBURG, Germany, Oct. 23.—Typical of the new "authoritarian" tendency which is pervading every division of German cultural and public life since the arrival of the Von Papen government, Hamburg school authorities have restored to school teachers the right to resort to corporal punishment as a means of disciplining students.

Whipping was forbidden soon after the war when milder methods in education were introduced. Now Hamburg teachers again have the rights which they had in wartime. As weapon of discipline they may use "only a stick"—only that and nothing more. This legalized stick may be applied in punishment of the following offenses: "Habitual lying, impudent insubordination, persistent indolence and disobedience, outbreaks of moral crudity, repeated truancy, dishonesty, and shamelessness." Thus hardly any juvenile offenses are omitted.

Throughout Germany, particularly Prussia, there are preparations to restore "the good old ironclad discipline." The new pedagogy was keynoted by the minister of interior, Baron Wilhelm von Gayl, in a speech saying that the time had come to "restore in the schools authority, rigid order and discipline."

GUN POWDER USED TO SEND ROCKET 2,500 FEET HIGH

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Oct. 23.—A rocket propelled by gunpowder and designed to land safely by means of timing the spread of wings was demonstrated by Reinhold Tilling in Berlin today. Tilling, who had conducted successful rocket experiments at Osnabrueck, is seeking permission to stage a "rocket show" here next week, and police insisted on a sample exhibition this morning.

The rocket, measuring 12 by 9 feet and weighing 22 pounds, including 13 pounds of gunpowder, rose 2,500 feet in a few seconds, then spiraled to the ground, landing 1,500 feet away despite the inventor's promise that it would land within 600 feet of the starting point.

The inventor claims his rocket can reach an altitude of 21,000 feet when it is fully loaded.

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 20 years, and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.

No griping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They help cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

If you have a "dark brown mouth" —bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache—torpid liver—constipation, you should find quick, sure and pleasant results from one or two of Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets.

Now you can really look years younger. Simply brush away those unsightly streaks or patches of gray. It is so easy to do—and at home—with Brownatone. Over 20 years of success recommend this proved method. With an ordinary small brush you just tint your hair back to its natural shade—whether blonde, brown or black. Guaranteed harmless. Active coloring agent is purely vegetable. Does not coat the surface. Actually penetrates the hair. Defies detection. No tell-tale, flat "dyed" look. Cannot effect waving of hair.

No need to guess. First cut a lock of hair from your head and apply a little of this famous tint. If Brownatone does not give your gray, streaked, dull, or faded hair its natural color, youth and sheen, your money back. Only 50c.

WALGREEN DRUG STORES

Declares He Found Haven from Oppression.

Madison, Wis., Oct. 23.—[Special.]—"Gratitude wells up in me when I see the freedom which the Jewish children in this country enjoy. Compared with my childhood, even the poor children have their needs well supplied. They can go to school, and opportunities for their parents to earn a livelihood far surpass those existing in Europe when I was a child."

So spoke Solomon Levitan, state treasurer of Wisconsin, when he addressed the university student members of the Hillel Foundation Sunday evening.

"My mother wanted me to be a rabbi, so I was sent to the Rabbinical seminaries at Kovno and Slabotka, Lithuania. There were no comfortable dormitories in these schools; instead, the students slept in the seminary. Our beds were the benches, with straw for matresses and our overcoats for covering. Our food was provided by the good people who were able to donate food for one day a week. One man would provide us with food on Sunday, another one on Tuesday, and so on through the week. If we were not so fortunate as to be provided with food every day in the week we had to be content with having meals three or four days of the week.

Teaches for 50 Cents a Week.

"We earned money occasionally by writing letters at five cents apiece for people who were unable to write, or we could earn fifty cents a week by teaching children at home in families who were unable to pay for a regular teacher. When I attended the Vilna seminary I had a position as secretary of the Free Loan society, from which I received 3 cents of every 15 cents collected. This netted me from $2 to $3 a week. My parents were unable to assist me financially so I always wrote them I was getting along all right so they would not feel badly.

At the age of 16 I realized that the hardships of becoming a rabbi were more than I could stand, especially as I saw nothing but poverty in the future. So I started for Crimea, a distance of 3,000 miles, to find my uncle who kept a store. Although I started without a dollar in my pocket, with the help of people along the way I finally reached my destination. I worked for my uncle for board and clothes until he hired me out to a grain dealer who paid me $50 a year, with board and lickings free, but my lot had been so much harder that I thought I was well off.

"In 1880 a pogrom broke out in Crimea, during which I saved the life of my employer, and in his gratitude to me he offered me as a reward a modern education or a ticket to America. I chose the ticket to America and got an education in the school of hard knocks after I arrived.

Kindness of Farmers.

"I wonder if the Americans themselves love their country as do some of us who have found it a haven from the oppression of old country prejudices and poverty. After I landed in Baltimore I found work on a street paving job, receiving 5 shillings a day, and when my wages increased to $1 a day I thought I was surely on the road to wealth. It was not long before I had saved enough to buy a peddler's stock and began selling my wares to the Pennsylvania farmers. I shall never forget the kindness of those farmers.

Their children taught me the A B C's evenings, and I was soon able to read the English language. I found the same spirit of kindness when I migrated to Wisconsin and peddled in the vicinity of Green county. I met families of all nationalities, and all of them were kind, giving me food and lodging, in return for which I helped with the chores, took care of the babies, carried in wood and water. I always tried to give full measure for what I received.

"Later when I opened a store in the Swiss settlement of New Glarus and had married, my family was one of that kindly community. We were not outsiders. When we moved to Madison in 1905 to give our children a university education we found the same kindly spirit among the people. I had sold my three stores which I had established in New Glarus, Blanchardville and Madison, and became one of the directors of the Commercial National bank of Madison and for many years served as its president until I resigned after I had become state treasurer.

Prejudice More Individual.

"The overwhelming majority by which I was elected for the office of state treasurer for five terms in succession is indicative of Wisconsin's freedom from racial prejudice. My observation for the 52 years I have lived in this country has been that prejudice is more individual than racial. Our race is well represented in this country in statesmanship as governors, Supreme court judges and other judiciary positions, in the navy and army, in medical, legal, musical, and educational lines.

"In our university I have known President Adams, President Van Hise, President Birge, and your own president, Glen Frank, and I most sincerely say that every student, regardless of race or nationality, who is worthy and capable will receive equal recognition for merit.

"My message to you tonight is that if you enter into the true American spirit of square dealing, being modest in your success and courageous in your failure, you will be received with the same spirit of good fellowship that is found among the gentiles."

WEDELL TRIMS RECORD, OTTAWA TO MEXICO CITY

Touches 3 Capitals Faster than Doolittle.

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 23.—(AP)—Jimmy Wedell, New Orleans pilot, brought his plane down here at 4:49 p. m. [central standard time], breaking Jimmy Doolittle's record for the three-capital flight by completing the trip from Ottawa by way of Washington in one minute less than 12 hours.

Capt. Doolittle's record was 12 hours 36 minutes.

Wedell took off from Ottawa at 4:50 a. m. [central standard time] on the flight of about 2,500 miles. He passed Washington two hours and nine minutes later and stopped at Patterson, La., at noon to refuel. He took off almost immediately from there.

Own Reckoning Faster.

Wedell calculated his elapsed time as 11 hours 54 minutes, which rests on whether his official starting time from Ottawa was 5:50 or 5:55 a. m. [4:55 a. m. central standard time]. Ottawa dispatches gave the earlier time, which clips 37 minutes off Doolittle's record.

The pilot had expected to cover the route in 10 hours, but encountered headwinds most of the way as well as some fog. From Ottawa he carried two official letters from the Canadian postmaster general, one for the postmaster at Washington, and the other for the Mexico City postmaster.

The stop at Patterson was a bow to his home town, for which the plane Miss Patterson was named. When he left there after refueling, he struck out across the Gulf of Mexico, hitting Mexico near Tampico. Then he came direct to the capital.

Average Speed 250 M. P. H.

He circled the landing field once at high speed and made a perfect landing. The 33 year old flyer was dog tired and somewhat shaky, but was elated by his accomplishment. He said his average speed was about 250 miles an hour. His first request was for a drink of water. He said that he would return to the United States in two or three days, but he was undecided about attempting to establish any more speed records on his return.

The American was welcomed at the field by Dudley Dwyer, United States consul; a representative of the Mexican civil aviation, other officials, and a number of Mexican aviators. The plane has a 550 horsepower Wasp engine and is used in the Wedell-Williams air service.

STATE TO ORDER NICKEL PLATE TO BUILD SUBWAYS

Although the Illinois commerce commission is expected shortly to order the opening of East 91st and 93d streets by subways under the tracks of the Nickel Plate railroad, city officials are not hopeful of any immediate subway construction.

In March of last year the commission ordered the construction of a viaduct over the railroad's tracks at 103d street and the removal of the company's yards to a location between 103d and 110th streets. The railroad spent approximately $100,000 on the projects, and then halted the work with the explanation that it had no more money. Since then no work has been done.

"Even though the commission rules in favor of the city by ordering the railroad to construct the subways, the work will be delayed until the railroad yard is moved farther south," said Ald. William A. Rowan [10th]. "The viaduct improvement at 103d street also is blocked by the refusal of the railroad to get its yard out of the way. The people of the 10th ward want these improvements, but our efforts so far have been blocked by the railroad's plea of poverty."

CORN HUSKING GETS UNDER WAY IN ILLINOIS

Pana, Ill., Oct. 23.—[Special.]—Corn husking in central Illinois got under way Saturday. Many "white wings" from the southlands were even in the fields today, as farmers fear a wet season which would delay housing the millions of bushels of corn.

The crop is the largest since 1925, the growers say, and in some instances there will be yields of 100 bushels to the acre, but the average will be between 60 and 70 bushels.

The corn is of fine quality, but despite record yields and quality farmers say they will not profit by the crop. They are paying one and a half cents a bushel for shucking, the lowest price paid in 25 years.

SCHOOL OFFICERS DISCUSS PLAN FOR LONGER VACATION

Pay roll appropriations for school teachers and other board of education employés will be exhausted by the middle of December, and it will be necessary to close the schools five or six days at Christmas time to keep within the budget. This was revealed yesterday by Harry Bracket, school auditor.

The saving in salaries by closing the schools for one day is approximately $200,000, according to Mr. Brackett. This method of effecting economies has been urged by Supt. William J. Bogan on several occasions.

Mr. Bogan said, however, that he wanted to study the auditor's figures before making a recommendation to the school board on the matter of lengthening the Christmas vacation.

The board has allowed $34,350,930 for 1932 pay rolls. The actual pay roll up to Aug. 1 was $21,333,958. According to Mr. Brackett's estimates there will be $2,870,000 left in the appropriations for the payment of salaries in December. This will fall approximately $1,000,000 short of the funds needed if the schools are kept open on their scheduled number of days.

Westfield, N. J., Oct. 23.—(AP)—George Weston, vice president and treasurer of the American Express company, died suddenly today while playing golf at the Echo Lake Country club. He suffered a heart attack as he was about to drive off the third tee. He was 56 years old.

CASEY JONES OUT AS AN OFFICER OF CURTISS-WRIGHT

New York, Oct. 23. — [Special.] — C. S. (Casey) Jones, vice president of the Curtiss-Wright corporation and in charge of the company's flying activities at Valley Stream and Glenn Curtiss airport at North Beach, Queens has resigned, it was learned today to become effective Dec. 1.

Joining the Curtiss organization in 1918 just at the close of the war, Jones has been actively connected with the company since. The veteran pilot confirmed the report tonight that he was quitting but beyond stating that he had no intention of giving up aviation as a career had no comment to make.

"I think I have earned a vacation and I am going to take one," he said.

In 1919 Jones organized the Curtiss Exhibition company and was its president. He also was president of the Curtiss Flying Service and its successor, the Curtiss-Wright Flying Service, with branches all over the country.

HANGS SELF IN PULLMAN YARDS.

The body of Alfred Moushtin, 47 years old, 10939 Edbrooke avenue, was found hanged from a tree in the Pullman company yards at 103d street and Gorliss avenue yesterday. The widow said he was despondent over unemployment.

Stomach gas, pain, 3 yrs. Stops it quick

"I had a mean case of acid indigestion for the past three years," writes Miss Adeline Belgean, Brooklyn, N. Y. "Tried everything with little if any results. Then heard about ACIDINE and got some. It is wonderful. I can eat everything without gas or pain. Sleep fine."

Just another of thousands who are astonished at the way ACIDINE succeeds when other known remedies fail. The reason is it is different from other medicines. ACIDINE contains Japtase, which, in laboratory tests, digested 800 times its own weight of certain heavy, starchy foods that cause trouble. ACIDINE stops burning acid, soothes irritated stomach and intestinal linings, ends gas, headache, sleeplessness from acidity and helps digest starchy foods and meats.

Don't run chances of dangerous painful troubles from acidity. Get ACIDINE today from your druggist and note quick relief from sourness, pain and belching. You can eat, drink and smoke as you like. Maker guarantees results that satisfy you or money back.

PARAGUAY TAKES BOLIVIAN FORT; TROOPS IN FLIGHT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ASUNCION, Paraguay, Oct. 23.—Paraguayan troops today captured Fort Arce, one of the principal Bolivian strongholds in the Gran Chaco, the war ministry announced. It was reported that the Bolivians fled after an attack by the "macheteros," who use machetes, or chopping knives, as weapons.

Considerable arms and ammunition was left behind the fleeing Bolivians, who, it is claimed, became panic stricken as the "mincemeat" regiment began its assault.

The war office yesterday announced that a force of 1,500 troops sent to reinforce the Bolivians at Fort Arce had been annihilated in a fierce hand to hand clash with the "macheteros."

Bolivia Admits Defeat.

LA PAZ, Bolivia, Oct. 23.—(AP)—Official announcement was made tonight that Fort Arce, in the Gran Chaco, had been evacuated by Bolivian troops under general staff orders.

Believe End of War Near.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BUENOS AIRES, Oct. 23.—The spectacular fall of Fort Arce, Bolivian stronghold in the Gran Chaco, is regarded here as the beginning of the end of the boundary war between Paraguay and Bolivia. Although the Bolivians still possess strong forces in the Chaco, Fort Arce's capture is expected to demoralize the troops.

The reputation of the Paraguayan commander, Col. Estigarribia, who first captured Fort Boqueron, has risen greatly. He is considered in many quarters as one of the ablest soldiers in South America and as unbeatable in the Chaco wilderness.

According to Bolivian refugees in Argentina, the legendary prowess of the Paraguayan "machetero" regiment early in the war became a sort of bogey among the Bolivian soldiers whose morale was badly affected by the fantastic stories told over bivouac fires.

One story, which spread rapidly, alleged that the Standard Oil company offered $30,000 for the head of the "machetero" commander and another $30,000 for the head of the Argentine war ace, Almonacid, who is now serving in the Paraguayan air force.

Attack Guards in Sao Paulo.

SAO PAULO, Brazil, Oct. 23.—(AP)—Quiet prevailed in the city today after a series of outbreaks last night against republican guards, who had taken over administration functions since the collapse of Sao Paulo revolution.

Federal troops were patrolling the city. They fired arms to frighten disturbers. Outbreaks began when a group attempted to attack two republican guards.

JAPAN FINDS NEW WAY TO MAKE OIL FOR NAVAL FUEL

TOKIO, Oct. 23. — (AP) — A new method of producing heavy oil, which is expected to revolutionize Japan's naval fuel supply, was announced today by the South Manchuria railway.

After five years of experimentation, a cheap process of low temperature carbonization, by which one ton of heavy oil can be extracted from two tons of coal, has been perfected. The product is good fuel oil, the railway announced, and it is possible to "crack" it into gasoline.

The navy, which has been seeking new fuel sources independent of American, British and Dutch supplies, assisted in the experiments. The chief source of the new fuel is expected to be the great Fushon open cut coal mine in Manchuria, where coal at the pithead costs less than 50 American cents a ton.

OPERA STAR SHOT BY HER HUSBAND AT STAGE DOOR

BERLIN, Oct. 23.—(AP)—Gertrude Lindernagel, soprano opera star, was shot by her husband, Wilhelm Hintze, at the stage door of the Charlottenburg Opera house after tonight's performance of "Siegfried," in which she appeared.

The singer, who is 39 years old, was taken to a hospital in critical condition. The shot lodged in her kidney. The husband, a man of 53, submitted quietly to arrest. Police ascribed the shooting to domestic difficulties.

They have been married for several years. Hintze, police said, is a banker. After the shooting the husband told police he had wanted to "teach her a lesson." The quick appearance of the police saved Hintze from the hands of an angry crowd of operagoers, who had threatened to lynch him.

PANA SMITHY IS FOUND SLAIN ON GOAT FARM

Pana, Ill., Oct. 23.—[Special.]—Pearl Carroll, 50, Pana's only blacksmith and horseshoer was found mysteriously slain, with a bullet wound through the brain, in an open field on his goat farm, one mile south of Pana, this afternoon.

Carroll's wife and daughter were in Mattoon, Ill., today and he left his home in Pana shortly after noon to go to his farm to attend his goats. Three hours later his body was found by his brother, Charles Carroll, who went to the farm to seek him.

He had been dead two hours when found. No revolver or rifle was found near Carroll and no footprints showed near where his body was discovered. The bullet apparently had been fired from a distance. It passed entirely through his head.

Carroll had no known enemies and the slaying is enveloped in mystery, the police said tonight. He had resided in Pana thirty years. His widow, daughter, mother, one brother and one sister survive. He was prominent in fraternal and church circles.

SCHOOL OFFICIAL CHANGES NAME, TO WED; BALKED

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 23.—(AP)—Redondo Beach's school superintendent, Elliott B. Thomas, disappeared from public view again today. This time he was accompanied into seclusion by his forgiving wife, Olive.

Returning yesterday from a flight to Washington—a fugitive trip based on a complicated attempt to make it appear he had been kidnaped and slain, and with the confessed purpose of changing his identity and marrying Miss Sylvia Wilson of Seattle—Thomas appeared at the sheriff's office and talked as freely as his attorney would let him.

Thomas said he met Miss Wilson last July at Portland, Ore., that he created the fictitious character of "E. T. Sherwood" by registering a motor car under that name in Los Angeles, that he faked a burglary to remove his clothing from his home, that he threw his office into confusion last Monday to give an impression he had been attacked there by burglars, and that he then drove the "Sherwood" car to Seattle.

AMERICANS BUY UP CHILE'S WINE TO SWAP GOODS

Develop Barter Business to High Degree.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SANTIAGO, Chile, Oct. 23.—Uncle Sam has a good taste for wines despite prohibition laws, according to Chilean newspapers which today joined in a protest against the purchase by American interests of Chile's entire prospective vineyard crop of 15,000,000 gallons for exportation. Every brand of Chilean vintage leaped in price, but the destination of the wine is a secret.

The newspapers charge that the deal is just another example of the strategy and resource of American traders on the west coast of South America in keeping international trade embers aglow by developing a barter business and evading the many restrictive exchange measures imposed by the governments of this continent.

Reports issued by the commerce ministries of the various governments reveal some novel arrangements, many of which were sponsored by American go-betweens and highly successful.

Tennis Balls for Bark.

A New York sports outfitting concern, which had been shipping tennis balls to Chile and Peru for a quarter of a century, was faced with a stoppage of such shipments because of the shortage of gold at this end. The firm then bartered its tennis balls for a consignment of "quillay" bark, whose medicinal properties appealed to some Chicago manufacturing chemists. The latter paid the New York firm in gold.

After beet sugar experiments had failed in southern Chile and with no foreign exchange available, refineries in Vina del Mar and Penco arranged with German boot and shoe factories in Valdivia to ship national footwear north to Callao in exchange for Peruvian shipments of sugar cane.

American automobiles are being "traded" for tallow, and the plight of 500,000 people facing a famine in the Patagonia belt southwest of the main Andean mountain range was relieved when Chilean coal was exchanged for Argentine flour. Chile's farmers, stimulated by the export bounty paid by the former Socialist government of Carlos Davila, had sent out too great a quantity of cereals and left their own people to starve.

Evade Currency Restrictions.

American business men's efforts to pay back bills and evade central bank restrictions on remittances are as interesting as their barter maneuvers. Many importers in South America were caught unawares by foreign exchange restrictions and resorted to a variety of expedients to remit or, alternatively, to invest huge peso balances whose dollar values were threatened from day to day.

The West India Oil company, subsidiary of the Standard Oil of New Jersey, unable to remit and unwilling to acquire gold at "black market" rates, invested 12,000,000 pesos in the purchase of Santiago's finest skyscraper, owned by the Caja Reaseguradora [state insurance corporation]. It converted more millions in an Aconcagua farm, and now American oil men are shipping agricultural produce to all parts of the world to pay for the gasoline they import for Chileans. The British Shell-Mex rival combine refused to make such efforts, limiting importation to gold coverage afforded by the central bank, which is practically nil. As a result they have lost most of their business.

Another American company got rid of its peso currency in an original way and, as a result, many South Americans on the west coast are still able to wash with a certain imported soap and gulp a well known brand of pills. Having secured a government exportation license, the firm flooded every local printshop with orders to print publicity material for the entire South American market and other parts of the world as well. In this way it converted its accumulated earnings, paid up back accounts in gold and continued supplying South America with soap and sanitary products.

domination of others. "We would be against the establishment of any hegemony, especially if it create a situation of obvious injustice.

Calls League "Sick."

"The action of the grand council of Fascism aroused the interest of all countries," he continued, recalling the council's proposal last May to reexamine Italy's status in the league of nations.

"I declare again we still will remain in the league—especially now that it is extraordinarily 'sick,' we must not abandon it," he said. "The league is too universal; its advice loses efficacy with distance. It may have benefited some European regions, but in the far east and South America its words remain words without sense, without significance."

"There have been efforts to disentangle the league from this too universal system," he said. "I think if tomorrow there could be reached, on the basis of justice, recognition of our sacred rights and the necessary adequate premises for collaboration of the four great western powers, Europe would be tranquilized in a political way and perhaps the economic crisis would weaken and approach its end."

The premier then proclaimed "for all to hear" that Italy follows a policy of peace—"true peace designed to restore the equilibrium of Europe, peace that is in the heart, like hope and faith."

His face distorted and arms swinging, he characterized anti-Fascists abroad and Masonic exiles of Italy as "idle dreamers who would not forgive Fascist Italy for surviving."

He decried the dole as solving nothing and said "we are against all indirect measures and all suggestions to alter the value of money which I consider the untouchable banner of the nation. Where this has been done, conditions of the people have not been improved."

He insisted he was unworried "politically" about the coming winter.

"Politically we could pass fifty gray winters with nothing happening," he said, "but it's from the human viewpoint I am concerned because even the thought of families without necessities causes me physical suffering."

IOWA'S IDLE PUT IDLE LANDS TO WORK FOR THEM

Store Away Thousands of Cans of Foodstuff.

Des Moines, Ia., Oct. 23.—(AP)—Idle hands put to work on idle land have made the relief outlook brighter for Iowa's larger cities.

Jobless men by the hundreds have hoed and harvested abundant yields of vegetables and fruit from garden plots furnished free by the municipalities.

And their wives and daughters, who went to canning classes, have almost completed packing of thousands of jars of foodstuffs for winter needs.

Because of this useful employment of the unemployed, some charity workers in Iowa have predicted that their cities will have no serious relief problem this winter, even though an increase is expected in the number needing help.

Hundreds of Women Help.

In Burlington a women's club put up 3,000 quarts of vegetables. From previously vacant lots and a 29 acre community garden in Waterloo came enough produce to fill 27,000 cans. One Waterloo canning firm let jobless persons use its facilities, and 1,500 cans of beans from relief gardens were packed.

Fort Dodge women dropped bridge parties for canning bees, and stored 30,000 jars of carrots, beets, beans, peas, corn, and other vegetables for the city's poor this winter. A "can-a-can" drive in Fort Dodge netted ten thousand cans of food, and an association of unemployed women contributed 1,400 quarts.

Unemployed men in Ottumwa grew garden truck valued at $10,000 and their womenfolk prepared it for the winter. Community gardens in Mason City yielded enough to fill nearly 30,000 containers.

Make Clothes for Needy.

Similar campaigns were conducted in Dubuque, Des Moines, Marshalltown, and smaller communities.

Public and private relief agencies arranged for the plots, supervised planting, and, with the help of agriculture and home economics teachers, taught the women how to preserve the crops.

The growing season at an end, women, rich and poor alike in dozens of cities, are turning their attention to sewing garments for the needy from cloth furnished by the Red Cross and other agencies.

Several Iowa cities are planning to inaugurate sewer, street, and other municipal projects in order to give the jobless the relief they want most—work.

FASCISTS BOUND FOR ITALY FIGHT FOES IN FRANCE

CHAMBERY, France, Oct. 23.—(AP)—A party of local Italian Fascists, entraining tonight to attend the Fascist celebration to be held tomorrow in Turin, Italy, was involved in a clash with anti-Fascist compatriots.

Several shots were fired, but no one was wounded. Police arrested one Fascist, charging him with firing a revolver.

Police also are investigating several incidents which occurred in Mont Cenis pass. It was reported the French flag over a gendarmerie building was carried away.

Mystery Tales Acquire Merit of Intelligence

BY MORTIMER QUICK.

I DON'T know what it is that gives a book substance, makes it into something real and three dimensional. Anyway, it's the thing that most detective stories lack. Usually they have all the exaggeration and thinness of a comic strip gone tragic.

Priestly captured it in "The Old Dark House," which, in distinction, is as far ahead of his later books as it is in time.

Ben Ames Williams invests his books with this quality. They have an importance beyond their content which, I take it, is the chief function of a good book no matter what its intention and subject matter. In "Money Musk," all mixed up with murder and assorted crime, is the nicest kind of a story that you enjoy with your brain as well as with your solar plexus. Ex-Inspector Tope, elderly, fat, kindly, noses out a complicated series of disasters that result in suitable rewards for all the nice people, while the other kind get what's coming to them. If, and of course you are, an intelligent reader of crime fiction, I tell you confidently not to miss this book. In its line or any other it's a treat.

Another book that can be intelligently enjoyed is "The Castleford Conundrum" [Little, Brown], by J. J. Connington. If ever a man were caught in a net the rather footling hero of this involved story is so caught, and his extrication is a marvel of ingenuity on the part of Mr. Connington. And what a murderer. All through the book you are hoping that he-she-it will fall on to better days in the final pages, but even so, no hearts are broken in the dénouement. This is my idea of a grand and strictly legitimate detective yarn.

And another good one is "Poison in Jest" [Harpers], by John Dickson Carr. Another of those queer families that writhe through life in perpetual difficulties hits a new high in horrors and decimates itself with excellent results. You don't want to know that family, but you feel you quite credibly might and the members of it that are eliminated are just the ones you would get rid of yourself if you had been consulted.

In "The End of Mr. Garment" [Crime Club] Chicago's own Vincent Starrett is very mean to Chicago. If you go there from a foreign land you get killed and if you have to live there for a while you get killed maybe for a good reason, perhaps just inconsequentially. Or maybe you'll get your shoes stolen from off your feet and never, never find out what it's all about. Mr. Walter Ghost is detector in chief, but a host of others take a hand, all quite equal to their jobs and all wise-cracking well and frequently.

Ideas within ideas were preoccupying Mr. Starrett when he wrote this book. What leads to which, and why and just how literary a crime can be without taxing coincidence to the faking point is, I think, his thesis but, even so, seldom can I in one short piece recommend so many and such excellent books as these four to those who like tasty and intriguing murders.

Ruth Massey dedicates "Death in the Wind, or the Crime in the Boulevard Raspail" [Thomas Nelson & Sons] to "those who know nothing about art and those who know too much." Certainly if you have ever mingled in the art world of Paris you will recognize immediately several of the major and minor characters. They make a rich background for an interesting story which in its solution does not play exactly fair and leaves you pretty cold. But if you have dealt with Parisian art dealers, if you know the patois of the studios and cafés, if you are familiar with the work of great artists and the legends that have grown up around them and have listened to the gossip that enshrouds personalities of this very special milieu, you will find much to interest and amuse you in this knowing book.

And now we come to crimes which have baffled the real detectives as no fictional crimes would ever dare to do. "Murder Won't Out" [Doubleday-Doran], by Russell Crouse, spicily unfolds the details of about a dozen murders that have startled the gentle dwellers in New York during the last century and a half and whose perpetrators have gone unhonored and unsung. No less a person than Alexander Woollcott, who is Mr. Crouse's colleague on the staff of the New Yorker, allowed that he would enjoy reading such a book if Mr. Crouse would write it, and now, in a preface, he asserts that he has. And well he may. All that you could wish to know about Helen Jewett, Benjamin Nathan, Elwell, Starr Faithfull and others just as famous is here neatly and pithily set forth—except just exactly who it was that did the killing. The essentials of each horrid crime are condensed into a few apt pages, and I am in hearty agreement with Mr. Woollcott when he gives the book unstinted praise.

A Job a Day

Every little improvement we make in our home right now helps us—and the other fellow, too.

One of the best known methods of easing unpleasant odors out of a kitchen is the kitchen-ventilator-way. Such a ventilator may be of the portable type which you can take with you if you move. Or again it may be the built-in type. Placed in the upper sash of a window, or in an outside wall, or installed in a hood over the range, these ventilators are run by motors. Really glorified electric fans they are. Turned on or off at will, they can suck cold air in or force hot, stale air out.

Mayor's Threat to Show Boat Draws Reply

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

Mayor Cermak's announcement that he will not permit the show boat "Dixiana" to give theatrical performances in the Chicago river because it will not contribute to the city's revenues and will compete with the tax-paying theaters was received with amazement by Edwin Wapler, manager of the Great Lakes Show Boat corporation, yesterday.

"We have a permit to operate the 'Dixiana' in the Chicago river which was issued on a council order by Commissioner of Public Works A. A. Sprague when our corporation was organized," said Mr. Wapler. "Furthermore, we will pay the regular amusement license, like any theater—an annual fee of $1 a seat—which in the case of the 'Dixiana' will amount to $1,056. Our dockage charges will be $450.

"I will call to Mayor Cermak's attention, as soon as I can have an interview with him, the fact that the 'Dixiana' will give employment to 50 or 60 people, including actors, stagehands, mechanics, etc. To his argument that this show boat will compete with theaters that pay real estate taxes I will answer that many, if not most, of the theaters in Chicago are in default in their tax payments.

"The performances on the 'Dixiana' will not compete in any way with the productions in the established theaters. We will offer old-fashioned melodrama — a form of theatrical entertainment that has been dead for years—in an old-fashioned Mississippi river environment. The 'Dixiana' will be a complete novelty to Chicago and thus should attract visitors to the city and stimulate business in general.

"I am at a loss to understand Mayor Cermak's action. Our company has been at work on this project for a year. Our plans have been known among the theater managers of the city and have often been referred to in the newspapers. Why Mayor Cermak should declare his opposition to our project at this late date, when we are about to bring the boat into Chicago after spending $60,000 of Chicago money in its construction, is something that I cannot understand. The men behind the 'Dixiana' are Chicagoans and local taxpayers—not absentee Broadway impresarios."

When interviewed upon his stand against the "Dixiana" last night, Mayor Cermak stated that a letter from a prominent citizen of Chicago had prompted his action.

Parisienne Benefits by Couturiers' Bright Ideas for Rainy Day Garb

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS. — [Special.] — The French couturiers have given the old maxim about saving your pennies for a rainy day a new twist. They are saving some of their brightest ideas instead. Perhaps this is because Paris and rain have become practically synonymous, and Frenchwomen cannot afford to have their sartorial reputation dampened by a few showers. In any case the newest raincoats turned out of Paris salons can give their less practical sisters a run for their money—and on three counts, style, fabrics, and color. When is a coat a raincoat? is a pretty hard question to answer these days.

In the sketch today is shown the new 1932 raincoat that looks like anything but. It is a Lyolene model, in a heavy, ribbed material that resembles cheviot, but has a silky finish. It is prepared by a special process so that it is rainproof. Made on straight lines, it has a side front closing and a self-material belt.

Good! Quite good!

The movie makers have done themselves proud with this adaptation of Tiffany Thayer's sensational novel. They have skillfully eliminated a certain portion which could not have been filmed without giving offense; have retained and presented coherently and excitingly the meat of the story which is concerned with the power of suggestion.

Thirteen women, you learn, once attended a certain fashionable finishing school. One of them failed to make a sorority to which the others belonged. This half caste East Indian girl, who, like the parrot and the elephant, doesn't forget, becomes secretary to a Swami. Through this connection she works unbelievable havoc in the lives of her former classmates.

The longer we live the more mind-aware we become. Say, if you like, that this story is overdrawn. I suspect it is. But the fact remains that there is power in suggestion and so the happenings of the narrative under discussion are not without the bounds of possibility.

Astute direction and convincing portrayals of all the characters keep your interest keyed high. I predict that the film, like the novel, will be a best seller.

MINUTE MYSTERY CAN YOU SOLVE IT?

BY H. A. RIDLEY

Copyright 1932 By Ined Syndicate, Inc.

Dr. Fordney is professor of criminology at a famous university. His advice is often sought by the police of many cities when confronted with particularly baffling cases. This problem has been taken from his case-book covering hundreds of criminal investigations.

Try your wits on it! It takes but ONE MINUTE to read! Every fact and every clew necessary to its solution are in the story itself—and there is only one answer. How good a detective are you?

A MILLION TO ONE.

"I don't care what they tell you," sobbed Bertha Billings. "Jack Fahey and Harry Winters were friends!"

"Here's the bullet, professor," interrupted the police surgeon who had been summoned to the roadhouse. "Thirty-two caliber. Entered the left side of the neck and lodged just back of the right shoulder. He lived about ten minutes."

"Several people here say they heard Fahey and Winters arguing," said Fordney.

"That's a lie. They were loudly discussing a bet, but there wasn't any argument."

"I understand Jack was extremely jealous of you," stated the professor, taking in the vital beauty of the girl.

"That's not true. Jack knew I was a straight shooter—he had nothing to worry about."

"Tell me what happened."

"I was just stepping into the car when Jack took his revolver out. He'd been held up twice going home from this place and he wanted to make sure it was loaded. He—dropped it and it went off. Then I saw Harry fall to the road."

"What did you get out of him?" inquired Fordney as Kelley entered from another room where he had been questioning Fahey.

"O, they had time enough to make their stories agree. He says that as Bertha sat down in the car he accidentally dropped his gun and it went off, plugging Winters."

"Well," mused Fordney, "that could happen, all right. Though the chances are just about a million to one against it. Nevertheless, hold them. Winters was murdered!"

HOW DID THE PROFESSOR KNOW?

Family Will Spend Winter in Spokane or Seattle; Three Visitors Tell of Gold.

BY JUDITH CASS.

CHRISTY MANN is the envy of all her sister members of the Junior league and Service club who know what an adventurous life she has been leading this last summer and her letters make life in a western mining camp sound so alluring that I'll venture to say Christy will have plenty of guests next summer if guests fit into the scheme of life in the camp where Christy and her parents, the William H. Manns, and the twins, Betty and Billy, have been since June.

The Mann family, who used to live at the Belden-Stratford hotel, gave up their apartment in June and went out to a gold mine in which Mr. Mann was interested, about twenty-six miles from Libby, Mont., and there they have been working and developing the mine and having a thrilling time, according to Christy's letters to her friends here, and to descriptions brought back by Bob Ryan, John Goodwillie, and Jack Weisert, who were out there this summer but who are back in Chicago for the winter.

The Manns are planning to leave the mine and go to Spokane or Seattle for the winter, so that the twins can go to school, but they will be back at the mine next spring. Life in the mining camp is as primitive and colorful as it was in the days of the forty-niners, but not so dangerous, undoubtedly.

The occupants of the camp live in wooden cabins and their only mode of transportation other than their legs is on burros. That there is gold in "that thar mine" is proven by the hunks of it brought back by the three boys as souvenirs.

Christy never made a debut because she was ill the year she was to have gone to Miss Nixon's school in Florence and so had to give up that last year at finishing school and also the next year, when she would have been a debutante, but she did join the Junior league and the Service club and took as much part in the gay fastivities of that season several years ago as her health would permit. Before her illness she had been at the Mont Marie school at Lake Placid and before that she had attended the Latin school here.

Junior League Meeting Today.

The fall meeting of the Junior league will be held today at 10:30 o'clock at the Casino and will be followed by luncheon. Mrs. John G. Pratt of New Orleans, president of the Association of Junior Leagues of America, will address the meeting, and also will open the provisional lecture course tomorrow morning.

Mrs. Pratt is to be Miss Dorothy Schmidt's guest at the Schmidt apartment at 222 East Delaware place for several days and then will visit Miss Margot Atkin in Winnetka for a day or two. Miss Adelaide Atkin, who represented the Chicago league at the welfare conference in Boston this month, will report on that session at this morning's meeting.

One of the notable events of each season is the annual meeting and tea of the Needlework and Textile guild of the Art institute to be held this year at the Casino on Nov. 17 at 3:30 o'clock in the afternoon. Pieces of work done by members will be exhibited. Mrs. Chauncey B. Borland is president of the guild; Mrs. Potter Palmer and Miss Elizabeth McCormick, vice presidents; Mrs. Gustavus F. The Murder of Caroline Bundy

By ALICE CAMPBELL.

SYNOPSIS.

Neil Starkey, American biographer, is engaged by Caroline Bundy to compile the life and letters of her late father, a famous English historian. Miss Bundy is in poor health and acting peculiarly. She had hired a photographer, named Tilbury, as bailiff, and he and his wife, an ill-bred pair, hold a strange influence over her. Natasha Andreyev Caroline's half Russian niece, acts as her aunt's secretary. She detests the Tilburys. Caroline tells Neil that her father, a man of science, was also a mystic. Caroline and the Tilburys hold nightly seances in the library. Giles Gisborne, vicar of a nearby parish and his sister, Rachel, are friends of Neil's. Neil is attracted to Natasha, but is baffled by her odd behavior. She is giving money to a man she meets secretly. Caroline promises to visit Emily Braselton, an old friend, in Paris. Natasha drives her to London. Natasha returns a few days later and tells Neil that her aunt gave her a pearl necklace, which she sold. She receives a wire which Caroline sent from London, asking her to look for an alligator bag left in the car. The bag is not found. Caroline doesn't reach Paris. The police are notified. Her body is found in a ditch near her estate. She'd been brutally murdered. The Tilburys are left Caroline's fortune, on condition they search for the Holy Grail in the ruin of an ancient abbey on the estate, which Caroline believed to be her father's wish. Natasha is arrested. It is learned that the man she'd been meeting secretly was her wastrel brother, Michael, who has fled the country.

INSTALLMENT XXXVII.

ON TRIAL.

Rachel was sitting in the little drawing room, her eyes glued to a newspaper, which, as Neil threw open the door, dropped from her nerveless hand. With an expression as distraught as his own she sprang up, trembling in every limb.

"Rachel, you know Michael Andreyev was here. Now, how much did Natasha tell you about him?"

"Very little," she whispered, "and even that I'd given my word not to mention. He turned up unexpectedly in London, about three months ago. He'd given up his position—or so he said—on account of nerves and ill health. I swear to you I never dreamed he'd stolen money. Michael has always been restless and unstable—extravagant, too. She was worried, of course, because being an alien he couldn't hope for settled employment—but still, here he was, and she had to make the best of it. I'm afraid all her earnings lately must have gone towards supporting him."

"I guessed as much."

"She's obsessed with the idea that without her to look after him he'll come to grief. Her sense of responsibility towards him is—well, fanatical. Sophie, when she was dying, entrusted Michael to her care—begged her keep him out of trouble. It's something she can't forget."

"You met him, of course?"

"I? Never. She seemed to think he was in such a neurasthenic condition he was better left alone. I didn't even realize he wasn't using his own name. What I've just learned is a terrible revelation."

"Did you consider it possible," Neil asked, "that Michael committed this murder? Did you think that Natasha knew about it and that if such were the case it was safer for her sake to say nothing?"

Rachel's head sank as she murmured despairingly: "O! to think one should have such thoughts, now of all times, when the poor child needs all our trust and help!"

Rachel's head sank as she murmured despairingly: "O! To think one should have such thoughts, now of all times, when the poor child needs all our trust and help!"

Neil was pacing the lounge of the Bristol hotel agreed on as a rendezvous a full hour before the solicitor arrived.

"You've seen her? What has she told you?" he asked anxiously.

Grew led the way to a quiet corner and dropped into a seat. He drew one hand reflectively over his chin and did not speak until Neil had repeated the query impatiently.

"It's unsatisfactory. I don't believe I've ever dealt with a client who was so much more concerned over another's fate than her own. First of all, she flatly declines any assistance towards bringing Andreyev back."

"Declines! But she must be made to! Good God, it's sheer insanity!"

"Insanity or not, she won't, and that's that. Declares she has no notion where he is—there, I expect, she's speaking literal truth—but that even if she could produce him it would do her no good. O, she admits helping him to escape—says she put him up to it and gave him money. According to her he was quite ignorant of the murder till she rang him up from the call-box last Tuesday night. She said quite definitely, 'I can't stand this. He can't. I don't intend to have him ruined for something he didn't do'."

"Meaning——?"

"That if her brother is brought back, whatever else happens to him, he'll be clapped into a French jail for theft. He is guilty of that offense, of course, but she is determined he shan't pay the penalty. Yes, it's only too apparent she's thought it all out beforehand, foreseen the chance of being arrested, and prepared to meet it. Cool, collected——" He shrugged, giving it up. "Even when I told her she was doing her utmost to prejudice her case, she said yes, but that it couldn't be helped. What is one to do with a woman like that?"

Neil's heart sank when he thought of how Natasha must have reasoned all this out in advance and planned accordingly. Perhaps she even believed she would stand a better chance if tried alone. He rather fancied Grew had arrived at the opinion, but the lawyer remained carefully guarded as he passed on to other matters.

"Briefly, the situation is that: She still declares positively she never went near Bristol, and that the filling station man has simply confused her with some one else. Be that as it may, we must do our best to build up an alibi for her. She's given me some additional material to work on. I shall go ahead and test it. Perhaps it may prove sufficient."

"Thank God for that!" he exclaimed. "But why on earth didn't she come out with it sooner?"

"For fear of implicating her brother. Just as long as there was the slightest hope of keeping him in the background, she held her tongue, even though by doing so she was risking her reputation in other respects."

Yes, she had allowed it to be supposed she had spent the week-end with an unknown lover rather than give Michael away.

"It appears there are three Russians we've got to hunt up—the only persons in the whole of England who knew Andreyev by his own name. That is her excuse for not mentioning them before. The first——" He consulted his notebook—"is a man called Wassilieff—runs a motor business in Great Portland street, and lives at 6 Mid-Lothian mansions, Wimbledon."

"Then that's the friend she called on early in the evening."

"And failed to see. He was in Amsterdam. The porter, a new man, had never seen her before, and actually he didn't see her on this occasion, for the lights had gone out. Unfortunately, she didn't leave a card, or say who she was. It was after this she had her dinner at the Corner house—roughly from eight to eight forty-five, or it may have been from eight-fifteen to nine. If we succeed in finding a waitress who can recall her, it will smooth out a lot of difficulties. If not——" He stopped with ominous abruptness.

"But you mentioned three Russians. Who are the other two?"

"Yes, of course. You see, after going to Paddington station and finding her brother was not on the train she'd expected him by, also that there was no other train except the two-forty, she concluded Andreyev was motoring up. It was the sort of thing he would do in the excitement of getting her telegram——"

"So she sent him a telegram!"

"Certainly. Hadn't I mentioned that? Soon after she left her aunt she wired him to join her at once. She then decided to call in at a little restaurant in Rupert street, Soho, known to them both, and run by some people named Kosloff, former servants of her family in what was then St. Petersburgh. She stayed talking with the Kosloffs from eleven till twelve o'clock, up in their private rooms.

"She was with this couple for an hour before midnight?" cried Neil excitedly. "Well, then, there's proof for you. What more do you want?"

Grew shook his head. "It's not quite as good as you suppose. There are two reasons why the Kosloffs' word may be discredited. First, they are devoted partisans, ready to swear anything to help their old master's daughter. Second, Miss Andreyev admits going to them after the murder was discovered to beg them to say nothing unless it became absolutely urgent. That, at least, is her statement—but it may be held she had a totally different motive for her visit."

"But there must have been other people at the restaurant?"

"No—not as late as that. She saw no one but the Kosloffs themselves—but on the second occasion she was seen by a waiter. Makes it a bit difficult."

"I'm afraid, Mr. Starkey," continued Grew, lowering his voice, "there is worse in store for you. What I am now going to disclose accounts very plausibly for the prisoner's reluctance to speak, but unfortunately it casts black doubt on all her present assertions. There's no good mincing matters. You may as well know how we stand. You see, this is what happened——"

For some minutes he talked in an earnest strain. Neil, listening, felt as though icy fingers were closing round his throat, choking him by inches.

During the coming week there were two adjournments. At the second of these a true bill was found, and Natasha was committed for trial at the approaching sessions, on the charge of wilful murder.

"Music Hath Charms" Even in Depression

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Maybe we'd better look into this thing of music as a cure for worn and tired nerves! We're all suffering a little from them. Whether or not we have a real cause for letting our nerves fly, we somehow manage a case of them every now and then, if not all the time.

And quite remarkable results are being shown with music as the panacea for what ails the nerveworn. Experiments with those who've undergone such nerve panic and emotional strain as to render them "sick of mind" report the happiest results. Nothing, it is claimed, can lift one out of oneself quite so well as music.

Gandhi, it is reported, at the end of his recent six day fast called in a musician to play to him for an hour, the better to acquire that calm of soul and body so needed in his crisis.

Here's a cure open and handy to us all! Or, is there a home that still has no radio? Not all the music that comes over the air is restful to tired nerves and an ailing body. But there is much of it that is good; much of it soothing, if one will only put herself in the relaxed frame of mind necessary to the cure.

If you can raise a voice along with the air songsters and sing along with him or her, so much the better. Surely we could use a little more song in our homes! And more to the benefit of womankind in which this department is primarily interested, there's nothing like a little song to iron out that furrowed brow and relax the tense, hard-drawn facial muscles. What matter if your voice creaks in the effort? What matter if you sing off key? The vocal effect isn't what you're after so much as an outlet for the pent up emotions that are wearing you thin.

Greta Garbo to Return to Make Movie

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., Oct. 23.—[Special.]—If Greta Garbo can get her passport arranged she is due back here in December to start work on the as yet untitled story about Christina, daughter of Gustavus Adolphus, Sweden's warrior king, which recently was written especially for Greta by the wives of two well known movie workers.

At first it was supposed that the film would be made in Europe, partly in the localities where Queen Christina's rise to royalty, her abdication, her fondness for wearing men's clothes, and her final departure to Rome occurred.

The story on which Garbo's next film will be based is the work of Mrs. "Peg" (Albert Shelby) Livino, wife of the well known scenario writer, and herself a Chicago girl, and Mrs. Salka (Berthold) Viertel, wife of the German director, Mrs. Viertel is a German girl.

Mrs. Viertel is at present collaborating with Bess Mereyth of the MGM scenario staff in adapting the story into script form, so as to have it ready for Miss Garbo when she returns. Harry Edington, who is Miss Garbo's business manager, as well as Ann Harding's, is going to Europe to consult with the Swedish actress before her return plans are definitely announced.

When Miss Garbo returns to Hollywood she will not move back into the fenced and gardened cottage next to Zasu Pitts' home, but will move to a new place, more secluded from neighbors, in the Brentwood section of Hollywood.

Chicago promises to be the meeting place soon of another convention. Not political, but an aggregation much more amusing and distinctly more original. In a word, an assembly of spooks and spookesses.

And lest you have let the gala day of ghosts—Halloween—slip up on you unawares, here's for putting in a helping spoon and seeing what we can stir up for hungry hobgoblins, thirsty witches, and famished ghosts of all degrees of eeriness. Remember, I'm not talking to, at, or about just children. Everybody, from 5 to 90, loves spook parties, and nothing acts so well to turn acquaintances into friends as a cross-legged party held by the light of grinning jack o' lanterns and punctuated by the staccato of popping corn, the sizzling of hearth roasted apples or simply the summons to a 100 per cent ghostly dinner.

While a certain number of black cats, witches, and leering pumpkin faces are essential to any spook party, much of the delightful background decorations can come from a judicious raid on the fall woods and a corn field or two. Dusky orange candle light, branches of red and gold autumn leaves, cornstalks, pumpkins, goldenrod, cat tails, and baskets for cracked nuts and fresh fruit make a setting no ghost could resist. And if masks and costumes are the order of the day, or night, and if ribbons, apple bobbing, and like old time sports are offered with a leavening of new stunts and game suggestions brought by the guests themselves, veritable "whoopee" will be had by all.

Halloween menus may be as unconventional as your imagination dictates. Novel but completely delicious foods are the best party goers. Usually a buffet style suits the informality of Halloween best. For a riotous midnight spread, for instance, center the table with a jolly, fat jack o' lantern made from a real pumpkin. Use a white tablecloth and adorn it with fresh fall leaves and acorns. The menu should be such that the guests may help themselves to all except one dish, which may be served from the buffet table by the hostess. The following menu makes a jolly midnight supper.

HALLOWEEN GHOST SUPPER.

Hobgoblin Cocktail
Chile Con Carne on Spaghetti
Pumpkin Face Sandwiches
Marble Cup Cakes
Cider Nuts Coffee

First for the hobgoblin cocktail. This may be made in two ways. One may be really a salad of ripe pitted and chopped olives, diced celery minced pimento, and chopped walnuts blended with mayonnaise. This is then piled into carrot cups made by cutting off the heavy end of large carrots, making them about two inches high and hollowing out the centers. If desired, mince and use a little carrot in the salad proper.

The other hobgoblin possibility calls for small thick skinned oranges—one for each person to be served. Cut off the tops, leaving a good sized opening. Remove the center as much in sections as is possible and cut up. With the good whole pieces of oranges combine your own desired proportion of chopped dates and ground English walnuts. Blend with a little whipped cream mayonnaise and pile back into the orange cups.

Pumpkin face sandwiches offer all kinds of chance for originality in fillings and breads. One of the most delicious starts out with Boston brown bread for an open face sandwich. Slice the bread thin and spread each round with softened cream cheese which has been colored a rich golden orange with vegetable coloring. On each sandwich create a face with soft seedless raisins. Or, for another treat, cut thin rounds of white bread, spread with dark apple butter, and over each round place a very thin slice of cheese with a jack o' lantern face cut out of it. The brown of the butter shows through the holes and everybody is happy.

residence in Lake Forest for Miss Jocelyn Norie, who has recently come from London to be the instructor of the guild. Miss Norie will show some of the things that she is to teach the guild members to make at the tea, but since the guild sells only to members, there will be nothing on sale that day.

Debut for Miss Gordon.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Malcolm Gordon of 1420 Lake Shore drive are to give a dinner dance on Wednesday, Dec. 7, at the Drake hotel to introduce to society their daughter, Marion. Miss Isabel Gordon made her debut last season.

Miss Catherine Noyes is entertaining at dinner on Friday night for Miss Betty Frey, who is to become the bride of Gail Borden on Nov. 2.

The Chicago Drama league is giving a reception for the board of directors this afternoon at 3:30 o'clock in the crystal ballroom of the Blackstone hotel. Tom Powers will read an original monologue and Miss Edna Kellogg and Oscar Colcaire will present a group of songs.

Mrs. Walter B. Wolf is giving a dinner tonight at her residence in Winnetka before the meeting that the newly organized Women's Republican club of Winnetka will sponsor in the Skokie school. Henry J. Allen of Kansas is to speak at the meeting.

Open Model Work Room.

Mrs. George A. McKinlock of Chicago and Palm Beach has invited her committee of more than 100 prominent Chicago women to meet at 11 o'clock this morning at the opening of the Red Cross model work room at 35 East Wacker drive.

Mrs. McKinlock, as executive chairman of the cotton production committee of the American Red Cross, is to direct the making of more than 7 million garments in work rooms all over the city for distribution among needy families this winter.

Women's clubs and churches have been asked to sponsor other units and many already have started production in their own work rooms.

Mrs. Borden will be gowned in clothes more suitable for her daughter and Mrs. Stevenson's costume will be one that would be more becoming to a woman of Mrs. Borden's age.

Mrs. Borden is one of the youngest as well as one of the youngest looking grandmothers in society. Their accessories will be all wrong, too, and all in all they will look more like many of us do some of the time than mannequins in a smart fashion show.

The afternoon show will start promptly at 2:30 o'clock (no reserved seats except to boxholders) and the evening one at 7:45 o'clock, with all seats reserved.

Friends of Opera Group to Meet.

The executive committee of the Friends of Opera will hold a luncheon meeting at the Fortnightly on Wednesday of this week at 1 o'clock.

The American Friends of China will meet at a luncheon for Frederic Woodward, vice president and dean of faculties of the University of Chicago, next Monday at 12:30 o'clock in the marble room of the Blackstone hotel. Mr. Woodward, who recently returned from a visit to the orient as a member of the Laymen's Foreign Missions Inquiry, will talk on "Impressions of China."

There was a gay and fashionable throng at the opening of the Gold Coast room on Saturday evening at the Drake hotel. Miss Virginia Skinkle and her fiancé, Sydney Heap, were members of a party given by Miss Skinkle's uncle, Robert John Randolph of Washington, D. C.

Mr. and Mrs. George E. Marcy, who are to leave this week for their annual stay in California, had Mr. and Mrs. George M. Reynolds as their guests.

Among others who had parties of guests were Mr. and Mrs. James Otis Hinkley, who were accompanied by their niece, Mrs. William B. Schrant of New York; Mr. and Mrs. George W. Swigart, Miss Catharine Molloy, Leonard Florsheim, and Frederick Poole Jr.

Mrs. Crane to Reopen Home.

Mrs. Richard T. Crane and her daughter, Miss Florence, are expected to reopen their gray stone mansion overlooking Lincoln park at 1550 Lake Shore drive about the middle of next month and to spend at least the early part of the winter in Chicago.

Last winter they were here for only a few weeks and stayed at the Drake hotel. They have been at their summer estate at Ipswich, Mass., all summer.

Mrs. Crane's son and daughter-in-law, the Cornelius Cranes, who were also at Ipswich this summer, may come to Chicago a little earlier, as Mr. Crane is to be an usher at the wedding of Miss Virginia Skinkle and Sydney Heap on Nov. 12.

On the first or second of November Mrs. Joseph B. Long is to close her residence at 1540 Lake Shore drive and go to New York, where she has leased an apartment at the Hotel Pierre for six months.

She will spend some time in Palm Beach during the late winter and will return to Chicago in April. Although Mrs. Long travels a great deal, she does not plan to desert Chicago nor to give up her residence here, and she intends to be here for the opening of the World's Fair next June.

Mrs. Dunham to Return Soon.

Mrs. Robert J. Dunham, who is visiting in San Francisco, will leave there on the 29th of this month, accompanied by her sister, Mrs. Edward Otis Bartlett, who will spend a fortnight in Chicago with the Dunhams. Mrs. Dunham is being extensively entertained in San Francisco, which is where she lived before she was married to Mr. Dunham.

Mrs. Archibald T. Naugle, who has been ill at St. Luke's hospital, is leaving this week for Pensacola, Fla. Her daughter, Mrs. Billings M. McArthur, is accompanying her south but will return shortly.

Mr. and Mrs. James A. Waller of 220 East Walton place returned last week-end from a month's motor trip in the east.

William Scott Bond of the Webster hotel has gone far away to hunt ducks, to the cañons of Utah. It has been thirty-five years since Mr. Bond first went duck hunting in the Mormon state so he is particularly excited about this trip.

Mrs. Horton Conrad called to tell us of the fall meeting and tea of the Chicago Wellesley club to be held this afternoon out at the University of Chicago. The club members and their guests will gather at 2 o'clock at the Oriental institute to see the famous collections Dr. James Breasted has brought back from Egypt. At 3 o'clock the group will be taken through the new International house, which has Miss Lucinda Lord, a member of the class of 1931 at Wellesley, as the administrative manager. Tea is to be served in the parlors of the International house.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

SHOPPERS with a yen for gadgets must be having a grand time pursuing these sundries . . . you can be seriously engaged in shopping for one of the heavily massed fur trimmed winter coats, the new warm looking numbers with half a dozen pelts dropped, draped or festooned about the shoulder . . . you can be dashing about on the trail of some of the new magnificently puffed sleeved dresses . . . or greedily spending time and money on some of the newest evening creations . . . but if you fancy gadgets, you'll mark the spot where you last saw some original ideas worthy of a place in your collections and find your way back to them without losing much time.

One shop is busily engaged in releasing some extraordinary vanity cases among appreciative shoppers . . . they are the flattest things of a year of well flattened pockets and bags . . . they are pressed open with the fingers. There is sufficient room for a powder puff, a supply of face powder, some rouge and even money. These cases are of fine leather, in some particularly lovely shades, a brilliant red, jade green, a soft feminine blue and dark street colors such as brown, dark blue and black.

The best trick these cases perform is a most obliging one of sitting up and staying in a rigid position, like the best travel clocks in leather cases, and the large sized varieties look very much like these traveling time tellers. A good sized mirror is thus held in position while the lady powders her nose without the usual fuss of keeping the mirror balanced.

Some huge, important looking handbags made of a swanky rough tweed looking wool are so new and efficient and easy to keep tucked under a shopping arm, that the first supply can not last long. They are real finds for the shopper who is heavily addicted to carrying practically everything she owns in one bag. These round capacious affairs are surely big enough and fitted with enough pockets, compartments, divisions and even subdivisions, to keep the most excess baggage toter satisfied.

These zippers brighten the existence of this busy bag . . . two long ones that streak across the top sections and keep the contents from spilling . . . and a third zipper that is located in a perpendicular position at one end only. This provides a long dark cavern where you can stow your gloves and an extra supply of handkerchiefs or anything else you may need during the day. It's a great idea for a cold day, for chilled fingers can be thawed out in the same long compartment.

The colors are startling and high fashion, rich russet reds, a burnt orange shade, a knockout cinnamon brown and a stunning deep green . . . they are perfect companions for the rough tweed and wool suits for street and sports wear.

These same well constructed and capacious models also are available in smart leathers to match swagger street oxfords in dark brown, blue and black.

Two Notable Music Events in Single Day

BY EDWARD MOORE.

Two famous artists drew two warmly enthusiastic audiences yesterday afternoon. The audiences were perhaps not as large as they would have been in boom times. The artists, Giovanni Martinelli, operatic tenor, and Fritz Kreisler, violinist, occupy entirely different fields in music, yet the applause was the same in both cases, so cordial and prolonged that it gave a little extra enjoyment to hearing the program.

Mr. Martinelli was a visitor at the Chicago Stadium, a soloist in the first concert by the operatic orchestra there, and hence a potent figure in the fine musical campaign now being conducted by that organization. He began with the "M'appari" of the opera, "Martha," a tune whose simplicity and charm have made it immortal, and he was in the best of his fine, brilliant voice. Applause was thunderous, and encores began to be demanded. He later sang "Una furtiva lagrima," the best liked aria in "The Elixir of Love," and the big aria from "La Juive."

He had been preceded by another soloist, Sonia Sharnova, contralto, who sang Carmen's first aria, which had been sung from the same stage the night before, and because of excellent voice and performance made a hit of her own in it. The orchestra was under the baton of Maurice Goldblatt, who conducted such enjoyable numbers as the "Tannhäuser" overture and the first movement of Schubert's "Unfinished" symphony with an air of unhurried detachment.

Time pressed, and it was necessary to leave for Orchestra hall, where Mr. Kreisler was giving a recital. Here is a great artist who knows how to have ideals and be popular at the same time. It was impossible to get there in time to hear Beethoven's "Kreutzer" sonata, but when he embarked upon a concerto in A minor by Viotti, the serene, lovely tone of his violin seemed just a bit more golden than ever.

This is a first class concerto, brilliant for the technician, tuneful for those who like melody, all in a skilled blend. Then came a group of short pieces, two by Ravel and Debussy, two of Mr. Kreisler's arrangements of pieces by de Falla and Albeniz, and two revivals of his most charming compositions, "Caprice Viennois" and "Liebesfreud." In this group his violin sang angelically and then turned to dance as though the souls of Pavlowa and Diaghilett had come to inhabit it.

Too Generous Wife Made This Mate Selfish

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"Good women get selfish men and good men get selfish women!"

This is the conclusion "Mrs. T. L." comes to after years of playing the good woman rôle. As she understands her good woman! Her interpretation of what is a good woman to a husband may be wrong. Let's see from her case history.

She married the man not because she loved him so much as because without him she saw a long, lone future stretching ahead.

The man, self-made, in himself was sufficient of a gift to woman. He had appearance, he was charming of manner, and he was kind in the beginning, at least. Up until his marriage, he kept his family in the background. But when they were produced, they proved an impossible group. Their chief fault was their refusal to work. They were leeches intent on bleeding this brother of theirs and the supposed rich woman.

In his family's hands the man was putty. His mother, a sister, 29, and a brother, 27, became dependents whose wants could not be satisfied. So, the woman's funds eventually began to wane under the pressure. She gave and gave until eventually the exchequer was drained.

Meanwhile, she practiced the wifely duties of the good woman. Today, she is practically penniless and through the influence of his greedy tribe the man's affection has fled.

Now, a good woman for a husband to have is one who knows when to lend and when to withdraw the helping hand, when to stand up for what is right and fair, when to assert her own personal rights! If men become selfish through the indulgences of a mate who cannot say NO, that's her fault.

Public Schools to Mark Navy Day Next Thursday

Navy day will be celebrated with special programs in Chicago's public schools next Thursday, according to the announcement yesterday of Dr. Charles J. Lunak, assistant superintendent. The nation's naval heroes and the late President Theodore Roosevelt, builder of the navy to a first class power, will be commemorated in assemblies of students in the high schools and elementary schools.

Chicago—Simas for Martin, Lillard for Shelly, Hill for Holm, Steinback for Keiseling, Moore for Malloy, Moynihan for McNally, Kinsley for Creighton, Williamson for Douds, Martin for Malloy, Kinsley for Rogge, Graham for Hambler.

Providence, R. I., Oct. 23.—[Special.]—The Chicago Cardinals of the National Football league this afternoon defeated the Providence Steam Rollers, former members of the league, 7 to 0.

Creighton, left end of the Cardinals, made a touchdown when he intercepted a lateral pass on the 50 yard line and raced to the goal. Lillard completed the scoring by drop kicking the point after touchdown. The score came in the first period, during which neither team could make a first down.

Cardinals March 57 Yards.

Following the score the Cardinals were on the defensive until the closing minutes when they staged a march of 57 yards to carry the ball within three yards of the Steam Roller goal line. The threat ended with Williams of Providence throwing Martin for a 10 yard loss on fourth down. Moore's 25 yard pass to Creighton started the march. Martin contributed a 15 yard run.

Coming back after Providence was forced to kick, the Cardinals made another bid which ended when Creighton dropped a long pass from Holmer, in the end zone.

Tighten Defense Near Goal.

Providence advanced inside the Cardinals' 20 yard line eight times, three as the result of penalties, but the Chicago eleven repulsed each attack. Creighton, Rogge, and Kinsley on the ends and Gordon at tackle turned back practically every try at the ends. Providence's aerial attack bothered the Cardinals considerably in midfield, but never near the goal line.

Lillard intercepted three forwards on the Cardinals' goal line, Martin took another, four were incomplete and one was caught outside the end zone by a Providence player.

The Cardinals' offensive failed completely in the first three periods, but in the final quarter Moore, Martin and Holmer hit their stride and registered four first downs.

WHO IS GOING TO STOP MICHIGAN AND NOTRE DAME?

Well, It's Your Question; You Answer It.

Northwestern's fourth period rally against Purdue Saturday, which tied the score, 7 to 7, after the superior ground gaining of the Boilermakers had threatened to turn the game into a rout, gave Chicago fans their first real football treat this season.

Purdue was disappointed. While the Boilermakers still may have an undefeated season, and if they win their remaining Big Ten games they will finish with 1.000 per cent, yet Northwestern dealt them a severe blow, particularly if Michigan continues without halt. The Wildcats also are entitled to believe they have scored a moral victory, for following their setback at Michigan Purdue had been rated the favorite.

Michigan Should Win.

It may be early to talk championship, but while one must not overlook Chicago, which defiated Indiana Saturday, 13 to 7, it seems safe to predict Michigan will win the title. Illinois was crushed 32 to 0 Saturday and for the first time this year Michigan rolled up impressive yardage by running and plunging. After the intersectional game with Princeton at Ann Arbor this week-end, the Wolverines meet Indiana, Chicago and Minnesota. None of these opponents will match Michigan in general strength, although an upset is possible somewhere along the line.

Chicago's fleet backs, led by Sahlin and Zimmer, jumped into a 13 to 0 lead and then staved off all except one Indiana rally. The Maroon victory certainly is gratifying to the Midway and undoubtedly Coach Stagg has the best wishes of the general public in what apparently will be his last season as coach. Chicago's triumph may be classed as an upset in view of Indiana's 7 to 7 tie with Ohio State and its victory over Iowa a week ago.

Ohio State's scoreless tie with Pittsburgh jolted the eastern eleven, which one week ago outrushed the Army and was pointing to the impending fray with Notre Dame. Perhaps Pitt underestimated Ohio's strength, particularly its defensive ability, in the light of Michigan's 14 to 0 victory over the Buckeyes. At any rate, Pitt joins Purdue in consolation and now must defeat Notre Dame to redeem itself.

How to Stop Irish?

Just how Pittsburgh, or any other team, may expect to whip Notre Dame is an item for conjecture. Carnegie Tech, not a poor team, by any means, succumbed Saturday, 42 to 0, and, incidentally, Notre Dame added six extra points to as many touchdowns. It was reported early in September that Notre Dame had the best team in its history. For quantity of material, for ability, weight, speed, etc., Notre Dame is in a class by itself. Only unforeseen accidents, fumbles, or overconfidence can keep it from an undefeated season. The Four Horsemen now have become eight, with other equally valuable replacements.

Kansas' beefy team, which is host to Notre Dame Nov. 5, dropped another Big Six game Saturday when Nebraska continued its dash for the title with a 20 to 6 victory. Oklahoma, which a year ago tied with Missouri for last place, kept pace by licking Kansas State, 20 to 13, in a last period rally. Missouri held Iowa State to a scoreless tie for its best showing of the year, but the chances are these two universities will share last place in the final standings.

Iowa Scores.

In the other Big Ten game Saturday Minnesota defeated Iowa's hapless eleven 21 to 6. However, the Hawkeyes had the satisfaction of scoring their first touchdown in Big Ten play since 1929. Wisconsin, which engages Ohio State Saturday, ran over Coe college, 39 to 0. The Bucks loom most important to the Badgers, for if Wisconsin wins it sees promise of finishing its schedule with one defeat. Chicago, Minnesota, and Illinois are its other Big Ten foes.

The central west gave the east several football lessons Saturday. Coupled with Ohio State's ambush of Pitt and Notre Dame's triumph over Carnegie were victories by Marquette university and Michigan State. Marquette trounced Boston college at Mil-

My Greatest Thrill in Football

BY WILLIE HESTON.
[As told to Harvey Woodruff.]

MY greatest football thrill came in the first game I ever played for Michigan. It was in 1901 against Albion, which, if I remember rightly, did not make a first down all afternoon and was beaten, 50 to 0, although the halves were shortened to 20 minutes each.

You see I had come on from San José Normal school in California a comparatively unknown freshman—freshmen were eligible then—but had gone to Whittemore lake for the preliminary practice. We had preliminary practice and a training table then.

Observation on Bench Paves Way for Play.

When I arrived at Whittemore lake I felt very discouraged, for I learned that the entire regular back field from the year before was back. Those boys were Boss Weeks at quarter, the great kicker, Sweeley, and Reid and Shaw. But I kept on trying.

That was Fielding Yost's first year as Michigan coach and the start of the so-called "point-a-minute" teams, which were not beaten until 1905. Well, for some reason, Yost formed the opinion I might be good at backing up the line. So after Michigan rolled up a safe total in the first half, I started the second half in the back field.

Not Greatest Play, but Greatest Thrill.

While sitting on the bench I had noted that Albion's guard played very wide of his center, and that the quarter back made rather long passes to his backs to start their runs, if any. We kicked off. As Albion lined up, instead of backing up the line, I sneaked in between our guard and center opposite the hole in the Albion line. When their signal was given, I dashed through, grabbed the ball as their quarter tried to throw it to a back, and as there was no one to stop me, I went on 30 yards to a touchdown. That brought me considerable attention, and I was pretty much of a regular after that.

It wasn't the greatest play I ever made, of course, but it gave me the greatest thrill of the four years I wore the maize and blue. The greatest thrill I could get now would be to see my son Jack make a touchdown for Michigan.

Here is a clipping of that Albion game from THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE. It read: "Heston, the star back from California, is counted the biggest find so far among the newcomers and stands a good show to a berth in the back field."

WILLIAM HESTON.

Willie Heston probably was Michigan's greatest player and the ground gaining star of Michigan's unbeaten teams during his four years of competition, 1901-1904. He was named on Walter Camp's all-American elevens of 1903 and 1904 and is included in the roster of every all time Michigan eleven named. He studied law and was on the bench as a Detroit judge for one term. He is now engaged in real estate activities. He moved his family to Ann Arbor when his sons, Willie Jr. and Jack, entered Michigan. He commutes to Detroit daily, returning in time to watch football practice.

Tunney Stumps for Roosevelt, but Can't Vote

Stamford, Conn., Oct. 23.—[Special.]—James Joseph (Gene) Tunney, retired world's heavyweight champion, who stumped the state of Maine for Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt for President, will not be able to cast a vote for his man in November.

Tunney forgot to take the voter's oath, and as yesterday was the last day in which new voters in this state can become eligible to vote, his oversight will bar him voting. Confinement in a New York hospital for treatment for a throat affliction probably was the reason for his neglect to qualify to vote.

Black Sheep of Sing Sing Lose, 18 to 7

Ossining, N. Y., Oct. 24.—[Special.]—Sing Sing's Black Sheep suffered their first defeat of the year today, losing 18 to 7 to the Kingston Yellow Jackets. Sing Sing sorely missed the services of Jumbo Morino, who as defensive full back last week sent several of the Port Jervis police team to the hospital. Jumbo did not even see today's game, having graduated at the request of the pardon board last Thursday.

In the second quarter, Sing Sing's right half back got off a poor punt to his own 40 yard line. Kingston worked the ball to Sing Sing's one yard line, where the Black Sheep held for three downs. Beamy finally took it over for the first score.

Three Kingston passes gained 40 yards and the full back, whose name on the score card was Alabama Christmas, went over for the second score.

Early in the third quarter a pass from Pitts to Hayes was intercepted on Sing Sing's 28 yard line and the Yellow Jackets quickly converted the break into a third touchdown.

Then the Black Sheep braced and marched steadily up the field. Once they fumbled, but recovered. Pitts hurled a short flat pass to Left End Moore, who scored. Pitts kicked the goal.

CLASSIC TEAMS AVERAGE 1,024 IN ASSAULT ON PINS

One of the highest averages for a bowling league at one session was recorded last night by the ten teams of the Classic league. Aggregate scores produced a 1,024 team average, which when reduced to an individual basis means that every man in the league averaged nearly 205.

During the heavy bombardment of pins the two top teams lost five of their six games, Lorens Knitting losing two games to the S. and L. Motors and the De Barrys dropping three to the Baby Ruths. This upheaval enabled the Motors to take second place from the De Barrys.

Results:

Green Rivers defeated A. J. Cermaks, 954—1,036—1,036 to 977—1,052—870.

Green Bay, Wis., Oct. 23.—[Special.]—The Green Bay Packers tightened their grip on first place in the National Football league today by defeating Benny Friedman's Brooklyn Dodgers, 13 to 0, on a rainswept gridiron before a crowd of 5,000.

The National league champions made their first touchdown early in the opening quarter. Herber, who punted well for the Packers, kicked over the goal line. The Dodgers put the ball in play on their 20 yard line. On the first play Friedman attempted a lateral pass, which Al Rose intercepted and dashed 18 yards for a touchdown. O'Boyle missed the goal kick.

Towards the close of the game the Packers made several first downs in succession, which placed them inside the Dodgers' 40 yard line. Blood was sent into the game. He caught a forward pass from Herber and ran to the 1 yard line. Herber crashed over on the next play and O'Boyle added the extra point.

The Dodgers piled up great yardage in midfield, but once the Brooklyn team got within threatening distance the Packer line held to stop Friedman and Cox in their tracks.

GIANTS, BRAVES TIE.

Play in the first half was mostly between the 20 yard lines. In the third period the Braves made their only serious scoring threat, reaching the Giants' 15 yard line before the home team braced. The Giants were inside Boston's 15 yard line three times in the fourth quarter, but the Braves' smashing line play stopped them. The punting of Cliff Battles of Boston, former West Virginia Wesleyan player was a feature.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

The Chicago Bears in six plays from scrimmage yesterday afternoon at Wrigley field broke their scoring record for the season. This touchdown, the first in five National Professional league games, was only a beginning, however, for the Bears eventually compiled a 27 to 7 victory over the visiting Stapletons from Staten Island, N. Y.

At first glance the Bears' case might be considered hopeless. Actually, in five games they have won one, lost one and competed in three scoreless ties. One of the zero games was against the Stapletons on their own gridiron.

First Touchdown Against Bears.

Another record, as far as the Bears are concerned, was broken when Hinton plunged for the Staten Island touchdown. This was the first touchdown of the year against the Bears, for Green Bay, victor a week ago over the Chicagoans, triumphed by the margin of a safety.

The story of the Bears' touchdown in six plays, which caused no manner of rejoicing among the players, who had begun to think they never would cross an enemy goal line, reads like this:

After Keith Molesworth had returned the first Stapleton punt to the enemy 31 yard line in a brilliant run of 20 yards, Dick Nesbitt plunged through tackle for seven yards. Nesbitt again shot through the same position and continued to the Stapleton 12 yard line. Nesbitt added a yard and then Naguraski failed to gain. On third down Grange took a short pass behind the line of scrimmage, but the best he could do was a yard.

On fourth down Molesworth forward passed to Grange running into the end zone, and Red grabbed the ball. Molesworth held the ball for Tiny Engebretsen, who place-kicked the extra point.

Crowd Numbers 27,540.

The Bears couldn't have picked a better day to get their offense under way, for yesterday's official attendance was posted as 27,540. Of these, however, 19,000 were ladies' day guests.

The Bears added another touchdown in the first half to quit the field leading 13 to 0. Even so they had only an advantage of one first down in ground gained, the record for the half reading 6 to 5. The Stapletons did well between the 30 yard lines, but under pressure of a tightened Bear defense could not go on.

Molesworth, who had set the stage for the first touchdown, continued to play an active part. He handled kicks as if he were catching a baseball, and after each he side-stepped, dodged and twisted to nullify a great portion of the distance gained by the kick. Molesworth's 25 yard return of a punt in the second period started the Bears to a second touchdown. Molesworth came back to the Stapletons' 34 yard line. Nesbitt smashed through tackle for 14 yards on the first play, and then alternated with Naguraski in an advance to the 10 yard line.

Stapleton threatened toward the close of the second period. Bob Campiglio, who was the outstanding back of the visitors, was responsible for the major portion of the ground gained. He carried the ball three times out of four until the drive reached midfield. Here Doug Wycoff passed to Ken Strong for 13 yards and the Bears were penalized 15 yards for piling on the runner. Shortly afterward, interference on a forward pass was called, and the Stapletons had the ball on the Bears' 17 yard line.

Double Forward Pass Illegal.

Three yards in three tries called for a forward pass. The pass was completed, but Strong, the receiver, was had taken the ball near the scrimmage line, then backed up and heaved a

HUNTERS REPORT BAGGING WIDGEON IN CHICAGO AREA

"Baldpates" Are Plentiful, They Say.

BY BOB BECKER.

Duck hunters who visited the Illinois shooting country on the opening day reported a large number of widgeon in parts of the marsh country and quite a few of these beautiful ducks were bagged. Some of the shooting holes near the Sangamon river were especially well populated by the baldpates, as the American widgeon is widely known.

Lucky are the hunters who can get into flocks of widgeon because this species is not only one of the most beautiful waterfowl in the eastern hemisphere, but also is delicious eating. In our estimation the widgeon ranks with the canvasback for the table. The male bird is a beauty in his nuptial clothes. Immediately behind his eye he has a vivid green patch. His back is a beautiful rich brown, lighter than the brown which decorates the throat and cheeks of the pintail or sprig. On top of the widgeon's head is the white spot which gives him the name baldpate.

Has Many Colors.

This bird has more contrasty colors on his wings because here you find brown, white and a patch of dark green that is edged with black. Thus the baldpate is a fleshy distinctive bird which the hunter can distinguish quite easily.

Usually we have had our best sport with both gadwalls [or gray ducks] and the widgeon during the October shooting days. Two years ago when we were hunting near Lacon, Ill., in late October we had a day's shoot in a marsh which had many widgeon. In fact, the entire day's sport was a parade of waterfowl which was predominately pintails and mallards but every few minutes a small bunch of widgeon would flash their colors in the sun and perk up the party.

Widgeon Likes Marshes.

The American widgeon likes the marshes in which wild rice grows. Here in the middle west where it can feed on this excellent food it becomes a fine bird for the table whereas farther west where it finds other foods the baldpate is less palateable. Although a rather poor diver compared to such ducks as the canvasbacks and the bluebill, the widgeon is smart enough to stay near some of the experts and then make way with some of the wild celery which the other birds bring up.

On large bodies of water where the wild celery is abundant it is not surprising to find flocks of widgeon mixing with the poor old mudhens and robbing them of wild celery because the mudhens are good divers and can go deep for their food.

A. A. ADOPTS SALARY LIMIT; SCHEDULE SAME

Club owners of the American association adopted a monthly salary limit of $6,500, and again decided to play a 168 game schedule, at the closing session of their special meeting yesterday at Congress hotel.

The salary limit will be the first in the thirty-one year history of the association. It was adopted in accordance with the recommendation by the executive committee of the National Association of Baseball Leagues.

Open on April 12.

There had been some agitation for a 154 game schedule, but the only change was in the closing date. The schedule, which will be formally adopted at the regular meeting in Columbus, O., in December, will open April 12 and will close Sept. 17, shortening the season one week. The closing date is the same as adopted by the International league, the champion of which meets the American association pennant winner each fall in the little world series.

The spring training period, the length of which previously has been at the discretion of individual club owners, will be limited to four weeks. No action was taken on a proposal to cut the player limit from 20 to 17 men.

Plan Aid for Toledo.

A committee, headed by L. S. MacPhail, president of the Columbus club, was appointed to work out a plan to insure the maintenance of the same eight clubs which have been members of the league since its founding. The business of the committee will be to arrange for support of the Toledo franchise, upon which the Cleveland American league club failed to take up an option to purchase, and which is in receivership.

Busy Chocolate Fights Blitman in Ring Feature

New York, Oct. 23.—(AP)—The busy little Cuban, Kid Chocolate, and a couple of veteran heavyweights, Tom Heeney and George Godfrey, lead the national boxing program this week.

Chocolate, who recently won the recognition of the New York state athletic commission as featherweight champion in addition to the synthetic junior lightweight title he already held, fights Harry Blitman, Philadelphia lightweight, at Detroit Thursday. Neither of Chocolate's titles is to be at stake.

Heeney, the last opponent of Gene Tunney before he retired, faces John Schwake, a home town boy, in a ten round bout at St. Louis the same night. Godfrey, who has been absent from the ring for some time and even tried his hand at wrestling, will meet Al Fay of Charleroi, Pa., in a ten round match at Philadelphia tomorrow.

WEDNESDAY—At Okland, Cal., Midget Wolgast vs. Young Tommy, flyweights, ten. At San Francisco, Lou Scozza vs. John Henry Lewis, light heavyweights, ten. At Seattle, Freddy Steele vs Tommy Herman, welterweights, six.

Karl Eitel! Will Alderman Get Even on Him Today?

BY FRENCH LANE.

The racegoers who are lingering on in Chicago until the close of the season at Sportsman's Park next Saturday are wondering what Ald. John J. Coughlin's high class horse, Karl Eitel, is going to do in the Washington Park purse at five furlongs this afternoon.

The Coughlin horses have taken one beating after another ever since the Chicago season opened last May. They have all but left their First ward followers broke. But most of the Coughlin color bearers were cheap selling platers. Karl Eitel is something more than that. He beat a great field when he was a 3 year old in the $25,000 Derby at Fairmount park.

Karl Eitel is a 6 year old now and hasn't accomplished much since he won the Fairmount Derby. Yet, most of the folks in the First ward will wager on him today to beat such flyers at Malolo, Hot Shot, Miss Brilliant, Full Up, and Diaquri, the half mile champion.

There probably isn't a stable in America that has met up with more reverses than Ald. Coughlin's this year. The alderman and all his constituents thought these horses which were to sport the famous Coughlin apple blossom jacket would make them rich. They were royally bred and had been purchased at a fancy price when youngsters.

Sad Sam was there lining the rails with his watch in his hand and shook his head. He was frank and said he didn't think the route was far enough for Karl Eitel.

"Malola, Hot Shot, Miss Brilliant, and Miss Melody will lose him in the short dash," remarked Sad Sam.

Sad Sam isn't in such bad luck. After Shasta Charm was disqualified in the last race on Saturday, Sad Sam was at the cashier's window for 30 minutes cashing tickets on Jack Alexander, which had been moved into first place as a result of the disqualification.

Plenty of Jack Alexander tickets were on the floor torn into thousands of pieces by the folks who rushed on home after they watched Shasta Charm finish in front of old Jack. They didn't know there was a disqualification until they read it in THE TRIBUNE yesterday morning.

B'ar Hunter, E. R. Bradley's 3 year old which has failed almost as often as the Coughlin horses this season, will not cost his backers any more money. Col. Bradley has donated him to the United States army remount service. . . . Twenty Grand has worked a mile and a quarter at Laurel in 2:07 2-5, yet in his racing efforts he hasn't looked like the Twenty Grand of a little more than a year ago. He may try for the mile and a quarter of the Maryland handicap next Saturday . . . The folks in San Francisco are so enthusiastic about racing the Tanforan meeting has been extended for a week . . . Warren Wright of Chicago has purchased from Baron de Rothschild of Paris the noted brood mare Zohra, which will be shipped to Mr. Wright's Calumet farm in Kentucky. Those Wright Calumet farm horses will be beating the best in the land in another couple of years.

Commended highly by Coach Dick Hanley for the display of courage in averting defeat by a spirited fourth quarter offensive march, Northwestern's Wildcats were told to forget football yesterday and will be granted the customary midseason Monday rest.

As a result comparatively few footballs will be tossed around Dyche stadium today as the vacationers include 20 Purple warriors who saw most of the action in the 7-7 tie with Purdue Saturday.

Although pointing out many faults, Hanley praised the spirit which eventually led to the touchdown march directed by Quarter Back George Potter. "You had what was most needed —courage," was Hanley's comment, "and I'm certainly proud of the way you kept your chins up."

Heuss Wins Praise.

Hanley was well satisfied with the way in which the team's reserve strength came through. Jack Heuss, in particular, came in for his share of praise. Heretofore a third string left tackle, he was shifted to right tackle last Wednesday when it became apparent that Bob Gonya might not play, and outcharged the Boilermaker line. Whalen and Gottschalk, sub guards, also looked well and will undoubtedly be in the thick of the fight for starting positions from now on.

Pug Rentner, Ollie Olson, and George Potter, who were reported as arranging to celebrate Saturday night at a downtown hotel after the Purdue game, yesterday were upset by the report. They insisted that they had made no such plans.

"The players are permitted to stay out until midnight after games," Coach Hanley said yesterday. "But while I don't believe attendance at a dance would be breaking training, these players are outstanding in maintaining training rules and team morale. We have had no trouble with violation of rules and I am certain that the report was incorrect."

Last Saturday the Maroons rolled up two touchdowns on an Indiana team which the experts had picked to beat them before the underdog illusion wore off. Thereafter the Hoosiers made one touchdown and the Maroons none.

The Maroons will have need this week for avoiding any excess optimism, since next Saturday's game brings Illinois, oldest traditional rival of Chicago, to the Midway, with its best chance of the current season for a Big Ten victory.

Part of Chicago's failure to score in the second half against Indiana may be due to the fact that Vin Sahlin and Pete Zimmer, its two leading ball carriers, were too bruised to play the entire game. Sahlin played part of the half with three stitches in his upper lip. Both may be spared any undue exercise today and tomorrow.

SEES ILLINI IMPROVING.

Champaign, Ill., Oct. 23.—[Special.]—Despite the decisive defeat by Michigan, Coach Bob Zuppke said today that the Illinois football team showed flashes which indicated it is improving in some departments of the game.

Zuppke listened today to reports of his scouts at the Chicago-Indiana game, which indicated that the Maroons will be a hard team to beat, although it is felt Illinois has a chance. Tomorrow Zuppke will begin preparing the Illini for the trip to the Midway. Casey Straw probably will be retained at end. It is doubtful whether Fred Frink will be able to rejoin the team.

MICHIGAN "VACATION" ENDS.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Oct. 23.—[Special.]—The week of preparation that put Michigan in shape for its decisive victory over Illinois today was termed a vacation by Coach Harry Kipke. The implication was that the squad will go back to hard work to be ready for Princeton here on Saturday.

REGULARS TO GET DAY OFF.

Columbus, O., Oct. 23.—[Special.]—Although Ohio State's football team came through the game yesterday with Pittsburgh without serious injuries, several first string players received painful bruises which will necessitate a week of easy training for the game here with Wisconsin next Saturday.

The contest with the Badgers will be the annual Dad's day game as well as the 11th meeting between the two teams. In ten previous clashes the Buckeyes have won five and Wisconsin four. A scoreless tie was played in 1930. The rivalry dates back to in 1930.

SCRIMMAGE FOR IRISH.

Notre Dame, Ind., Oct. 23.—[Special.]—Notre Dame's plan to take each game in stride this year without pointing for any of them was scheduled for a slight revision in preparation for Pittsburgh next Saturday when Coach Anderson announced a scrimmage for one of the first three teams tomorrow. It will be the first Monday scrimmage this year and the sixth scrimmage of the season for whatever team he selects.

Notre Dame came through its 42 to 0 victory over Carnegie Tech Saturday without serious injury. The Tech game gave the team a total of 177 points, or 59 per game, for three games. Any hopes of becoming a point-a-minute team should be crushed by one of the strongest lines in the country next week.

Wet Tracks Postpone Evanston, Calumet Races

The auto races scheduled for yesterday at the Evanston and Calumet race tracks were postponed because of the wet condition of the tracks. The races will be held next Sunday.

DICK TRACY—The Coup

AFTER JUNIOR'S DISCOVERY OF A BOTTLE HID IN THE LOAF OF BREAD HE TOOK IT TO TRACY. THEN, OVER SUNDAY, TRACY HAD THE BOY LEAD HIM TO THE "BAKERY" WHICH WAS UNOCCUPIED. BUT WHERE THE DETECTIVE DISCOVERED ADDITIONAL QUANTITIES OF DOPE.
JUNIOR, DO YOU THINK YOU CAN KEEP A SECRET?
SURE!
WELL THEN—DON'T SAY A WORD TO ANYBODY ABOUT WHAT WE'VE DISCOVERED. THAT MAN YOU'RE WORKING FOR IS A CROOK, AND THIS IS YOUR CHANCE TO HELP ME CAPTURE HIM AND HIS GANG IF YOU DON'T TALK.
CHEE, YOU CAN 'PEND ON ME, TRACY
NOW, TONIGHT AFTER SCHOOL—GO BACK THERE AGAIN JUST LIKE YOU'VE BEEN DOING—AND GO ON ABOUT YOUR DUTIES AS THOUGH NOTHING HAD HAPPENED. PAT AND I WILL DO THE REST.
OBOY! I SURE WILL.
ONE HOUR LATER AT HEADQUARTERS
BUT WHAT DO YOU MEAN, TRACY?
I MEAN THAT THAT KID HAS UNCOVERED THE DOPE RING WE HAVE BEEN TRYING TO BUST UP. HE'S BEEN WORKING FOR THEM.—AND YOU AND I, PAT—ARE GOING DOWN THERE AT FOUR O'CLOCK TODAY AND NAB MUCELLI.
IT SOUNDS EASY—TRACY—VERY EASY—BUT MUCELLI HAS NEVER BEFORE BEEN OUTWITTED!

second forward pass which was caught over the goal line. Two forward passes on the same down are not permitted and the score was denied. The half ended almost immediately.

The Bears rushed over their third touchdown at the start of the second half. Clancy, who had replaced Strong, fumbled and George Corbett recovered for Chicago on the Stapleton 22 yard line. Carl Brumbaugh, now at quarter back, passed to Corbett for a first down on the six yard line. Corbett and Nesbitt gained three yards, and on the next play Stapleton was offside. From the one yard line Nesbitt plunged over for the touchdown. Engebretsen place kicked the point for a lead of 20 to 0.

Nesbitt's Punt Blocked.

The Bears' second team was playing when Stapleton finally managed to shove over a touchdown after five minutes of the fourth period. The first threat, led by the hard working Campiglio, was halted, but Nesbitt's punt from his goal line was partially blocked and Stapleton took the ball on the Bears' 32 yard line.

Homer Ledbetter, Hinton, and Strong carried the ball. The principal item in the march, however, was a pass from Hinton to Strong which placed the ball on the 12 yard line. A penalty on the Bears for offside and Hinton's plunge got the ball to the one yard mark. Ledbetter was held without gain twice, but Hinton managed to squirm over the goal. Strong then place kicked the extra point.

Just before the game ended Paul Franklin intercepted a Stapleton pass and brought the ball ten yards to the enemy 21 yard line. Coach Jones sent in the first string guards, Joe Kopcha and Jules Carlson, and the plunging Nagurski to lead the drive. After Brumbaugh had lost seven yards on a wide run, he passed to Corbett, who made up the loss. Nagurski smashed through to the Stapleton six yard line and in three more plunges crossed the goal line. Tackwell place kicked the extra point.

Molesworth and Ends Star.

The Bears' offense took advantage of the breaks afforded by fumbles and interceptions, but Molesworth's return of kicks stood out as the primary reason for the first two touchdowns. The work of Bill Hewitt and Luke Johnsos, especially on defense, was brilliant as usual, while the entire team had better coordination on attack.

Stapleton ran up eight first downs in the second half while negotiating one touchdown, but the Bears' second team braced when necessary except on one occasion. The Bears now will invade the eastern half of the league in two games. In their absence the Chicago Cardinals will play at Wrigley field. Bennie Friedman's Brooklyn eleven is the opposition next Sunday.

BADGER TACKLE INELIGIBLE; CUTS CLASS TOO OFTEN

Madison, Wis., Oct. 23.—[Special.]—Charles [Buckets] Goldenberg, Wisconsin tackle, tomorrow will begin trying to make himself eligible for the game with Ohio State Saturday. Because he cut too many classes this semester he has been declared temporarily ineligible.

To be eligible a student must carry at least 14 hours of class work each semester. When Goldenberg cut classes beyond the limit, his average of hours was reduced below the prescribed number. The instructor who issued the ultimatum said Goldenberg would be given a chance to demonstrate that he is interested primarily in the education offered him and secondarily in football.

Bears-Spartans' Proceeds Will Go to Hospital Fund

Stuyvesant Peabody has been named general chairman of a committee organized to sponsor a benefit football game to aid the Little Company of Mary hospital, 95th street and California avenue. The game will be played Sunday afternoon, Nov. 13, at Wrigley field between the Chicago Bears and the Spartans of Portsmouth. The hospital will benefit from the proceeds of the advance sale of tickets, which will be tax free.

Five Teams Undefeated in Little 19 Race

Shurtleff of Alton was joined by State Normal at the top of the standing. The Teachers scored their fourth consecutive Little Nineteen triumph by whipping Eureka, 13 to 0. Shurtleff won from Washington university freshmen, 7 to 6.

Augustana Wins No. 3.

Augustana won its third game, beating Macomb Teachers 19 to 14. Wesleyan turned back Millikin's first bid this season in conference play by winning at Bloomington, 12 to 0.

This week the football season will be at its height, with eight conference games scheduled. One of the undefeated teams is bound to be eliminated, as Shutleff and McKendree meet at Lebanon.

St. Viator Meets Bradley.

Normal will play at Carbondale Friday. Important conference games Saturday will be the St. Viator-Bradley Tech match at Peoria and the game between Monmouth, 1931 champion, and Augusta at Rock island. Elmhurst will play at North Central, Carthage at Illinois, Millikin against Eastern Teachers at Charleston, and Eureka against Wesleyan at Bloomington.

Illinois college at Jacksonville moved toward the top Saturday by defeating Knox, 6 to 0. Knox has lost three straight games and now rests on the bottom of the standing.

Lake Forest and Wheaton took places side by side behind Illinois. The Gold Coasters defeated North Central, 7 to 0, and Wheaton whipped Elmhurst by the same score.

Monmouth Beats Cornell.

Monmouth, recovered from its setback a week ago at the hands of Illinois, turned on Cornell for a 13 to 6 Midwest conference victory.

Four nonconference games are scheduled for Saturday, Beloit will meet Knox at Galesburg in a midwest game, Aurora will play at Wheaton, Lake Forest will play at Carroll, and Wisconsin School of Mines will meet the Northern Teachers at De Kalb.

SCHEDULE THIS WEEK.

FRIDAY—Normal at Carbondale.

waukee, 13 to 0. Michigan State scored three times at New York to beat Fordham, 19 to 13. All three State touchdowns resulted from long, sensational runs. Fordham rallied in the last period with a series of passes for its second score. It was Fordham's first defeat.

Princeton played a scoreless tie for the second consecutive Saturday. A week ago it was Cornell; Saturday the Navy. The Army came back after its licking by Pittsburgh to whip Yale, 20 to 0. Yale has not won a game, tieing Bates and Chicago, and losing to Brown. Harvard, still undefeated, won from Dartmouth, 10 to 7. A place kick in the second period and Carl Pescosolido's 93 yard run for a touchdown on the second half kickoff gave Harvard the points necessary to win.

Auburn Bumps Tulane.

Colgate had too much power for New York university and won 14 to 0. Syracuse, defeated by Ohio Wesleyan and Southern Methodist, came back to whip Penn State, 12 to 6.

Tulane's defeat by Auburn [Alabama Poly], 19 to 7, was the outstanding game in the south. It was Tulane's first conference licking in four years. All the scoring occured in the first half. Tulane threatened twice in the last half, one time marching 71 yards, but the Auburn defense held. Another eleven coached by a former Notre Dame player, Georgia, did not fare so well. Vanderbilt won 12 to 6. Georgia is coached by Harry Mehre. Chet Wynne, aided by Roger Kiley and Jack Cannon, directs Auburn.

Kentucky was upset by the strong Virginia Polytechnic team. The score was 7 to 0. Tennessee and Texas Christian piled up record totals. Tennessee won from Maryville, 60 to 0, and Texas Christian beat Austin college, 68 to 0.

GARAGE OWNER KILLED; EIGHT HURT IN CRASH

Son Describes Accident to Police.

William Adams, 44 years old, a Terre Haute, Ind., garage owner, was instantly killed yesterday and eight other persons injured, two of them seriously, in an automobile collision at Torrence avenue and the Lincoln highway, three miles east of Chicago Heights. Adams, witnesses said, drove through a stoplight onto the Lincoln highway at 50 miles an hour.

Police said they found a sack containing bottled beer in his wrecked automobile. Ernest Adams, 25 years old, a son of the dead man, told police his father had been drinking.

Racing Driver Injured.

Adams was towing a small racing automobile, which he owned, behind his coupe. His son and Richard Frost of West Terre Haute, Ind., a race driver, received minor injuries, as did Harlan Turner of Paris, Ill., who was riding in the towed racer.

The other automobile was driven by Allen Hausmann, 38 years old, 4373 Monroe street, Gary, who was accompanied by his wife and three children. The wife, Mrs. Caroline Hausmann, 35 years old, was taken to St. James' hospital, Chicago Heights, in a critical condition from a skull fracture. A daughter, Lucille, 11 years old, was rendered unconscious and is believed to have sustained a concussion of the brain. Hausmann and the other two children, Ernest, 16, and Dorothy, 13 years old, received minor injuries.

Harold Forbes 10 years old, 6119 Stewart avenue, was found fatally injured early today at the intersection of 63d street and Indiana avenue. Police said he had been struck by a hit and run motorist. He was taken to St. Bernard hospital, where he died without regaining consciousness. His mother, Mrs. Myrtle Forbes, who learned of the accident when she called police to report her son was missing, said he had attended a neighborhood theater and evidently was on his way home when he was struck down.

County Death Toll 919.

These deaths and three others increased the Cook county motor toll to 919 since Jan. 1. The other victims:

Walter Schiewie, 38 years old, 2207 Byron street. Fatally injured last night when he stepped from a safety island at Western and Berteau avenues and was struck by an automobile driven by Walter Johnson, 3943 North Hamilton avenue. Schiewie died at the Martha Washington hospital. Johnson was held. This was the second fatal accident within 24 hours at that corner. On Saturday night Miss Lena Hammar, 69 years old, 4510 Greenview avenue, was killed at the same place by an automobile.

Albert Ptak, 52 years old, of 5233 West 29th street, Cicero. Died late last night in the Washington Boulevard hospital of injuries which he suffered early yesterday when his automobile skidded on the wet pavement and crashed into an elevated substructure at Lake street and Western avenue. His son, Walter, 17 years old, the driver, was slightly injured. Mrs. Elizabeth Ptak, 36 years old, Ptak's wife, suffered minor hurts. Their daughter, Clara, 9 years old, was more seriously injured.

Thomas Adams, 15 years old, a Negro, 1143 West 14th street. Died in the Bridewell hospital of a skull fracture suffered 12 hours before when he drove a stolen car into a railroad viaduct pillar at 18th and Clark streets.

An increasing number of accidents resulting from children "hooking" rides on the rear ends of street cars and spare tire carriers of automobiles caused the Chicago Safety council to issue a bulletin yesterday warning against the practice.

ROBBED SO OFTEN, HE CLOSES STORE; SAYS ROBBERS CAN HAVE IT

Kansas City, Kas., Oct. 23.—(AP)—Three years ago holdup men visited the retail drug store of P. M. Tank. Last year he was held up three times. This year began rather quietly. He looked down the pistol barrels of unwelcome visitors only twice until September. Then another holdup took place. Last Tuesday three robbers made a call. Two more came Friday.

The sign said "Closed."

"The robbers can have the store," Mr. Tank said tonight. "If any one wants to purchase it or the stock they can come and see me. I quit Saturday night."

POLAND HANGS 4 AS SOVIET SPIES; TWELVE IN MONTH

(Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.)

A summary court passed the death sentence for partaking in the activities of a gang of spies, and the president of the republic rejected a mercy plea.

Eight spies have already been executed this month. Abksander Teplicki, a Danzig Free State citizen and orchestra conductor, was sentenced last night by a Warsaw summary court to fifteen years in prison.

8 YEAR OLD GIRL IS KIDNAPED BY MAN IN NEW JERSEY

Newark, N. J., Oct. 23.—(AP)—Anna Kleinhandler, 8 year old daughter of a grocer, was kidnaped tonight and a police teletype alarm containing a description of the supposed kidnaper was broadcast throughout the state.

The girl was standing on the street talking with another girl when a man engaged them in conversation. Without warning, the man took the girl away with him.

Mrs. Edna Teneyck, who lives over the store of Jacob Kleinhandler, father of the girl, told police she saw the kidnaper standing near Anna just before she disappeared. As soon as the kidnaping was reported, a corps of ten detectives began a house to house search of the neighborhood.

DIGS UP CITY ÆNEAS VISITED ON FLEEING TROY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, Italy, Oct. 23.—Prof. Luigi Ugolini, director of the Italian archeological mission, has left Rome for Albania to resume his labors in excavating the ancient city of Butrinto, which was visited by Æneas on his flight from Troy and where, according to Latin tradition, he had the vision which directed him to the present site of Rome.

Prof. Ugolini, during the past five years, has unearthed a quantity of sculptures and art objects and has restore sections of the once flourishing city on the Dalmatian coast.

Butrinto is near the Adriatic coast and southeast of Santi Quaranta in Albania. Because of the richness of the discoveries there, the Italian mission has made Butrinto as interesting an archeological center as Pompeii and Herculaneium.

Find Gates of City.

Among the most important discoveries have been the city's two gates. They are eighteen feet high and were built of large granite blocks, dating from about the fourth century B. C. The gates are in perfect state.

A small sacristy to Esculaplus, the Greek god of medicine, has also been excavated. Inside the sacristy were found statues of the god, covered with inscriptions.

A well preserved Greek theatre with a stage dating from the imperial Roman period was discovered next to the statue. The hemicycle of graduated stone seats is excellently conserved and bears various inscriptions.

Goddess' Statue Found.

The most interesting piece of classic sculpture Prof. Ugolini has discovered is a draped marble statue of a woman known as the Goddess of Butrinto. The oval of the face, the style of hairdressing, and the dreamy expression of her features have led the archeologists to identify it as the work of one of the great Greek artists of the time of Paxiteles, or about the middle of the fourth century B. C.

RUSSIA TO RAISE DANDELIONS TO REPLACE RUBBER

MOSCOW, Oct. 23.—(AP)—In its widespread search for rubber substitutes soviet Russia has found that the lowly dandelion contains a substance which preliminary investigation has established as equal in quality to natural rubber.

Newspapers announced that an expedition of the scientific exploration institute has discovered a variety of dandelion in the Crimea which contains a liquid in the stem and root having all the properties of rubber.

Experimental transplantation to other soils and climates has proved successful. Plans now are to start large scale growing of "rubber dandelion" for industrial purposes.

No formal charges ever were brought against him. He was an active opponent of President Machado's government. Gen. Herrera is the army chief of staff.

MRS. ZIEGFELD'S FUNERAL TO BE HELD TOMORROW

Funeral services for Mrs. Rosalie de Hez Ziegfeld, mother of the late Florenz Ziegfeld, who died at midnight Saturday after a long illness, will be held at 2:30 p. m. Tuesday from her old home, 1442 West Adams street.

Grandsons and nephews of the 84 year old woman will be her pallbearers, and interment will be in the family lot in Graceland cemetery, beside the body of her husband, Dr. Florenz Ziegfeld.

Unaware of Son's Death.

Ill health had kept Mrs. Ziegfeld in bed for several years. When her famous son, Florenz Ziegfeld, died suddenly in California last July, she had been lying partially unconscious for some months. She died without knowing her son had preceded her in death.

Relatives said yesterday that Billie Burke, widow of Florenz Ziegfeld, had been advised of her mother-in-law's death by a telegram, but that she and her daughter, Patricia, were not expected to come for the funeral.

One Daughter Survives.

At the old home on Adams street yesterday, which the elder Mrs. Ziegfeld had clung to despite her son's endeavors to persuade her to live elsewhere, were gathered her only surviving child, Mrs. Willis E. Buhl of Detroit; her widowed daughter-in-law, Mrs. Carl Ziegfeld, who had made her home there for some years; her nurse, Mrs. M. E. Alyea; two granddaughters, Mrs. Florence Brannum and Mrs Edith Dienhart, and other relatives.

Mrs. Ziegfeld was born near Paris, France, and came to Chicago in her girlhood. She was married to Dr. Florenz Ziegfeld in May, 1865, at the Holy Name cathedral. Their golden wedding was celebrated in 1915. Dr. Ziegfeld was a founder of the Chicago Musical college, and well known in musical circles here.

RISING DEFICIT AROUSES TALK OF NEW TAXES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 23.—Amounting federal deficit which is slated to touch 600 million dollars this week and which threatens to exceed a billion and a quarter before the end of the current fiscal year has aroused talk of new federal tax legislation at the coming session of congress. Indications today were that the treasury will recommend against tax revision at the short session on the ground that insufficient time has elapsed to determine the revenue raising ability of the new taxes imposed last June.

Treasury officials said today that no final decision as to whether Secretary Mills will recommend a tax increase to plug up the hole in the budget will be forthcoming for some time. Data are being compiled, however, it was said, upon which Secretary Mills will base the recommendation he will make to President Hoover on methods of balancing the budget before congress opens.

Discuss Sales Tax.

Although several members of congress have discussed the possibility of imposing a sales tax to boost revenues, members of both the senate and house have had little to say on the question of balancing the budget this year and next through additional and more stringent economies. The senate bipartisan committee appointed to find new methods of cutting federal costs does not now propose to meet until congress reconvenes. No indications have developed thus far of any new economy investigations on the part of the house.

The size of the federal deficit at the end of the current year will be determined largely by the rate at which tax collections come in and the extent to which additional and more stringent federal economies are put into effect by President Hoover and by congress. Up to date federal funds are being expended at a rate which will use up virtually the total of 3 billion 886 million dollars appropriated by congress for financing the federal government activities during the current fiscal year.

Large Deficit Seen.

Up to date neither the director of the budget nor the secretary of the treasury has made public any estimate of the total expenditures which will be made this year out of the total appropriations. Neither has any recent estimate of probable tax collections been given out by the treasury.

The current tax collections foreshadow a very large gross deficit. Treasury officials admit that the new miscellaneous taxes included in the billion dollar tax bill are disappointing, although they assert it is not fair to judge their ultimate production ability by their showing for the first quarter of the current year. The effect of the higher income taxes approved by congress in June will not become clearly apparent until March 15 of next year and the future state of business upon which the volume of federal revenues depends remains to be seen. All indications are, however, that the new income rates will not bring in anything like the revenue expected.

Estimates By Treasury.

Last February the treasury estimated that its receipts from all sources during 1933 would be 2 billion 375 million dollars. Later these estimates were revised to 2 billion 140 million dollars. When the tax bill was passed it was estimated that old and new taxes would bring the 1933 treasury receipts up to 3 billion and 98 million dollars, not counting 160 millions to be raised through boosted mail rates and collected by the postoffice department. Since that time no new estimates of receipts have been made public.

The treasury estimated the new miscellaneous taxes would raise 654 million dollars and the new income tax rates 299 millions counting the new limitation on security losses.

Tax Yield Fails.

In February the treasury estimated that the old taxes would yield as follows: Income tax, 867 million dollars; miscellaneous taxes, 654.5 millions; customs, 430 millions, and receipts from all other sources, 528 millions, a total of 2 billion 375 million dollars. When these estimates were cut 235 million dollars in May no details were given as to where the reductions were applied. It was stated simply that the total collections were estimated at 1 billion 241 millions for the old and 958.5 millions for the new.

On the basis of the February estimate the miscellaneous taxes should have yielded 1 billion 204 million dollars, or 301 million dollars a quarter. Actual receipts for the first quarter were 216 million dollars. At that rate these taxes would fall by 336 million dollars to reach the February estimates, plus the estimate for the new miscellaneous taxes.

Customs Fall Off.

The February customs estimate was 430 millions, or 107.5 million dollars a quarter. Actual customs receipts for the first quarter were $68,927,329, a big dip below the estimates. At that rate customs would not come up to the February estimates by about 140 million dollars. It has been estimated that income taxes will fall by from 150 to 200 millions to meet the original treasury estimates. The figures indicate that taxes will fall by not less than half a billion dollars to come up to estimates even if miscellaneous taxes show a pickup.

At the beginning of the year the government was given 3 billion 886 millions to spend. On that basis the gross deficit on the basis of tax collection estimates was 797 million dollars. This included 497 millions to be used for reducing public debt as required by law. If this is subtracted, the total net deficit as represented in an increase in the public debt would be 301 millions.

Ice Industry Puts Up Fight; Holds Trade

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

Ice companies no longer are merely selling ice, they are now selling refrigeration, and as a result are maintaining their position in our highly competitive business world.

This explanation for the comparatively favorable situation in which the ice industry is found was offered yesterday by Leslie C. Smith, secretary of the National Association of Ice Industries, as he discussed the business outlook of his field.

Mr. Smith himself offers a real antidote for any one suffering from a depression complex as he outlines the fight his industry is making to open new fields of business and to hold its present in the face of the keenest competition.

1931 Was Best Year.

The year 1931, generally bad for most businesses, was the best year the ice industry ever had both in volume and profits, Mr. Smith said. This year the ice industry is falling about 20 per cent behind 1931, almost entirely because of the depression, which greatly curtailed the public's buying ability.

While the present average price of ice is 60 cents for 100 pounds, contrasted with the 63 cent peak in 1925, the general price tendency is now downward, Mr. Smith asserts. The problem is now to find to what point the price of ice can be reduced which will increase volume and still enable makers to show a profit. This subject is to be taken up at the association's forthcoming annual convention at Pittsburgh.

What People Buy.

"The American public will spend money for three purposes even in adverse periods," Mr. Smith remarked. "These are: 1. Necessities. 2. Freedom from drudgery. 3. Comfort. Refrigeration comes under the first and third headings.

"Prior to 1925 we had everything our own way, with practically no competition from outside sources. The mechanical refrigerator caught us unprepared. We had ice boxes that hadn't been improved on in years. We couldn't even get the manufacturers to put legs on their ice boxes prior to 1925.

"Competition changed all that. Our ice boxes now are 100 per cent better than the old ones. In 1925 only five companies belonging to our association handled refrigerators; now 1,016 companies do.

"Many companies are now selling ice to domestic and business users on a contract basis. In doing this they follow two procedures. In one they put in the equipment and keep it filled with ice for specified payments. At the conclusion of a specified time the user keeps the equipment. In the second case they rent equipment. The contract system insures that the ice company will see that the refrigeration it provides works.

Fields of Expansion.

"1. Domestic. Only 50 per cent of the families in the country use any kind of refrigeration and for a good many of them ice will be the most practical because of its cheapness.

"2. Transportation. This includes refrigeration in the shipment of perishables and passenger car conditioning. In the case of the latter we believe ice is more satisfactory because the weight of mechanical equipment is about 7,000 pounds against 1,500 pounds for ice equipment. As air cooling is required generally only about 60 days out of the year, we feel that the roads will find it more profitable to use the lighter equipment, using it only when needed, rather than carrying a lot of dead weight.

"3. Commerce use. Hotels, etc.

"As hard roads and the automobile developed new uses for ice through the demands of roadside stands, so we expect the use of devices for cooling houses in summer to open more fields. We are now working on devices for air cooling for homes under $10,000 which we believe will meet the requirements better than other forms because of the cheapness. Again, hard roads enable us to delivery in the country to points 25 miles from the place of manufacture.

Plan Package Selling.

"We also are developing ice vending machines whereby cartons of ice will be delivered upon insertion of a coin. For perhaps a dime 25 pounds all wrapped will be delivered. We are using every medium of refrigeration to hold our present business and capture new.

"The decline in our volume this year has been entirely due to the reduced buying power of the public. As an example, last year there were shipped 21,000 carloads of cantaloupes from California and Arizona. This year only 11,000 cars were shipped. And so it runs all along the line."

Mr. Smith said that prohibition has helped the ice industry, which made little profit out of its business with saloons. What the industry wants now is density of distribution because it costs twice as much to deliver ice as to make it.

$250,000,000 Hoarding Drop Is Reported

Washington, D. C., Oct. 23.—(AP)—A decrease of $250,000,000 in money hoarded, an increase in gold stock and reserve funds of member banks and a drop in bank indebtedness to federal reserve banks and in bank suspensions were reported today by the federal reserve board in its monthly review.

The board said national banks under the Glass-Borah amendment to the home loan bank law had issued $100,000,000 in new national bank currency.

During recent weeks the bank holdings of government securities had been practically unchanged, the board said, adding that between June 15 and Sept. 30 member banks had increased reserve funds partly because of the addition of $275,000,000 to the country's gold stock, bringing it to $4,200,000,000. The excess of reserves of federal reserve banks now is $1,200,000,000.

Hoarding Is Cut.

"Since July 20 there has also been a release of currency from hoarding estimated at $250,000,000," the board said. "This estimate is based on the fact that the amount of money in circulation declined by over $130,000,000 at a time when it usually increases by more than $110,000,000."

The inflow of funds to member banks, the review continued, enabled them to reduce their indebtedness to the reserve banks during recent weeks by $200,000,000, the lowest level since September of last year, and at the same time to increase their reserves in excess of legal requirements to approximately $400,000,000.

The growth in member bank reserve balances was accompanied by an upturn in total loans and investments of member banks in leading cities amounting to $575,000,000, or 3 per cent, the board asserted.

Less Banks Fail.

Hoarding, the review said, was first lessened by organization of the National Credit corporation, also declining $250,000,000 when the Reconstruction Finance corporation was established last February.

The board said that in September 65 banks with deposits of $16,003,000 suspended, compared with 85 with deposits of $30,530,000 in August. In September 14 banks with deposits of $13,623,000 were reopened, while in August the 25 banks that reopened had deposits of $33,498,000. The number of bank suspensions in September was the smallest since the 47 last March.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

The outcome of the efforts of the receivers of Middle West Utilities company to obtain a loan from the Reconstruction Finance corporation is being awaited with interest by security holders and others who have an interest in the company.

An advance by the federal relief group would by no means solve all the problems with which the receivers are struggling, but it would lessen the pressure somewhat. The receivers are seeking a loan of 21 million dollars. It is believed that if the loan is obtained the proceeds will be used to liquidate the bank loans of the eastern chain of properties.

Fear Loss in East.

The two top holding companies of the eastern group, National Electric Power and National Public Service, are both in bankruptcy. Unless the receivers are able to pay off the bank loans of the various properties it is expected that Middle West's 40 million dollar stake in the eastern chain will be lost by default.

The prospects of obtaining a loan are doubtful, but it is known that the receivers are prepared to put up a strong case. The burden of bank debt on the eastern units is one of the several difficult situations faced by the Middle West receivers.

Revalue Assets.

The receivers and representatives of the company's creditor banks recently returned from an inspection trip of the southwestern properties. These properties which represent about 40 per cent of the company's holdings are said to be in a relatively favorable position. Despite the promise of these investments the future of the holding company is admitted to be precarious. As the result of their investigations the receivers have found it advisable to write off $4,000,000 in over due depreciation on the operating properties in the southwest. Many doubtful items carried by the companies at face values have also been written down or charged off.

The receivers expect to apply the same yardstick to other properties in the system. They are scheduled to make an inspection tour of the Canadian and Kentucky properties in the near future. Last week they looked over the Wisconsin properties.

On the whole the operating companies are said to be in a fair working capital position, and the morale of the personnel is said to be improving.

WALL ST. AWAITS BOARD ACTIONS ON DIVIDENDS

U. S. Steel Preferred Eyed by Traders.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 23.—Troubles accumulate for the hard fighting stock market. Already groggy from the load of political uncertainties and routine business perplexities under which it has been staggering for the last month, the list is now called upon to face problems provided by some of the most highly important dividend meetings of the year.

Directors of the United States Steel corporation will get together next Tuesday afternoon to decide whether or not to authorize payment of a

Eleven practices applied to every estate in our charge

TRUSTEESHIP is a great responsibility, ethically, legally. To properly discharge it, more thoughtful care is sometimes required than the owner of property himself would exercise. This company's position as an executor and trustee has been built up through a long period of years, by strict adherence to principles and practices which gauge the moral and legal responsibility it feels in the protection of dependent heirs and of property left for their support.

1 This company does not permit the purchase from or sale to its Bond Department of any securities for trust estates in its charge.

2 No commission or profit from any transaction for the account of an estate is ever retained by this company for itself. The sole remuneration received is the fee for its service. The fee has been standardized for each class of service and is very moderate.

3 In the investment of trust funds no single judgment prevails. Our investment methods are such that each transaction has the benefit of the judgment of a committee of trust officers experienced in investment matters. In addition, the recommendations of these officers are reviewed and approved by a committee of our Board of Directors. This assures for each trust the judgment of the best minds in the organization.

4 Investments are periodically subjected to a careful review to determine the desirability of holding or reinvesting.

5 When authorized to hold advantageous investments made by a testator, it is the policy of this company to do so as long as the best interests of the estate do not demand reinvestment.

6 Every estate is under the personal direction of an officer or senior employe—a man of seasoned experience who has at his command all the departmental resources of the institution and the counsel of directors and fellow officers.

7 Securities of trust estates are kept separate and distinct from the assets of the bank and from each other.

9 The investments of small trusts receive the same conscientious, painstaking attention as that given to the investment of large estates.

10 Thoughtful attention is given to the personal welfare of beneficiaries, especially women and dependent children. The officers consider it their duty and privilege to become helpful advisers whenever permitted to do so.

The bondholders' protective committee is headed by Avery Brundage as chairman. The other members are Horatio B. Hackett, secretary; Francis R. Blossom, J. L. Kraft, and Charles M. Moderwell. William M. Richards is assistant secretary. Fisher, Boyden, Bell, Boyd & Marshall are attorneys.

"When you purchased the Belvidere apartments bond, sold by H. O. Stone & Co., which you now own, you really entered into a contract with the owners of the Belvidere apartment property, who promised to repay your money on a certain date and in the meantime pay you 6½ per cent interest," the committee's warning reads.

Promises Not Fulfilled.

"The salesman who sold you the bond probably told you that no one had ever lost a dollar through investment in H. O. Stone bonds. The promises that were made at that time were not fulfilled.

"An aggressive campaign to gain control of your bonds is now being conducted by certain interests who ask you to deposit your bonds with them. Don't be misled; be careful that you're not fooled again.

"You are warned to investigate carefully before you deposit your bond; find out who the individuals on the committee are and who is behind them. Consult your bank or some one in whom who have implicit confidence.

No Extravagant Promises.

"This committee makes no extravagant promises. It was organized to serve you and its sole object is to protect your interests and salvage as much as can be recovered for you.

"It represents only the first mortgage bondholders, who have been neglected long enough, and not the owners who have defaulted once and may do so again. Nearly all the properties on which H. O. Stone & Co. sold bonds are today worth less than the amount of the first mortgage bond issue. For the owners and junior mortgage holders there is no equity remaining.

"In order to effect a reorganization without foreclosure, the deposit of practically 100 per cent of the bonds outstanding is necessary. It is almost impossible to accomplish this. This committee does not believe in receivership, but sometimes it is the lesser of two evils.

Bought In 25 Properties.

"This committee stands on its record. It already has bought in at foreclosure sales twenty-five properties which are now owned outright by the depositing bondholders, who will, as a result of the foreclosures, control the entire income."

The committee states that already a substantial proportion of the bondholders have deposited their bonds of this issue with it. The letter urges bondholders who haven't done so to deposit their securities with the Chicago Title and Trust company, depositary for the committee.

STATE STREET DAY SALES PUT CHICAGO RECOVERY UP NOTCH

The State Street day special sales staged by most of the city's leading retailers last week put Chicago's recovery up another notch, according to trade observers of the Chicago Association of Commerce. Taking advantage of low railroad fares to the city, huge crowds from out of town visited the loop stores. An excellent volume of business was reported.

In conjunction with this event it was noticeable that the demand for commodities was greatly strengthened and that employment conditions were improving. Managers of several stores stated that they had made sizable additions to their selling forces over the week-end and would retain many of these workers until after the Christmas holidays. Earlier in the week one of the larger department stores added three thousand employes to its general force to take care of the business obtained by its annual fall sale.

Employment in other lines also continued to show an improvement. Although these increases are said to be the largest since industrial activity began to decline three years ago, they are not enough to offset the declines which occurred during the summer months.

A slight expansion in the steel business was seen in contracts and inquiries received from electrical manufacturers who are buying new apparatus to replace some of their equipment which has become obsolete.

SECURITY SALE NOW IMPROVING, BANKER ASSERTS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., Oct. 23.—The merchandising of capital through the sale of securities, which was halted during the early stages of the depression, is improving conservatively, according to members of the board of governors of the Investment Bankers' Association of America, in convention here. The improvement, however, is said to be still at a pace which has not yet afforded a real test of the ability of the investment public to absorb securities.

Robert E. Christie Jr. of Dillon, Read & Co., a governor of the association and chairman of the committee on business problems, pointed out that early in the depression the bankers were severely criticized. Now, he said, investors are studying new security offerings more carefully and scrutinizing all data presented, and the investment bankers have been glad of an opportunity to present the fullest information.

"In the heyday of the investment demand in 1928 and 1929 the bankers were called on to handle a tremendous amount of new securities," Mr. Christie said. "Investors in many cases did not pause to investigate carefully the securities best suited to their lists of holdings. Now the investing public is coming to the bankers for advice instead of relying on incomplete and somewhat misleading information."

BIG BEAR MARKET PUT UNDER WAY 3 YEARS AGO TODAY

New York, Oct. 23.—(AP)—Tomorrow is the third anniversary of the first outburst of heavy selling that signaled the beginning of the big bear market in stocks. On October 24, 1929, the New York stock exchange, which over the preceding week has witnessed a crumbling of values, was suddenly deluged with liquidation. Sales on that day totaled 13,894,600 shares and the average loss of listed stocks was $10.80. The drop on the previous day was nearly twice as large, but sales for Oct. 23 amounted to little more than 6,000,000 shares, which in those delirious times was not regarded as an unusually large turnover.

Asserts Gas Consumption Cut by 350 Million Gallons

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 23.—About 350 million fewer gallons of gasoline were used by the motorists of the country during the first six months of 1932 than during the corresponding period of the preceding year, according to Owen B. Augspurger, president of the Automobile Club of New York, an affiliate of the American Automobile association. He based his figures on reports at national headquarters of the A. A. A., which show a 5 per cent decline in gasoline consumption from Jan. 1 to July 1 this year, as compared with 1931, when 7,117,874,233 gallons were used during the first six months.

Not Taking Chance.

TO THE EDITOR: I am writing to ask if I am taking any chances in making interest payments direct to the party who holds the first mortgage on my home. Up to this time I have always made payments to the Peoples National Bank and Trust company, makers of this mortgage four years ago. The owner has requested me to forward payments direct to him instead of to the receiver of the bank. I suggested that the mortgage holder might meet me at the bank and have the money paid in the presence of the receiver. Kindly let me know if I am taking any risk in paying him direct.—W. K.

ANSWER: The majority of the loans made by banks are sold to investors and in your case, we assume the mortgage holder has in his possession all the papers including the trust deed, insurance policies, notes, etc. There is nothing unusual about paying direct to the holder of your mortgage. Just be sure the note you are paying is marked paid and cancelled at the time of payment. We assume you are certain that the present mortgage holder purchased your mortgage from the bank and that the trust deed provides for payment in this matter.

Duties of a Receiver.

TO THE EDITOR: Will you please give me an idea as to the duties of the receiver of a building which has gone through foreclosure?—C. H. E.

ANSWER: The duties of a receiver are to manage the property subject to the orders of the court. This usually includes collection of rent and the maintenance. The receiver is required to make a periodical accounting to the court. Unfortunately, where small properties are concerned, the amount of income just about pays the expenses of the receiver.

Threatened with Foreclosure.

TO THE EDITOR: We own a five room bungalow and are threatened with foreclosure. I have been out of work and my wife and four children and I have been living with my mother-in-law. The property is rented for $20 a month. There is no incumbrance on the property other than the first mortgage of $3,000. What I want to know is would it be better if I were living on the property at the time of foreclosure or not?—B. C.

ANSWER: Yes. The old saying, "Possession is nine points of the law," holds some truth. Be sure and have an attorney to represent you when you are ordered to appear before the court.

FRENCH MINISTER OF LABOR FINDS BUSINESS GAINING

[Copyright: 1932; By the New York Times.]

PARIS, Oct. 23.—Albert Dalimier, French minister of labor, speaking in the name of the government today at Toulouse, said that for some weeks there had been signs that the bottom of the depression had been reached and that business was on the upgrade.

The number of unemployed in France, he said, had fallen from 375,000 in March to 256,000 now. For the first time in two years, he asserted, there was activity in some key industries, like textiles. Returns from the turnover tax, which closely indicate the business situation, have increased and transportation figures showed improvement, he added.

"Without any exaggeration," Mr. Dalimier said, "we can begin to look forward to improved economic conditions. But France cannot cure her ills alone. We are linked and bound with every other people. No country can live alone. We must seek common recovery and common safety. If we are to win, it depends on the agreement, on the energy and on the disinterestedness of all sane peoples who seek the victory of wisdom over folly. It depends on mutual understanding and mutual effort."

PROPOSES PLAN OF ARBITRATION ON REALTY BONDS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 23.—A plan for arbitration designed to foster rehabilitation of real estate mortgage bonds now in default or in process of reorganization was announced today by the American Arbitration association. The association reported that the plan had been undertaken at the insistence of members of protective committees, bankers, and individual bondholders.

Lucias R. Eastman, president of the body, explained that the arbitration service was intended to serve as mutual protection in various cities for the owners of defaulted bonds and reorganization committees and to work out "practicable and equitable rehabilitation programs."

"The service provides for coöperation of all interests to prevent extravagance, selfishness, and unnecessary delays in executing such programs," Mr. Eastman stated. "At present no recognized process equally satisfactory to all parties is available."

Forwardings of Cotton to Mills Show Increase

New York, Oct. 23.—Forwardings of American cotton to mills last week totaled 365,000 bales compared with 332,000 last year, says the New York Cotton Exchange service. The total for the season to date is 2,766,000 bales against 2,636,000 a year ago. Movement of American cotton into sight amounted to 678,000 bales last week, while exports volume was 221,000 bales.

LETTERS

On Behalf of Stockholders.

Financial Editor: I am glad that Auditor Edmund Walker has had nerve enough to speak up in behalf of sap stockholders. The so-called big financial shots, promoters and manipulators have been getting by with murder long enough.

It is high time the laws be enacted, compelling an auditor of a company with outside stockholders to reveal to said stockholders a complete report of his findings. Profit and loss statements and balance sheets should be published in detail and subscribed and sworn to by the officers and directors of the company.

It would be far better for a man and the world, no matter how big he thinks he is, to erect a good small company than to gobble up everything in sight, ruin millions of people and himself go down in history as a skunk. If our business leaders are not willing to protect the people in all these matters, then how in the name of common sense is government to be kept out of business? The C. P. A. degree should also mean more than a convenient handle to a racket.

EDMUND E. BERG,

Has a Job for Some Money.

Financial Editor: I note with some pleasure and yet with a lot of disgust what you say about the banks and their great surplus and their desire to loan money.

The writer wants to borrow about $6,000 on about a $14,000 proposition. He owns a $5,000 lot in the Beverly Hills section of this city, an exclusive section consisting of beautiful homes. He wants to erect on that lot a $9,000 or $10,000 home. He has talked to about a dozen banks and the best he can get is $4,000 at 7 per cent with prepayments of $2,000 in five years, leaving a $2,000 mortgage on a $14,000 structure, and I could not get that they say if I was not an old customer.

No wonder there is no business; why people are out of work and interest and principle notes are not paid.

It looks as though they don't know what to do with their money. Perhaps you can tell them. At any rate, I am ready at any time to borrow some of it and with real security.

World Farm Group Favors Action to Help Credits

ROME, Oct. 23.—(AP)—The International Institute of Agriculture at its closing session approved immediate close collaboration with the league of nations for relief of international farm credit conditions. The assembly, including delegates from 47 countries and colonies, left the form of coöperation to be decided by a committee.

New York Stocks of Cocoa Set a New High Record

New York warehouse stocks of cocoa on Oct. 21 totaled 602,000 bags, an increase of about 20,000 over the previous week and a new high record in the history of the New York cocoa exchange.

'POTATO QUEEN' OF ONEIDA HAS MAN SIZED JOB

Raises 60,000 Bushels on 1,500 Acre Farm.

BY PAUL POTTER.

The remnants of what was once the world's largest potato farm in the southeast corner of Oneida county, Wisconsin, and whose 18,000 acres could not be made to pay in days of comparatively high prices have been knit into an efficient 1,500 acre unit run successfully by Miss Lelah Stark, daughter of the founder of the project.

This year there was an average production of 250 bushels per acre on 240 acres, a total yield of 60,000 bushels of potatoes, all of which are certified under state inspection. This crop was grown in the same community where 50 to 70 bushels to the acre is considered a fairly good yield. That's why Miss Stark has become Wisconsin's "potato queen."

Eight years ago the farms of Leonard Stark, after whom the town of Starks was named, became the world's largest potato farm and covered more than 28 square miles. The land was not all cleared, however, and even today much of the area is in what is known as cutover or stump land.

Daughter Becomes Farmer.

A year later the tract was sold in foreclosure proceedings by Stark, a retired Chicago business man. He then repurchased much of the cleared area of the best lands.

When he died in December, 1927, two and one-half sections of it were left to his wife and daughter. The latter has continued to operate and manage the project by modern businesslike methods.

Potatoes comprise the only cash crop. No plowing is done on the fields after an area is once under cultivation. The rotation of clover and potatoes is a three year cycle. Clover is planted, the next year it is disced into the soil, even though it is high enough to cut for hay the second year. The third year provides the potato crop, stimulated with an application of 600 pounds of fertilizer to the acre.

New Chisel Type Plow Used.

A new type implement, called a chiseler, is used instead of plows. In addition to stirring up the soil, the row of chisel points dig ten to twelve inches into the soil. This breaks up the hardpan or tough layer of subsoil and permits the plant roots to reach down into the moisture holding portions of the land. A heavy tractor pulls the implement, covering about ten to twelve acres a day.

"Good land in good condition" is Miss Stark's thumb rule for high yields at low cost. Modern machinery for land preparation, planting, cultivation, spraying, and digging are considered necessities for efficient production. Not a fence remains on the farms except near the barns, where ten teams are kept.

The certified potatoes are sold usually for seed, thus commanding top prices. The farm is level and is about 1,700 feet above sea level, which is about a quarter mile higher than Chicago.

Northern "Spuds" Favored.

The northern location is another factor in potato production, especially for seed, Miss Stark explains. The climate forces the tuber production and is credited with putting more vitality into the crop to improve its value for seed. Only two varieties, "triumphs" and "cobblers," are grown and both are of the early type.

A large insulated storage house with a bin capacity of 45,000 bushels was built for the 18,000 acre farm and retained when the huge plan collapsed. In a corner of this warehouse can be found the proprietress, who makes the sales and pays the bills of a smaller yet better planned farm than the one her father visioned.

Throughout the north central portion of Wisconsin the typical sandy soils are used widely for potato production. In Langlade county, to the south of Oneida, is the farm of Charles W. Fish, who operates nearly 500 acres near Elcho. Seven mechanical diggers, followed by a hundred pickers, have completed one of the best harvests in the county. Five trucks were used to haul the potatoes to the warehouse in Elcho.

ROOT GLASS COMPANY AND OWENS ILLINOIS DEAL IS APPROVED

Toledo, O., Oct. 23.—(AP)—William E. Levis, president, today announced the Owens Illinois Glass company has acquired the Root Glass company of Terre Haute, Ind., with its three furnaces and machinery.

The board of directors of both companies have approved the purchase and Owens-Illinois has applied to the New York Stock exchange for permission to list 55,000 additional shares of its $25 par value common stock to be issued in connection with the acquisition, Levis said. The Terre Haute company has been in existence for 30 years and has specialized largely in the manufacture of beverage bottles.

In connection with the purchase, Owens-Illinois also issued the earnings report for the 12 months ended Sept. 30, 1932, showing net profit of $2,030,573, equal after preferred dividends to $1.63 a share on the 923,173 shares of common stock outstanding. This compares with $2,792,841 in the corresponding period last year, or $2.51 a common share.

WALL ST. AWAITS BOARD ACTIONS ON DIVIDENDS

preferred dividend that admittedly was not earned in the three months ended Sept. 20—but which "may" be earned in the present quarter—and the speculative community is looking forward to the announcement with no little trepidation.

An Unbroken Record.

The shares, regarded as a premier industrial investment medium, have an unbroken dividend paying record and reduction or omission would undoubtedly have noisy repercussions in the market generally. The directors at their meeting last July warned that future payments must be justified by earnings, but just how liberally this pronouncement may be interpreted in view of the company's improved standing remains to be seen.

So highly is the matter regarded that some brokers are saying they might as well close up shop for the next two or three days for all the business they will do until a decision is made, judging by the way the approach of the meeting has kept speculators out of the market in the past.

Consolidated Gas Meeting.

The Consolidated Gas board will meet later in the week to act on its common dividend and beyond that loom the meetings of the General Motors corporation and the American Telephone company, all fraught with possibilities of making or breaking a market growing more and more wobbly as the days go by. The street, of course, is hoping for surprises from some quarter of the group, but until the cloud begins to lift unbiased observers fear business is going to languish.

Of nearby meetings second in importance to the "big four" mentioned there is no end. Among others scheduled between now and the end of the month are those of Diamond Match, Coca Cola, Reynolds Metals, Deere preferred, Norfolk and Western, Sun Oil, Freeport Texas, Hudson Manhattan, American Tobacco, United Gas Improvement, Ingersoll Rand, Kroger Grocery and American Home Products. Naturally not much bullish incentive is expected from any of them.

So obsessed has the market been with the specter of the array—and kindred impending gauges on the progress of the so-called recovery movement—that it has felt constrained to pass up a number of developments of more than passing importance to the constructive side during the last week. Among these were the improved carloadings figures, culminating in the Saturday report showing the biggest weekly gain of the year; a cut in the price of steel rails counted upon to stimulate buying and news of improving conditions in more than one respect in the oil and gasoline market.

BOND OFFERINGS SMALL, BUT ALL ARE HIGH GRADE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 22.—The volume of new bond financing continued light last week, amounting to $10,735,000, compared with $13,880,000 the previous week. However, the individual issues marketed this week were uniformly high grade, so that most of them were placed quickly. During the corresponding week last year new financing consisted of a single issue of 20 million dollars New York City 4½ per cent revenue bills and corporate stock notes.

The principal piece of new financing this week was that of $4,000,000 Eastern Utility associates 5 per cent notes, due 1935, with the only other new utility financing consisting of an issue of $800,000 Sierra Pacific Power company 5½s, due 1957.

The balance on the week's new financing comprised six issues of municipal bonds and notes, including one state issue, that of $1,000,000 State of Mississippi long term bonds offered on a 6 per cent basis.

Until the general bond market assumes a stronger tone it is expected that new corporation financing will be limited, and about the only such financing now under consideration is for public utility companies. No definite plans have yet been announced in connection with the forthcoming financing for the Toledo Edison company.

OIL COMPANIES LOOK WITH FAVOR ON JOB DIVISION

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 23.—Responses to a letter sent out recently by Amos L. Beaty, president of the American Petroleum Institute, indicate a widespread acceptance among the larger oil companies of the suggestion that a 48 hour week be adopted as a permanent policy and that a temporary 40 hour week program be put into effect as a means of increasing employment.

According to an announcement by the institute, oil companies have found that reducing the daily and weekly hours of labor so as to distribute employment among a greater number does not increase labor costs. The results have also generally been satisfactory otherwise. Directors of the institute have indorsed the share-the-work movement, which Walter C. Teagle, president of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, is directing.

Letters suggesting that the program of a shorter week be adopted were sent to more than 600 companies representing the producing, refining and marketing branches of the oil industry. A considerable number of smaller companies, the institute announcement said, indicated in their replies that in spite of curtailment they have retained all old employes, in some instances assigning them to odd jobs and repair work.

WHEAT MARKET GIVES NO CLEW TO PRICE TREND

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

The wheat market is regarded as having reached the stage in a business depression where the trade has no definite idea as to the trend in the immediate future. At the same time operators would not be surprised if there were sharp advances or declines, but a feeling prevails that it will take new and startling developments to set the market out of the rut.

Routine news on the supply and demand position of wheat the world over has been utterly ignored by the trade for many weeks, and this condition is expected to continue. The refusal of the market to respond to either bullish or bearish conditions suggests to the closest observers that something that may be regarded as foreign to grain will supply the incentive to start prices moving either up or down.

Grain Trade in Chaos.

Those who have made a study of the world's wheat situation during the last few years, and especially of late, assert that the present chaotic condition is due in large measure to efforts on the part of politicians to offset the law of supply and demand.

According to a London press report last week Montagu Norman, governor of the Bank of England, in discussing the world's situation, said it was now beyond the control of any man, government, or country, due to the failure of governments to cooperate. This view was taken by the trade as applying especially to the prevailing condition in grains. On one hand the farmer has an immense amount of wheat for sale, while hunger is reported in the cities. North America had a tremendous amount of wheat for export and Europe needs hundreds of millions of bushels of the grain.

The world's movement of wheat, as the trade sees it, has backed up due to political interference to the point where the producer and consumer alike are feeling the effect. Each country is regarded as having sought to secure a slight advantage for its producers with the result that only confusion exists, and the farmer is unable to secure the cost of production anywhere in the world.

Wheat Has Narrow Range.

During the last week wheat prices in Chicago had a range of only 1¼@1¼c and in the past two weeks around 2c and the Winnipeg market held within even smaller limits, the latter being affected to a large extent by so-called "pegging" operations. How long the market will remain in a rut the trade is unable to determine, as the whole trouble is regarded as due to government interference with supply and demand rather than any breakdown in the efficiency of the marketing machinery of the world's grain trade.

Closing prices on wheat futures in the Chicago market Saturday were the same as the previous week with December at 48¾@48⅝c; May, 53⅝@53⅝c and July, 55c. Range of prices follows:

	December.	May.	July

Foreign Demand for Corn.

Foreign demand for American corn has assumed sufficient proportions to act as a cushion against any material decline in prices at the present time. Whether the United States can maintain its present advantage in the world's trade is regarded by the trade as open to argument. It is regarded as certain, however, that any material advance would result not only in blocking the outlet abroad but also in increasing the movement from the interior.

As near as could be determined Chicago handlers sold over 2,000,000 bu cash corn to the export and domestic trade during the past week. Yet futures held within a range of ⅝@1c during that period, with good support appearing on the breaks and pressure increasing on the advances. As is the case in wheat the price level is regarded as abnormally low, based on supply and demand, and the same factors which have resulted in blocking the movement back to the farmers door also applies to corn.

While the corn trade is somewhat freer of government interference than wheat there is still believed to be considerable room for improvement.

Corn closed the week with net losses of ⅝@⅞c as compared with the preceding week with December Saturday finishing at 25⅝c; May, 30¼c, and July, 32@32¼c, all deliveries being within a fraction of a cent of the inside price on the crop which was established earlier in the week. Range of prices follow:

Need Better Oats Demand.

A better domestic consumptive demand for oats is regarded as necessary to get the market out of the rut in which it has been for a number of weeks. Stocks at terminals are ample for all immediate needs and the market has been fluctuating within narrow limits awaiting a change in the general situation. The close Saturday was ⅛@¼c higher than the previous week with December at 15⅞c and May at 18⅝c. Range of prices follows:

STEEL INDUSTRY REPORTS GAINS IN SOME LINES

October to Show Better than September.

Cleveland, O., Oct. 23.—(AP)—The month of October, said the magazine Steel today, will close with notable gains over September in point of steel bookings.

"A reduction in the price of steel rails, timed propitiously at the beginning of the rail buying season, and a noteworthy acceleration of structural steel awards and inquiry, inject fresh vigor into the iron and steel markets and counteract a leveling-off process," the magazine said.

"Neither development, however, put any tonnage on mill books, and steel-making operations in the week ended Oct. 23 were barely maintained at 19½ per cent. A scheduled expansion by Youngstown mills may lift the rate to 20 per cent this week and heavier structural rollings shortly indicate further support.

"No Deluge of Orders."

"No deluge of orders is expected to follow the adjustment of the rail price from $43, established Oct. 1, 1922, to $40, but the industry is believed to have made a tangible contribution toward expediting recovery. Normally, rail commitments are made in the final six weeks of the year, and the decks are now clear for 1933 business.

"Genuine tonnage figures describe the structural and concrete bar markets. The 75,000 tons for the Golden Gate bridge, on which the McClintic-Marshall corporation was low bidder in June, 1931, having been formally awarded, this week's awards rise to 90,263 tons, largest since September, 1931.

"Including 3,000 tons for a Louisville sewer, concrete bar awards at 10,337 tons are the highest since the week ended Jan. 3.

May Build Tunnel.

"Advices from Washington are that the application for an R. F. C. loan for a Hudson river tunnel at New York requiring 150,000 tons of steel, has a chance.

"Automobile steel requirements are somewhat higher, but manufacturers at Detroit, like small consumers of iron and steel generally, are proceeding cautiously.

"October, however, will close with notable gains over September in point of steel bookings, some producers reporting increases of 75 to 90 per cent."
